JURISDICTION OF COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS

RULES OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

RULE X

ESTABLISHMENT AND JURISDICTION OF STANDING COMMITTEES

THE COMMITTEES AND THEIR JURISDICTION

1. There shall be in the House the following standing committees, each of which shall have the jurisdiction and related functions assigned to it by this clause and clauses 2, 3, and 4; and all bills, resolutions, and other matters relating to subjects within the jurisdiction of any standing committee as listed in this clause shall (in accordance with and subject to clause 5) be referred to such committees, as follows:

* * * * * * *

(v) Committee on Ways and Means.

(1) Customs, collection districts, and ports of entry and delivery.

(2) Reciprocal trade agreements.

(3) Revenue measures generally.

(4) Revenue measures relating to the insular possessions.

(5) The bonded debt of the United States * * *.

(6) The deposit on public moneys.

(7) Transportation of dutiable goods.

(8) Tax exempt foundations and charitable trusts.

(9) National social security, except (A) health care and facilities programs that are supported from general revenues as opposed to payroll deductions and (B) work incentive programs.

NOTE. As a select committee the Committee on Ways and Means dates from 1789. It was made a standing committee in 1802. Originally it considered both revenue and appropriations, but in 1865 the appropriation bills were given to the Committee on Appropriations, and certain other bills to what is now the Committee on Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs. The subject of recesses and final adjournments, formerly within the jurisdiction of this committee was, under the Reorganization Act of 1946, transferred to the Committee on Rules.

Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on Finance, on the distinction between urban and rural hospitals for purposes of the diagnosis-related group (DRG) payment provisions under the medicare program. (Sec. 2311(e), Public Law 98-369; H.R. 4170.) (Executive Communication 3899 stating reason for delay.)	Jan. 18, 1985
Secretary of Defense and Secretary of Health and Human Services shall conduct a study and report to the Committees on Armed Services and Ways and Means in the House, and the Committees on Armed Services and Finance in the Senate on the possible effects of adopting for the Civilian Health and Medicare Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS), a prospective payment system for inpatient hospital services such as that used for the medicare program. (Sec. 634, Public Law 98-525; H.R. 5167.)	Feb. 28, 1985	Feb. 19, 1986
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall review and report to the House Committees on Energy and Commerce and Ways and Means, and the Senate Committee on Finance, regarding the appropriateness of the amounts recognized as reasonable under part B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act for physicians' services associated with implantation or replacement of pacemaker devices and pacemaker leads. (Sec. 2304(b)(1) and (3), Public Law 98-369; H.R. 4170.)	Mar. 1, 1985	Mar. 1, 1985
Prospective Payment Assessment Commission established under sec. 1886(e) of the Social Security Act shall review and report to the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on Finance regarding the appropriateness of the payment amounts provided under sec. 1886(d) of such act, for inpatient hospital services associated with implantation or replacement of pacemaker devices and leads. (Sec. 2304(b)(2) and (3), Public Law 98-369; H.R. 4170.)	Mar. 1, 1985	Dec. 3, 1986
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to the Congress on the modifications required in sec. 1884 of the Social Security Act in order to conform the closure and conversion program authorized in that section to the prospective payment system under sec. 1886(d) of such act, so as to provide assistance to hospitals which may have particular problems in converting facilities (or parts thereof) from acute care to less intensive care or in closing facilities (or parts thereof). (Sec. 2353(a), Public Law 98-369; H.R. 4170.)	Mar. 31, 1985
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall examine ways to coordinate an information transfer between parts A and B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act, particularly with respect to those cases where a denial of coverage is made under part A of such title and no adjustment is made in the reimbursement to the admitting physician or physicians. (Sec. 603(a)(3)(B), Public Law 98-21; H.R. 1900.)	Apr. 1, 1985	Mar. 6, 1987
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to the Congress on the appropriate treatment of uncompensated care costs, and adjustments that might be appropriate for large teaching hospitals located in rural areas. (Sec. 603(a)(3)(C), Public Law 98-21; H.R. 1900.)	Apr. 1, 1985
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to Congress on the advisability of having hospitals make available information on the cost of care to patients financed by both public programs and private payors. (Sec. 603(a)(3)(D), Public Law 98-21; H.R. 1900.) (Executive Communication 1970.)	Apr. 1, 1985	Sept. 11, 1985
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall make legislative recommendations to the Congress with respect to an equitable method of reimbursing sole community hospitals which takes into account their unique vulnerability to substantial variations in occupancy. (Sec. 603(a)(3)(A), Public Law 98-21; H.R. 1900.)	Apr. 1, 1985
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to the Congress any changes in the per capita volume and mix of physicians' services provided under part B of medicare, classified by participating and nonparticipating physicians, assigned and nonassigned claims, by specialty and geographic area during the 15 month freeze on charges. (Sec. 2306(d)(1) and (2), Public Law 98-369; H.R. 4170.)	July 1, 1985
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to Congress on the advisability and feasibility of providing for determining the amount of medicare payments for physicians' services furnished to hospital inpatients based on the DRG type classification of the discharges of those inpatients. (Sec. 2317, Public Law 98-369; H.R. 4170 and Sec. 603(a)(2)(B), Public Law 98-21; H.R. 1900.)	July 1, 1985
Comptroller General shall report to the Congress on (A) the ability of the Administrator to manage competitive bidding for agreements and contracts under sec. 1816 and 1842 of the Social Security Act, and on the relative costs and efficiency of such competitive agreements and contracts; (B) the need (if any) for eliminating the provider nomination procedure under sec. 1816(a) of such Act, (C) the disparities (if any) in costs and quality of claims processing among the various entities performing claims processing pursuant to secs. 1816 and 1842 of such Act; (D) whether the standards of the Secretary of Health and Human Services for evaluating costs and performance of intermediaries and carriers are adequate and properly applied; and (E) whether the Secretary's statutory authority is sufficient to deal with inefficient intermediaries and carriers either through the contract negotiation and budget review process or through the process for termination or nonrenewal of contracts. (Sec. 2326(e), Public Law 98-369; H.R. 4170.) (See Executive Communication 3383.)	July 18, 1985	Apr. 28, 1986

REPORTS AND STUDIES REQUIRED BY LAW

	DATE DUE	DATE RECEIVED
Director of the Office of Technology Assessment, in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, and as appropriate, national organizations of physicians and other interested associations and individuals, shall report to the Congress on physician reimbursement under part B of the medicare program. (Sec. 2309(a) and (b), Public Law 98-369; H.R. 4170.)	Dec. 31, 1985	Mar. 6, 1986
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall conduct a study and report to Congress on whether or not the reimbursement method and benefit structure (including copayments) for hospice care under title XVIII of the Social Security Act are fair and equitable and promote the most efficient provision of hospice care. Such report shall include the feasibility and advisability of providing for prospective reimbursement for hospice care, an evaluation of the inclusion of payment for outpatient drugs, an evaluation of the need to alter the method of reimbursement for nutritional, dietary, and bereavement counseling as hospice care, and any recommendations for legislative changes in the hospice care reimbursement or benefit structure. Such study shall be monitored and evaluated by the Comptroller General. The Secretary of HHS shall also include in this a report to Congress on certain "core" services furnished directly by a hospice. (Sec. 122(i)(1) and (2), Public Law 97-248; H.R. 4961 and Sec. 2343(d), Public Law 98-369; H.R. 4170.) (See Executive Communication 220 of the 100th Congress.)	Jan. 1, 1986	Jan. 1, 1987

Secretary of Health and Human Services shall study and report to the Congress on the advisability of allowing home health services to be provided under the supervision of a physical therapist or other health care professional, rather than requiring the supervision of a physician or registered nurse. (Sec. 9218(a), Public Law 99-272; H.R. 3128.)	Sept. 30, 1986
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall conduct a study of the advisability of deleting the requirement that a physical therapist must have an office equipped with specific equipment, even if such therapist provides all such services in the patient's home. (Sec. 9218(b), Public Law 99-272; H.R. 3128.)	Sept. 30, 1986
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall conduct a study and report to the Congress on higher medicare payment rates for sole community hospitals as a result of needed expansion of services at such hospitals. (Sec. 9111(c), Public Law 99-272; H.R. 3128.)	Dec. 31, 1986
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to the Congress with respect to the advisability and feasibility of a system of direct payment to any physician for all clinical diagnostic laboratory tests ordered by such physician. (Sec. 2303(i) (2) and (3), Public Law 98-369; H.R. 4170.)	Jan. 1, 1987
Comptroller General shall report to the Congress on the appropriateness of fee schedules under sec. 1833(h) of the Social Security Act—clinical diagnostic laboratory tests—and their impact on the volume and quality of such tests. (Sec. 2303(i)(1) and (3), Public Law 98-369; H.R. 4170.)	Jan. 1, 1987
The Congressional Budget Office shall study and report to the Congress on additional payments under medicare for hospitals which serve a disproportionate share of low-income patients. (Sec. 9105(d), Public Law 99-272; H.R. 3128.)	Jan. 1, 1987
The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to the Congress on the impact of outlier and transfer policy on rural hospitals. (Sec. 9113(a), Public Law 99-272; H.R. 3128.)	Jan. 1, 1987
Secretary of Health and Human Services after consultation with the Physician Payment Review Commission, shall develop recommendations and guidelines, and report to the Congress, respecting surgical procedures for which an assistant at surgery is generally not medically necessary and the circumstances under which the use of an assistant at surgery is generally appropriate but should be subject to prior approval of an appropriate entity. (Sec. 9307(d), Public Law 99-272; H.R. 3128.)	Jan. 1, 1987
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to the Congress on the methods to be used for monitoring and enforcing the responsibilities of medicare hospitals in emergency cases. (Sec. 9121(d), Public Law 99-272; H.R. 3128.)	Feb. 1, 1987
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall conduct a study and report to the Congress information on the frequency and distribution (by type of provider) of denials of bills for payment under title XVIII of the Social Security Act for extended care services, home health services, and hospice care. (Sec. 9305(g)(2), Public Law 99-509; H.R. 5300.)	Mar. 31, 1987
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to the Congress on the progress made in establishing the national end-stage renal disease registry. (Sec. 9335(i)(2), Public Law 99-509; H.R. 5300.)	Apr. 1, 1987

	Date Due	Date Received
Secretary of Health and Human Services shall report to the Congress on minimum standards for clinical laboratories that are part of, or associated with physicians' offices. (Sec. 9303(c), Public Law 99-272; H.R. 3128.)	Apr. 7, 1987
National Center for Health Services Research and Health Care Technology shall conduct a study and report to the House Committees on Ways and Means, Energy and Commerce, and Appropriations and the Senate Committees on Finance, and Appropriations with respect to the findings of the patient outcome assessment research program. SUMMARIES OF PUBLIC AND PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS REPORTED BY COMMITTEE—IN NUMERICAL ORDER

H.R. 1 (Mr. Gonzalez with cosponsors); passed House June 12, 1986.

H.R. 1, a bill to amend and extend certain laws relating to housing, was referred to the Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee, and was reported to the House on July 26, 1985. H.R. 1 passed the House on June 12, 1986, with amendments, one of which was within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means. The amendment would require disclosure of an applicant's social security or employee identification number as a condition of eligibility for housing assistance.

As of adjournment of the 99th Congress, H.R. 1 was pending on the Senate calendar.

H.R. 6 (Mr. Howard with cosponsors); Public Law 99-662; app. Nov. 17, 1986.

H.R. 6, the Water Resources Conservation, Development, and Infrastructure Improvement and Rehabilitation Act, was originally referred to the Committee on Public Works and Transportation. On Aug. 1, 1985, H.R. 6 was reported with an amendment by the Committee on Public Works and Transportation. The bill was sequentially referred to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs for a period ending not later than Sept. 5, 1985, to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries for a period ending not later than Sept. 15, 1985, and to the Committee on Ways and Means for a period ending not later than Sept. 23, 1985, for consideration of such portions of the amendment as fall within the jurisdiction of those committees.

On Sept. 5, 1985, referral to the Committees on Interior and Insular Affairs and Merchant Marine and Fisheries was extended for a period ending not later than Sept. 16, 1985. H.R. 6 was reported from the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs on Sept. 16, 1985. On Sept. 16, 1985, referral to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries was extended for a period ending not later than Sept. 23, 1985. H.R. 6 was reported with an amendment from the Committee on Ways and Means on Sept. 23, 1985. The bill was reported from the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries on Sept. 23, 1985.

Title 15 of H.R. 6, as reported by the Committee on Ways and Means and passed by the House, funds water resources development by imposing a new .04 percent (4 cents per $100) excise tax on the value of commercial cargo loaded or unloaded in the U.S. Cargo loaded or unloaded in Hawaii or the insular possessions or loaded in the U.S. for destination to those islands would not be subject to the tax. The first landing of U.S. harvested seafood also would be exempt, and a credit against the tax would be provided for Saint Lawrence Seaway tolls.

Revenues from the tax would be deposited in a new Port Infrastructure Development and Improvement Trust Fund. Also, $1 billion annually would be authorized from general revenues for deposit into the fund. Amounts in the fund would be available as provided by appropriations acts for studies, construction, operation and maintenance of general cargo and deep draft projects; for studies, construction, rehabilitation and maintenance of the Saint Lawrence Seaway Project; and for payments to any non-federal interest which has planned, designed, or constructed a port under the bill.

H.R. 6 passed the House on Nov. 13, 1985. In the Senate, similar legislation (S. 1567) was reported by the Committee on Environment and Public Works on Aug. 1, 1985. S. 1567 was referred to the Committee on Finance on Oct. 10, 1985, and was reported to the Senate on Jan. 8, 1986.

H.R. 6 passed the Senate amended (S. 1567) on Mar. 26, 1986. As passed by the Senate, H.R. 6 would have imposed a 0.04 percent charge on the value of commercial cargo loaded or unloaded at U.S. ports. The charge also would have been imposed on the use of Great Lakes improvements. The Senate amendment would have imposed a $0.005 (½ cent) per registered ton charge on commercial vessels using ports o harbors or Great Lakes improvements other than for loading, unloadin or transportation up to 3 times per year.

The port use charge would not apply to cargo shipped from the U.S mainland to Hawaii or U.S. possessions for local use, or to cargo shippe from Hawaii or a U.S. possession to the U.S. mainland for local use. Th charge would apply to cargo shipped to or from a foreign country. Unde a Senate floor amendment, the same exceptions would apply to Alask except the charge would apply to shipments of crude oil.

The Senate amendment would exempt bonded cargo entering the U.S for transhipment to a foreign country in certain circumstances. Numerou other special exemptions and applications were contained in the Senat provision.

The revenue would have been placed in a Harbor Maintenance Tru Fund along with the U.S. portion of Saint Lawrence Seaway tolls an interest on the fund balance. The fund would be available to pay up to 4 percent of U.S. harbor operation and maintenance costs (including Gre Lakes navigational projects), 100 percent of eligible Saint Lawrenc Seaway operation and maintenance costs and rebates of U.S. Saint Law rence Seaway tolls to payors.

The Senate amendment also would have increased Inland Waterwa Trust Fund fuel excise tax rates by 1 cent per gallon per year, beginnin on Jan. 1, 1988, until the tax reached 20 cents per gallon on Jan. 1, 1997 Like the House bill, the Senate amendment would have added the Tennes see-Tombigbee to designated inland waterways upon which the excise ta applies.

The conference report was filed in the House on Oct. 17, 1986. Th House and Senate agreed to the conference report on Oct. 17, 1986. Th President signed H.R. 6 into law on November 17, 1986, as Public Law 99-662.

As agreed to, Public Law 99-662 imposes an excise tax of 0.04 percen of the value of cargo on the use of a U.S. harbor or channel by commercial vessel for loading or unloading of commercial cargo. The por use tax would not apply to (1) ports deauthorized prior to 1985, or port receiving no U.S. funds since 1977; (2) cargo the transportation of which is subject to the inland waterways fuel tax; (3) cargo shipped from the U.S. mainland to Alaska, Hawaii, or a U.S. possession for local use, cargo shipped from Alaska, Hawaii, or a U.S. possession to the U.S. mainland for local use (the tax applies to cargo shipped to or from a foreign country and to shipments of crude oil with respect to Alaska), or cargo loaded o a vessel in Alaska, Hawaii, or a U.S. possession and unloaded in the same State or possession; (4) shorthaul ferrying of passengers and vehicle between U.S. points or between the U.S. and Canada or Mexico (since the tax applies to passenger transportation); (5) fish or other aquatic animal life caught in voyage, if not previously landed on shore; (6) cargo shipped by the U.S. Government or Federal agencies; (7) de minimis transactions and (8) certain bonded cargo entering the U.S. for transportation and direct exportation to a foreign country. The act provides for rebates of the U.S. portion of Saint Lawrence Seaway tolls to be paid out of the Trus Fund. The port use tax becomes effective on Apr. 1, 1987.

The act establishes a Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund in the Treasury to receive amounts equivalent to revenues from the port use and por maintenance charges and revenues from the U.S. portion of Saint Law rence Seaway tolls. In addition, the Trust Fund will earn interest on investments of any cash balance.

The act increases the inland waterways fuel tax to 11 cents per gallon on Jan. 1, 1990, to 13 cents per gallon on Jan. 1, 1991, to 15 cents per gallon on Jan. 1, 1992, to 17 cents per gallon on Jan. 1, 1994, and to 20 cents per gallon on Jan. 1, 1995, and thereafter. The Tennessee-Tombigbee is added to covered waterways. The Inland Waterways Trust Fund statutory language is placed in the Internal Revenue Code.

H.R. 1562 (Mr. Jenkins with cosponsors); House sustained Presidential Veto Aug. 6, 1986.

H.R. 1562, the Textile and Apparel Trade Enforcement Act of 1985, was reported without amendment to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on Sept. 30, 1985. On Oct. 10, 1985, the House passed H.R. 1562, and on November 13, the Senate considered and passed H.R. 1562 with an amendment. The House then concurred in the Senate amendment on Dec. 3, 1985. On Dec. 17, 1985, the President vetoed the bill and returned it to the House with a veto message. Upon receiving the veto message, the House agreed by unanimous consent to postpone further consideration of H.R. 1562 and the Presidential veto until Aug. 6, 1986. On Aug. 6, 1986, the House reconsidered the bill and sustained the President's veto.

H.R. 1562 would establish permanent import quotas for textiles and textile products from all countries except Canada and certain member states of the European Community. As amended by the Senate and subsequently agreed to by the House, the bill also would establish import quotas on nonrubber footwear imports, mandate the President to negotiate production restraint agreements with major foreign copper-producing countries, and require a study of foreign labor practices.

Title I of H.R. 1562 would establish a permanent statutory scheme of separate import quotas for each category of textiles and textile products from each supplier country. Different formulas would apply to determine the permissible levels of imports in any specific product category, depending on whether the product is from a "major exporting country," "exporting country," or a "small exporting country," as defined by the bill, and what type of product the import is (e.g., whether it is a wool product or "import sensitive" product). Future growth of the import quotas for products from "major exporting countries" and from "exporting countries" would be limited to 1 percent per year. Future growth of the quotas for imports from "small exporting countries" would be limited to 6 percent per year, except for import sensitive products, which would be restricted to 1 percent annual growth.

The product coverage would extend to all textiles and textile manufactured products, including many fibers and products which are not currently subject to the textile quota program. Specific exemptions, however, are provided for toys and dolls, toys for pets, and apparel made of at least 70 percent silk. Special quota provisions apply to certain products from U.S. insular possessions, and for luggage, handbags, and flat goods.

The bill also would establish an import licensing requirement for textile imports from all sources, including Canada and the EC. A formal review of the textile control program is required after 10 years.

Title II of the bill would establish global quotas on imports of nonrubber footwear for a period of 8 years. The quotas are set at 60 percent of domestic consumption levels.

Title III of the bill would mandate the President to negotiate voluntary agreements to restrain copper production with all major and significant copper producing countries within 9 months of enactment.

Title IV of the bill would require the ITC to conduct a study of the wage rates, labor costs, and other labor practices of each foreign country with a trade surplus with the United States in 1984 in excess of $4 billion. Within 9 months of enactment, such ITC study must be submitted to the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Commerce, who are then required, within 3 months thereafter, to submit to Congress separate reports on whether such labor practices are, or should be, prohibited by U.S. or international law.

H.R. 1614 (Mr. Foley with cosponsors); Public Law 99–260; app. Mar. 20, 1986.

H.R. 1614, the "Food Security Improvements Act of 1986", was referred to the Agriculture Committee, which reported it to the House on May 23, 1985. The bill passed the House on June 4, 1985. As reported and passed the bill had no provisions which were under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means.

In the Senate the bill was referred to the Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry Committee. The committee was discharged from further consideration and the bill passed the Senate amended on March 6, 1986. The Senate originally passed its amended version as S. 2143 on March 5, 1986. S. 2143 was indefinitely postponed on March 6. As passed by the Senate, H.R. 1614 included two amendments under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means. The first requires the Secretary of Agriculture to reduce the price received by producers of milk marketed for commercial use if a milk diversion program is in effect. The difference in the reduced price and the sales price would be remitted to the Commodity Credit Corporation by the purchaser of the milk or, in the case of a direct sale to consumers, withheld by the producer and remitted to the Commodity Credit Corporation. The payment is in the nature of an excise tax. It is a continuation of a program which was included in H.R. 2100, The Food Security Act, and which was the subject of an exchange of letters between the Chariman of the Committee on Ways and Means and the Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, regarding the Ways and Means Committee's jurisdictional interest. The second allows the Secretary of Agriculture to increase the portion of the price which is paid to the Commodity Credit Corporation, the "excise tax", in an amount which would fully replace any price cuts otherwise required under the Gramm-Rudman legislation. This additional revenue is estimated to raise $80 million during the 6 months the higher Commodity Credit Corporation payment is in effect. The Committee on Ways and Means did not object to allowing these amendments to remain in the bill after the Senate agreed to send to the House, its amended version of the House-passed bill rather than a Senate-originated measure. The House agreed to the Senate amendments on Mar. 6, 1986.

H.R. 1614 was signed into law by the President on Mar. 20, 1986, as Public Law 99-260.

H.R. 1866 (Mr. Rostenkowski with cosponsors); Public Law 99–15; app. Apr. 4, 1985.

H.R. 1866, a bill to phase out the Federal supplemental compensation program, was reported to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on Apr. 2, 1985, and passed the House without amendment on the same day. The Senate passed the bill on Apr. 3, 1985. It was signed into law by the President on Apr. 4, 1985, as Public Law 99–15.

Under the act, FSC will be payable for weeks of unemployment beginning after Apr. 6, 1985, only to those people who received FSC for the week of Mar. 31, 1985, through Apr. 6, 1985, the last week of the program under current law. Individuals who receive FSC for that week will be allowed to collect the remainder of their FSC entitlement. Their remaining weeks of benefits must be collected in consecutive weeks.

H.R. 1868 (Mr. Moore with cosponsors); reported Senate Oct. 2, 1986.

H.R. 1868, the Medicare and Medicaid Patient and Program Protection Act of 1985, would recodify certain provisions of law relating to medicare and medicaid fraud and abuse and extend them to the maternal and child health program and the title XX social services program. The bill would also add several new provisions: (1) Require a minimum exclusion of 5 years for individuals or entities convicted of a program-related crime; (2) mandate the exclusion of any individual or entity convicted of a crime related to patient neglect or abuse; (3) authorize the Secretary to exclude from medicare, medicaid, the maternal and child health program and the title XX social services program any individual or entity convicted of certain crimes related to the provision of health services, to financial integrity, to the obstruction of certain investigations or to controlled substance violations; and (4) authorize the exclusion from medicare, medicaid and the State health care programs in all States a person whose license has been revoked or suspended by any State licensing authority.

H.R. 1868 was reported to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on May 10, 1985, and passed the House without amendment on June 4, 1985.

On Oct. 2, 1986, the Senate Finance Committee reported H.R. 1868 to the Senate with amendments as follows:

A. Modifications to H.R. 1868.

1. Permit the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) to assess civil monetary penalties against hospitals that improperly charge Medicare beneficiaries or provide false information affecting a discharge decision. Also permits civil monetary penalties to be assessed against hospitals and physicians that participate in incentive plans that inappropriately reward reduction of services provided to Medicare patients.

2. Permit the Secretary of HHS to impose sanctions other than termination for providers and suppliers who violate provisions that do not affect the health and safety of patients.

3. Eliminate criminal penalties for certain providers who participate in group purchasing organizations or who waive patient cost-sharing, so long as the waivers meet certain requirements.

4. Add discretionary authority for the Secretary of HHS to exclude from Medicare and State health programs individuals who default on repayment of scholarships for health education.

5. Provide financial protection to Medicare beneficiaries whose claims are denied because their physician or provider had been excluded from Medicare or State health programs.

6. Eliminate reporting requirements for owners who control less than 5 percent of a health entity.

B. Medicare amendments

1. Disproportionate Share Hospital Adjustment

Clarify Congressional intent to specify that funding to cover indigent care need not be formally characterized in State and local government budgets.

2. Rural Hospital Regulation Analysis

Require analysis of the impact of all proposed Medicare and Medicaid regulations on small rural hospitals.

3. Sole Community Provider Extension

Indefinitely extend the additional payment provision for decreases in patient volume for sole community providers.

4. Connecticut Hospice Waiver

For Connecticut Hospice Inc., increase the 20 day limit on inpatient days to 50 days but no further waivers of the reimbursement cap or the limitation on respite care days would be permitted.

5. Burn Outliers Study

Increase the rate at which the marginal costs of outliers are reimbursed from 60 to 80 percent, until the Congress or the Secretary implements a modification of the prospective payment system (PPS) to better accommodate outliers for burn cases.

6. Consumer Representative on PRO Board

Require each peer review organization (PRO) to name at least one consumer representative to its board of directors.

7. PPS for Puerto Rico

Include Puerto Rico hospitals in Medicare's prospective payment system on a budget neutral basis.

8. Coordination of Quality Studies

Require the Secretary of HHS to coordinate the development of studies on the quality of care under PPS.

9. Hospital Cost Report Extension

Require cost reports to be maintained through 1993.

10. Annual Recalibration of DRGs.

Require that the Secretary adjust the diagnosis related group (DR categories and weighting factors used to pay hospitals under Medicar prospective payment system (PPS) every year beginning with fiscal y 1988.

11. Reclassification of Certain DRGs

Require implementation of ProPAC recommendations to reclassify agnosis related groups (DRGs) related to the implantation of penile prot eses and heart pacemakers on a budget neutral basis.

12. Rural Clinic Psychologist

Allow reimbursement for psycholgist services provided in a rural heal care clinic.

13. Rebase PPS Rates

Require the Secretary to rebase Medicare's prospective payment syste PPS rates for fiscal year 1988 to reflect the actual costs reported by urb and rural hospitals in 1985, on a budget neutral basis.

14. Modify PPS Outliers

Require that the outlier set-aside be allocated so that rural hospitals a urban hospitals within geographic regions in the aggregate receive p ments that are equal to their contribution.

15. CRNA Reimbursement

Establish direct reimbursement under part B of Medicare for certifi registered nurse anesthetists (CRNA) services. Payment would be equal 80 percent of a fee schedule established initially at a level based on th costs of anesthesia services provided by CRNA's, but subject to a requir ment that total Medicare payments for anesthesia services (both servic provided by CRNA's and medical direction provided by physicians) cou not increase.

16. Quality Studies and Reports

Require the Secretary to:

a) submit a legislative proposal to improve the prospective pa ment system with regard to variations in severity of illness and ba complexity;

b) determine whether the current standards used to qualify hosp tals for participation in Medicare are adequate to maintain quality services;

c) assess whether additional payment should be made for days continued inpatient hospital stay necessitated by delays in obtainin placement in a skilled nursing facility;

d) develop a uniform assessment instrument to be used by di charge planners, providers, and fiscal intermediaries in evaluating individual's need for post discharge care; and

e) include information in PPS annual reports related to the qualit of and access to post-hospital services provided under Medicar

17. ESRD Networks

Requires the Secretary to:

a) maintain the current functions and responsibilities of the ne works and to consolidate to no fewer than 14 entities; and

b) establish a national end stage renal disease registry.

18. Home Emergency Response Study

Require the Secretary to conduct a clinical trial to determine the efficiency and economic feasibility of providing Medicare coverage for personal emergency response systems.

19. ESRD Patient's Rights

Require facilities that reuse renal dialysis equipment to inform patients in writing of the potential risks and benefits of reuse; and provide patients the freedom to decide whether or not to accept treatment at any facility.

20. Additions to MD Payment Board

Expand the number of members for Medicare Physician Payment Review Commission from 11 to 13.

21. Coverage of Psychologists' Services

Clarify that inpatient hospital services for which payments may be made under Medicare part A would include diagnostic or therapeutic services provided by a psychologist.

22. Prevention Demonstrations

a) Clarify that the limitation on funding applies only to the administrative cost of designing and conducting the demonstration and the accompanying evaluation.

b) Require that at least one demonstration be conducted in a rural area.

23. MADRS Data Base Expansion

Require the Secretary of Health and Human Services to integrate information on beneficiary claims under parts A and B of Medicare beginning with fiscal year 1980 for the Medicare Automated Data Retrieval System (MADRS).

24. Clinical Lab Demonstration

Extend the moratorium on a competitive bidding demonstration for 1 year.

25. Waivers for Frail Elderly Projects

Authorizes the Secretary to grant waivers to organizations that provide comprehensive services to the frail elderly.

26. Delay Mandatory Assignment

Delay for 1 year the effective date of the requirement that laboratory services performed in a physician's office be paid only on the basis of assignment.

27. Organ Transplant Protocols (Medicare and Medicaid)

Provide that hospitals which participate in Medicare or Medicaid could only receive payments for organ procurements if the organ is obtained through a certified organ procurement agency and if they participate in the Organ Procurement and Transplanation Network established under the Public Health Service Act.

28. Regional Referral Centers in States Under Waivers

Provide that in the case of a hospital in a State which was previously under a waiver, regional referral center status for the fiscal year 1987 could be established on a basis of data for the 9 months of fiscal year 1986 during which the State was under PPS.

29. Physician Assistants

Authorize Medicare payments for the services of physician assistants when the services are performed under the supervision of a physician in a hospital, skilled nursing facility, or as an assistant at surgery, when legally authorized to perform those services in a State.

The Senate Finance Committee also added S. 2209, the Employment Opportunities for Disabled Americans Act, makes permanent a program (Sec. 1619 of the Social Security Act) which provides special cash benefits and Medicaid coverage for certain disabled recipients of supplemental security income, who work. The bill would remove barriers which discourage the disabled from attempting to work. The Finance Committee made modifications to S. 2209 which would:

1. Provide up to 2 months of regular SSI benefits for those in the 1619 program who enter public institutions for medical treatment, or Medicaid facilities — If the institution or facility agrees that the recipient may retain the SSI payment.
2. Mandate Medicaid coverage in certain States which have established Medicaid eligibility criteria which is different for SSI recipients under the 1619 program.
3. Eliminate for those in the 1619 program the trial work period and extended period of eligibility and allow 1619 recipients who have lost case benefit eligibility to regain that eligibility without again meeting all of the basic SSI eligibility standards.

H.R. 1869 (Mr. Rostenkowski with cosponsors); Public Law 99–44; app. May 24, 1985.

H.R. 1869, a bill to repeal the contemporaneous recordkeeping requirements added by the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984, was reported to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on Apr. 2, 1985, and passed the House without amendment on the same day. The bill, as passed the House, accomplishes the following:

(1) Repeals the contemporaneous recordkeeping requirements of the tax Reform Act of 1984. These provisions required individuals to keep contemporaneous records showing the date, mileage and purpose of each trip. The contemporaneous recordkeeping requirement is repealed for all listed property, such as automobiles, airplanes, yachts and computers. The regulations issued by the Department of the Treasury to carry out this requirement are legislatively repealed.

(2) Repeals the special negligence penalty for failure to have contemporaneous records and the provision requiring accountants to obtain written confirmation from the taxpayer that records exist.

(3) Substantiation of the automobile business deductions requirement is generally returned to prior law, except for the addition of a requirement that there be some written evidence corroborating types of items subject to those requirements.

(4) Delivery trucks, buses, marked police and fire vehicles, ambulances, hearses, and any vehicle designed to carry cargo with a loaded gross vehicle weight of over 14,000 pounds are excluded from the recordkeeping requirements. In addition, the Secretary of the Treasury shall issue regulations to carry out the provisions of the act no later than Oct. 1, 1985.

(5) Income tax withholding for vehicle fringe benefits would become optional, allowing the employer either to include the imputed income on an employee's W-2, or withhold on whatever basis the employer finds to be most convenient.

(6) H.R. 1869 is made revenue neutral by reducing the amount of investment tax credit and depreciation for luxury automobiles. These reductions are generally effective on Apr. 2, 1985. In addition, the present law automobile inflation adjustment is deferred until Jan. 1, 1986.

(7) Repeal of the contemporaneous recordkeeping requirement, the no-fault negligence penalty and the preparer's penalty is effective as if those provisions had never been enacted. Thus, substantiation requirements apply to taxable years beginning after Dec. 31, 1985. The withholding provision is effective Jan. 1, 1985.

H.R. 1869 passed the Senate on Apr. 3, 1985, amended in several ways. (1) There is no requirement that the corroborating evidence be written. (2) The exemption from substantiation requirements was expanded to include certain vehicles where at least 75 percent of the total use is for business purposes. Further, there would be no income inclusion for personal use of these types of vehicles, where at least 75 percent of the total use is for business purposes. Finally, there is no amendment made to the present law withholding requirements. The Senate provisions are effective for 1985.

On May 7, 1985 the conference report was filed. It was agreed to in the House on May 8, 1985, and in the Senate on May 16, 1985. The conference agreement was as follows:

(1) The word "contemporaneous" is repealed as if never enacted.

(2) The substantiation of automobile deduction generally follows the Senate amendment; thus the taxpayer must have adequate records or sufficient evidence corroborating the taxpayers own statement. An employee need not keep separate records if the employer has a specifically defined policy limiting personal use.

(3) The conference agreement generally follows the House bill as to information to be requested on taxpayers returns.

(4) The conference agreement repeals the return-preparers penalty as well as the IRS temporary regulations on recordkeeping.

(5) The conference agreement follows the House bill as to exempt vehicles with the addition of certain buses, utility repair trucks, moving vans and other vehicles used a de minimis amount for personal purposes.

(6) The conference agreement follows the House bill with regard to withholding elections.

(7) The conference agreement follows the House bill with regard to limitations on the investment tax credit and depreciation, but revises these numerical limitations.

The President signed H.R. 1869 into law on May 24, 1985, as Public Law 99-44.

H.R. 2005 (Mr. Jones of Oklahoma with cosponsors); Public Law 99-499; app. Oct. 17, 1986. (See also H.R. 3128.)

H.R. 2005, the Social Security Minor and Technical Changes Act of 1985, amends title II of the Social Security Act to provide for needed minor improvements and technical corrections to various sections of the Act. While some provisions would result in minor extensions of benefit protection, most sections correct unintended results of recent amendments to the Social Security Act, primarily the 1980 Disability Amendments, and the Social Security Amendments of 1983.

The major provisions of the bill extend the waiver authority under which the Social Security Administration may conduct vocational rehabilitation demonstration projects; substitute a special disability Advisory Council for the general quadrennial advisory council required by law to be appointed in 1985; extend the current law treatment of adopted grandchildren to adopted great-grandchildren; provide relief for disabled widows who were inadvertently made ineligible for SSI and medicaid benefits by an increase in their social security benefits in the 1983 Social Security Amendments; and correct a technical error in the Social Security Amendments of 1983 which resulted in discriminatory tax treatment of benefits received by citizens of American Samoa. The bill also contains several minor clerical and technical changes to clarify congressional intent in other areas, including reentitlement to benefits of childhood disability beneficiaries, the disability family maximum benefit computation for working auxiliary beneficiaries, and deeming January checks paid in December because of a holiday to be paid in January for purposes of taxation of benefits and reserve fund calculations.

The bill was reported to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on May 7, 1985, and passed the House on May 14, 1985.

The Senate stripped H.R. 2005 of all the provisions contained in the House-passed bill, inserted legislation pertaining to the reauthorization of the Superfund program, and passed H.R. 2005 on Sept. 26, 1985. Subsequently, identical provisions to those that were contained in the House-passed H.R. 2005 were reported to the Senate by the Committee on the Budget on Oct. 2, 1985, as part of S. 1730, the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985. This legislation amending the Social Security Act passed the Senate on Nov. 14, 1985, as part of the Senate amendment to H.R. 3128.

The Senate-passed 5-year extension of the Superfund revenue provisions (provisions of S. 51 as amended by the Senate) which were adopted as an amendment to H.R. 2005, would raise $7.5 billion include the following:

1. Petroleum tax of 0.79 cents per barrel ($0.2 billion).

2. Chemical feedstock tax on prior law list and at prior law rates ($1.2 billion).

3. Multilevel excise tax of $8 per $10,000 on sale, lease or import tangible personal property by manufacturer or importer with credit f previous tax paid ($5.4 billion). (The Senate also approved a "Sense of th Senate" resolution to instruct the Senate conferees not to approve a valu added type tax in any conference on the Superfund bill.)

4. No appropriation authorization.

Amounts in the Superfund would be available for expenditures f releases or threats of releases of hazardous substances into the enviro ment. The Post Closure Liability Trust Fund and tax would be repeale

On Dec. 10, 1985, the House agreed to the Senate amendment to H. 2005 with amendments. The House amendments to H.R. 2005 incorpora ed the House-passed language of H.R. 2817, the Superfund Amendmen of 1985. The House asked for a conference on H.R. 2005 on Dec. 1 1985.

(See summary of H.R. 2817 for description of House amendment

The conference agreement on H.R. 2005 was filed in the House on Oc 3, 1986, and passed by the Senate on Oct. 3, 1986. The House passed th conference agreement on Oct. 8, 1986.

As agreed to, the revenue provisions would provide $8.5 billion Superfund revenues over 5 years. The revenue and its sources woul include $2.75 billion from a petroleum tax of 8.2 cents per barrel o domestic crude oil ($1.25 billion) and 11.7 cents per barrel on importe petroleum products including imported crude oil ($1.50 billion). The ta on chemical feedstocks would be imposed on the prior law list of taxab substances at prior rates ($1.4 billion). Special rules are provided fo xylene and certain other chemicals. A tax on imported chemical deriva tives and a credit for exported chemical derivatives would be include $2.5 billion would be raised by a new environmental tax of $12 pe $10,000 of corporate alternative minimum taxable income with an excep tion for alternative minimum taxable income below $2 million. Gener revenue would provide $1.25 billion ($250 million of general revenu appropriations are authorized for the Superfund for each of fiscal year 1987-1991) and interest and recoveries are estimated to raise $0.3 billio each. The Post-Closure Liability Trust Fund and tax are repealed retroac tively. The agreement also provides for a Leaking Underground Storag Tank (LUST) Trust Fund funded by a tax on fuels of 0.1 cent per gallo for 5 years to raise $500 million.

The Act deletes natural resource damage and assessment claims as Superfund expenditure purpose. Advances to the Superfund may no exceed estimated tax revenues for the following 24 months. All advance must be repaid by Dec. 31, 1991. The Superfund Trust Fund provision are effective on Jan. 1, 1987.

The President signed the bill into law on Oct. 17, 1986, as Public Law 99-499.

H.R. 2100 (Mr. de la Garza); Public Law 99-198; app. Dec. 23, 1985.

H.R. 2100, the Food Security Act of 1985 (also referred to as the "farm bill"), was referred to the Committee on Agriculture. The bill containe no provisions under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means. The Agriculture Committee reported the bill on Sept. 13, 1985 and it passed the House with amendments on Oct. 8, 1985.

The Senate version of the bill (S. 1714) was passed on Nov. 23, 1985 The conference report was filed on Dec. 17, 1985, and agreed to by both the House and Senate on Dec. 18, 1985. On Dec. 23, 1985, the Presiden signed H.R. 2100 into law, as Public Law 99-198.

A summary of the act follows:

Sec. 1122 of the act makes certain Congressional findings regarding the trade dislocation of agricultural subsidies and states the sense of the Congress that the President should negotiate provisions in the GATT rules to reduce agricultural trade barriers and subsidies.

Sec. 1151 of the act requires the Secretary of Agriculture to consult with the U.S. Trade Representative before relaxing or removing any import restriction.

Sec. 1164 of the act makes certain findings regarding the failure to achieve a mutually acceptable resolution to U.S. complaints over EC subsidies and tariffs on U.S. citrus, wheat flour, poultry, canned fruit, and raisin exports. It directs the President to take all appropriate and feasible action to ensure a prompt and satisfactory resolution of these complaints.

and to balance the level of concessions in the trade between the EC and the United States.

Sec. 902 of the act: (1) requires that (a) the current sugar quota year (Dec. 1, 1985, through Sept. 30, 1986) would be extended by no less than 3 months, and the shipping schedules rearranged so that shipments are equally divided throughout the quota year, as extended, or (b) the sugar import program be administered in such a way as to result in at least the equivalent reduction in loan forfeitures; (2) beginning the next quota year, requires the President to use all authorities available to enable the Secretary of Agriculture to operate the sugar program at no cost to the Federal Government by preventing the accumulation of sugar by the Commodity Credit Corporation; and (3) beginning the next quota year, prohibits the allocation of a sugar import quota to any country that is a net importer of sugar unless officials of that country verify that it does not import for reexport to the United States any sugar produced in Cuba.

Sec. 1166 of the act requires all imports of flue-cured and burley tobacco to be accompanied by a certification that such tobacco does not contain prohibited pesticide residues. The same residue standards would apply to both imported tobacco and domestic tobacco. The provision also requires periodic sampling and testing of both imported and domestic tobacco to ensure compliance.

Sec. 1165 of the act makes certain findings concerning conditions in world rice trade and expresses the sense of Congress that the U.S. rice industry must be protected from unfair foreign competition and urges immediate consideration by the Secretary of Commerce of the countervailing duty petition against Thai rice exports.

Sec. 1161 of the act requires the Secretary of Agriculture to track the end-users of imported flue-cured and burley tobacco.

Sec. 1155 of the act requires the Secretary of Agriculture to conduct a study to determine the impact that the import of Brazilian ethanol has on the domestic ethanol refining industry.

Sec. 1152 of the act requires the Secretary of Agriculture in conjunction with the United States Trade Representative to conduct a study on the effect of apricot imports into the United States and the extent and nature of apricot subsidies existing in the countries from which such apricot imports are derived.

Sec. 1156 of the act requires the Secretary of Agriculture to conduct a study of the impact of domestic farm programs of the increased importation of oats into the United States.

H.R. 2110 (Mr. Rostenkowski with cosponsors); reported to House Apr. 10, 1986. (See also H.R. 3838.)

H.R. 2110, the Retirement Equity Technical Corrections Act of 1986, was reported to the House by the Committees on Ways and Means and Energy and Commerce on Apr. 10, 1986. The Ways and Means Committee report makes technical and clarifying changes to the Retirement Equity Act of 1984, and a miscellaneous amendment to the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1984 (ERISA).

These include technical changes in the following areas: (1) minimum participation, vesting, and benefit accrual standards (break-in-service rules, mandatory employee contributions, maximum age requirement); (2) survivor benefit requirements (coordination between qualified joint and survivor annuity and qualified preretirement survivor annuity, transferee plan rules, rules relating to qualified preretirement survivor annuity, spousal consent requirements, notice requirement clarification of rule for subsidized benefits and of annuity starting date); (3) qualified domestic relations orders (tax treatment of divorce distributions, determination by plan administrator, application to plans not subject to assignment or alienation restrictions, coordination with Federal garnishment restrictions and with qualified plan requirements; (4) notice of rollover treatment; (5) transition rules; and (6) ERISA treatment of loans to owner-employees.

At the adjournment of the 99th Congress, H.R. 2110 was pending on the House calendar.

Technical corrections similar to those in H.R. 2110 were included in H.R. 3838 as enacted (P.L. 99-514).

H.R. 2248 (Mr. Wirth with cosponsors); passed House Oct. 6, 1986.

H.R. 2248, the Motor Vehicle Safety Authorization Act of 1986, was originally referred to the Committee on Energy and Commerce. On Sept. 17, 1986, H.R. 2248 was reported to the House with an amendment by the Energy and Commerce Committee. The bill was sequentially referred to the Ways and Means Committee for a period ending not later than Sept. 29, 1986, for consideration of such portions of the bill as fall within the committee's jurisdiction. H.R. 2248 was reported from the Committee on Ways and Means with amendments on Sept. 29, 1986. The House passed H.R. 2248 on Oct. 6, 1986. Subsequently, this passage was vacated and S. 863, a similar Senate-passed bill, was passed in lieu after being amended to contain the language of the House bill as passed. As of the date of adjournment of the 99th Congress, S. 863, as amended, was pending on the Senate calendar.

H.R. 2248 was sequentially referred to the Committee on Ways and Means from the Committee on Energy and Commerce because of the trade implications of sections 6 and 7 of such bill. The other provisions of H.R. 2248, which authorize appropriations for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) and make a number of changes relating to automotive safety, were not considered by the committee.

Sec. 6 amends the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 to provide for a comprehensive program to ensure that so-called gray market vehicles can meet the safety requirements of the law. The bill also provides that other requirements under the Safety Act, such as defect and recall notification requirements, are applicable to such vehicles. The provision gives the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) the responsibility to make the technical determinations necessary to ensure that only vehicles that can be modified to comply with standards are imported, and that in fact they are modified.

The committee adopted amendments which would: (1) permit private individuals, rather than just "registered importers" or converters, to import such vehicles under law as long as they used the services of "registered importers" in converting the vehicle to meet U.S. standards; (2) delete the "sunset provision" from the bill as reported by the Committee on Energy and Commerce; and (3) provide an exception for "antique or classic" vehicles.

Sec. 7 of H.R. 2248 amends the 1966 Safety Act relating to self-certification procedures for motor vehicles. Beginning 2 years after the date of enactment, imports from certain foreign countries must be accompanied by a declaration stating that the country of origin accepts the certification by U.S. manufacturers that their vehicles meet the corresponding safety standards of that country:

> (a) without further testing, inspection, or reporting requirements as a condition of sale or distribution, and
> (b) under procedures which impose no greater regulatory burden than is experienced by vehicles sold or distributed in the U.S. market.

These provisions would apply only to countries which exported more than 350,000 vehicles to the United States in 1984. The only country which appears to fall into this category is Japan.

In the absence of such a declaration, the Secretary of Transportation must verify that the imported vehicle meets Federal safety standards. Such verification must be made under a designated type approval system established by the Secretary, which is approximately comparable to the system in use by the country of origin. The administrative costs of the verification program are to be covered by reasonable fees established by the Secretary.

An amendment adopted by the committee requires the Secretary of Transportation, when considering whether to grant an exception to the application of the above provisions, to consult with the U.S. Trade Representative in determining whether the burdens of the bill's requirements outweigh the benefits of access to the foreign market by U.S. manufacturers.

H.R. 2268 (Mr. Wright with cosponsors); Public Law 99–47; app. June 11, 1985.

H.R. 2268, United States-Israel Free Trade Area Implementation Act of 1985, was reported to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on May 6, 1985, and passed the House on May 7, 1985. The Senate passed the bill on May 23, 1985. It was signed into law by the President on June 11, 1985, as Public Law 99-47. A summary of the act follows:

In title IV of the Trade and Tariff Act of 1984, the Congress authorized the President to negotiate a trade agreement with Israel providing for the elimination or reduction of tariff and nontariff barriers to products traded between the two countries, and to submit such an agreement, together with implementing legislation, to the Congress for approval under procedures for expedited consideration established in the Trade Act of 1974. On Apr. 22, 1985, representatives of the governments of the United States and Israel entered into an agreement to establish a free-trade area. On Apr. 29, 1985, the President transmitted this agreement to the Congress for approval, together with necessary implementing legislation and a statement of actions the administration will take to implement it.

The act approves the agreement, the proposed implementing legislation, and the statement of administrative action. The President is authorized to proclaim the elimination of tariffs on all products imported from Israel according to a schedule provided in the agreement. The act authorizes the President to modify tariffs as necessary to maintain the general balance of concessions provided in the agreement, and to submit for expedited congressional consideration any accelerated duty reductions the President may seek between 1990 and 1995 on the most import-sensitive articles. In addition to a number of technical changes to current law, the act also authorizes the President to lower, for Israeli products, the minimum value of U.S. Government procurements that may be bid upon by Israeli suppliers.

H.R. 2475 (Mr. Rostenkowski with cosponsors); Public Law 99–121; app. Oct. 11, 1985.

H.R. 2475 was reported to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on May 14, 1985, and passed the House on May 21, 1985.

H.R. 2475 was reported to the Senate by the Committee on Finance on June 13, 1985 and passed the Senate with amendments on June 26, 1985. The conference report was filed on Aug. 1, 1985, and was passed by the House on that date. The Senate passed the conference report on Oct. 1, 1985. The President signed H.R. 2475 into law on Oct. 11, 1985, as Public Law 99–121.

The act provides that the rate used to test the adequacy of stated interest on the first $2.8 million of seller financing is the lesser of 9 percent or 100 percent of the Applicable Federal Rate (AFR). The test rate for seller financed amounts over $2.8 million is 100 percent of the AFR. The 9 percent rate is not available for new property eligible for the investment tax credit. Any seller financing provided in connection with a sale-leaseback transaction must use a test rate of 110 percent of the AFR. The $2.8 million threshold amount will be indexed for inflation beginning after 1989. The AFR is to be determined on a monthly basis.

Under the act, both parties are generally required to account for interest in seller-financed transactions under the accrual method of accounting. If the seller-financing amount is $2 million or less, both parties may elect to account for interest on the note under the cash method. The $2 million amount will be indexed for inflation after 1989. This election is not available if the seller is either a dealer selling property in the ordinary course of business or an accrual basis taxpayer. If the election to use the cash method is made, any person who assumes the buyer's debt also must report interest on the debt on the cash method, and any person who is the transferee of the seller's note would report interest on the note in accordance with its normal accounting method.

These imputed interest rules do not apply to any loans assumed after June 30, 1985. For this purpose, the issuance of wraparound debt is not treated as an assumption. Certain existing New York State "work-out agreements" for low income housing are treated as an asumption. Further, for a loan by an employer to an employee to purchase a principal residence in connection with a job-related transfer, the AFR is the rate in effect on the date the purchase contract becomes binding.

The imputed interest provisions generally apply to sales or exchanges after June 30, 1985. The act also lengthens the recovery period for real property (other than low-income housing) from 18 years to 19 years, effective for property placed in service after May 8, 1985. The longer recovery period does not apply to property placed in service after May 8, 1985, where there was a binding contract to acquire the property, or construction was begun on the property before May 9, 1985, as long as the property is placed in service before Jan. 1, 1987. The changes in the required term of a lease necessary to qualify for the rehabilitation credit shall not apply to leases entered into before May 22, 1985, but only if the lessee signed the lease before May 17, 1985.

The act also provides that loans of $90,000 or less made by a taxpayer age 65 or older to a "continuing care facility" pursuant to a "continuing care contract", as defined in the act, are exempt from the below-market loan rules enacted in the Tax Reform Act of 1984. Because payments to these facilities are often refundable for a brief period, or on a declining pro rata basis over a somewhat longer period, the act provides that these payments are to be treated as advance payments of fees, and not loans. The act also exempts certain other elderly care centers.

H.R. 2672 (Mr. Guarini); Public Law 99–335; app. June 6, 1986.

H.R. 2672, the Federal Employees Retirement System Act of 1986, was referred to the Post Office and Civil Service Committee. The committee was discharged and on July 8, 1985, the bill passed the House. On Oct. 30, 1985, the Government Affairs Committee reported the bill to the Senate with no written report. H.R. 2672 passed the Senate with amendments on Nov. 7, 1985. The House requested a conference with the Senate on Nov. 19, 1985, and the Senate agreed to a conference on Nov. 21, 1985. The conference report was filed in the House on May 16, 1986, and in the Senate on May 19, 1986. The Senate agreed to the conference report on May 20, 1986, and the House on May 22, 1986.

H.R. 2672 was signed into law by the President on June 6, 1986, as Public Law 99–335.

Following are the provisions of the act which are within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means:

Sec. 101 of the act establishes a new Federal Employees Retirement System including in part a Federal Thrift Savings Plan, which was established according to the requirements of the Internal Revenue Code for thrift-savings plans subject to special nondiscrimination, withdrawal and other rules. Sec. 101 also establishes new benefits for retirees, spouses and survivors', which are all coordinated with the benefits Federal workers are entitled to under Social Security, to prevent inequitable windfalls.

H.R. 2817 (Mr. Eckart with cosponsors); passed House Dec. 10, 1985.

H. R. 2817, the Superfund Amendments of 1985, was referred to the Committees on Energy and Commerce, Public Works and Transportation, and Ways and Means. The bill was reported from the Committee on Energy and Commerce on Aug. 1, 1985. H.R. 2817 was referred to Merchant Marine and Fisheries and the Judiciary Committees on Aug. 1, 1985, for a period ending not later than 10 calendar days after either the Committee on Public Works and Transportation or the Committee on Ways and Means reports the bill, whichever occurs first.

H.R. 2817 was reported by the Committee on Ways and Means on Oct. 28, 1985; reported from the Committee on the Judiciary on Oct. 31, 1985; reported from the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries on Oct. 31, 1985, and reported from the Committee on Public Works and Transportation on Nov. 12, 1985.

As reported by the Committee on Ways and Means, title V of H.R. 2817 would raise $10 billion (not including recoveries) from 1986 through 1990 to fund Superfund hazardous waste cleanups, etc. The funding provisions of the bill as reported by the Committee on Ways and Means follows:

1. Petroleum tax of 3.85 cents per barrel ($1 billion).
2. Chemical feedstock tax on 43 organic and inorganic substances ($1.5 billion) including only prior-law list plus lead and coal-derived feedstocks and tax on certain imported feedstock derivatives ($0.1 billion).
3. Waste management tax ($1.5 billion) with exemption for waste water treatment, incineration, and treatment with equivalent standards, unless subject to a required but uncompleted corrective action order. Credit also would be allowed for certain recycling.
4. Multilevel excise tax of $8 per $10,000 on sale, lease or import of tangible personal property by manufacturer or importer with credit for previous tax paid ($4.5 billion).
5. Fuel excise tax of $\frac{2}{10}$ of 1 cent per gallon to fund cleanup and related costs of leaking underground storage tanks ($.85 billion).
6. Appropriation authorization of $180 million over the period. Deposit of recoveries, penalties, damage and interest.
7. Interest on Superfund balances ($0.3 billion).

Amounts in the Superfund would be available for expenditure for releases of hazardous substances into the environment. No funds would be available for costs relating to natural resources damage claims. The Post Closure Liability Trust Fund and tax would be repealed. Taxes previously paid and interest would be refunded.

An Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund would be established for cleanup of offshore oil spills funded by a petroleum tax of 1.3 cents per barrel ($0.3 billion). No expenditures would be allowed for certain damage claims or lost State and local tax revenues.

The House passed H.R. 2817 with amendments on Dec. 10, 1985. The House agreed to a substitute title V of the bill which would also raise $10 billion over 5 years (not including recoveries) from:

1. Petroleum tax on 11.9 cents per barrel ($3.1 billion).
2. Chemical feedstock tax on the same substances as the committee bill to raise $2 billion and a tax on imported derivatives ($0.1 billion).
3. Waste management tax with the same structure as the committee bill to raise $2 billion.
4. No multistage excise tax.
5. Same fuel excise tax for leaking underground storage tanks but also imposed on off highway fuel use (non-farm) ($0.85 billion).
6. Appropriation authorization of $1.6 billion.
7. Interest on Superfund balances ($0.546 billion). Amounts in the Superfund would be available for the same expenditures as in the committee bill. Post Closure Trust Fund and tax would be repealed with a refund. An Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund and tax would be established in the same manner as under the committee bill. Expenditures would be allowed for private property damages and loss of income. Also, a credit would be allowed for previous contributions to the Deepwater Port and Offshore Oil funds.

After the House passed H.R. 2817, it agreed to table H.R. 2817 and to agree to the Senate amendments to H.R. 2005, with amendments incorporating the House passed language of H.R. 2817. See H.R. 2005 for further discussion.

H.R. 3128 (Mr. Rostenkowski); Public Law 99-272; app. Apr. 7, 1986.

H.R. 3128, the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985, was reported to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on July 31, 1985. H.R. 3128 was sequentially referred to the Committees on Education and Labor and the Judiciary on July 31, 1985, for a period ending not later than Sept. 11, 1985. The bill was reported from the Committees on Education and Labor and the Judiciary on Sept. 11, 1985. The Committee on Energy and Commerce was discharged from consideration of the bill on Sept. 11, 1985. H.R. 3128 passed the House on Oct. 31, 1985.

H.R. 3128 passed the Senate amended on Nov. 14, 1985. On Dec. 5, 1985, the House agreed to the Senate amendment with an amendment substituting the text of both H.R. 3128 and H.R. 3500 as passed by the House. The conference report on H.R. 3128 was filed on Dec. 19, 1985. The Senate agreed to the conference report on Dec. 19, 1985. The House rejected the conference report on Dec. 19, 1985.

On the same day, the House receded from its amendment and concurred in the Senate amendment with an amendment (deleting the Superfund provisions). On Dec. 19, 1985, the Senate agreed to the House amendment with an amendment (reinstating the Superfund provisions). On Dec. 20, 1985, the House disagreed to the Senate amendment. The Senate insisted on its amendment and asked for a new conference on Dec. 20, 1985.

On Mar. 6, 1986, the House receded from its disagreement to the Senate amendment and agreed to the Senate amendment with an amendment. On Mar. 14, 1986, the Senate agreed to the House amendment with an amendment. On Mar. 18, 1986, the House disagreed to the Senate amendment, and on the same day the Senate insisted on its amendment. On Mar. 20, 1986, the House agreed to the Senate amendment.

H.R. 3128 was signed into law by the President on Apr. 7, 1986, as Public Law 99-272.

A summary of the act follows:

TITLE IX. MEDICARE, MEDICAID, AND MATERNAL AND CHILD HEALTH PROGRAMS

MEDICARE PROVISIONS

HOSPITAL REIMBURSEMENT

1. Rate of increase in payments for inpatient hospital services

Extends the current freeze on the prospective payment system (PPS) payment rates and on the cost limits for PPS-exempt hospital through Apr. 30, 1986.

For PPS hospitals, provides a one-half of 1 percent increase beginning May 1, 1986, and an increase no greater than the increase in the hospital market basket index in fiscal years 1987 and 1988.

For PPS-exempt hospitals, provides an increase in cost limits for fiscal year 1986 of $\frac{5}{24}$ths of 1 percent, effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after Oct. 1, 1985, but before Oct. 1, 1986.

2. 1-year extension of transition to national PPS rates

Extends the transition to national DRG rates for PPS hospitals, except for hospitals located in the State of Oregon, beginning with the eighth month of a hospital's cost reporting period which starts during fiscal year 1986, the blend of the PPS rate will be 45 percent hospital specific and 55 percent Federal. For cost-reporting periods, beginning during fiscal year 1987, the blend will be 25 percent hospital specific and 75 percent Federal.

Hospitals located in Oregon, beginning with the eighth month of a hospital's cost reporting period which starts during fiscal year 1986, the blend of PPS rate will be 75 percent Federal and 25 percent hospital specific. For cost reporting periods which start during fiscal year 1987 and thereafter, payment will be on a totally national basis.

3. Revised hospital wage index

A new hospital gross wage index will be implemented beginning May 1, 1986. The index will not be applied retroactively as current law would require.

4. Indirect teaching adjustment

Beginning May 1, 1986, the indirect teaching adjustment will be reduced to 8.1 percent. After the end of the disproportionate share adjustment (see below), the indirect teaching adjustment will rise to 8.7 percent. The revised indirect teaching adjustment could not be implemented before the disproportionate share adjustment.

5. Hospitals serving a disproportionate share of low income patients

The Secretary of Health and Human Services would be required, beginning May 1, 1986, to adjust the Federal portion of the DRG payments to hospitals serving a disproportionate share of low income patients. For large urban hospitals, the maximum adjustment would be 15 percent. Smaller adjustments would also be made for rural and small urban hospitals. A special adjustment would be available for certain hospitals that receive large payments from State and local governments for the care of indigent patients. CBO would be required to study the impact of the disproportionate share adjustments and the possible need for modifications. This adjustment expires Oct. 1, 1988.

6. Treatment of certain rural osteopathic hospitals as rural referral centers

This provision would allow osteopathic hospitals to meet the rural referral center standard if they had at least 3,000 discharges in a cost reporting period and if they meet all the other requirements, as specified by the Secretary, for rural referral center designation. This would be effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after the date of enactment.

7. Return on equity capital

Payments for return on equity capital for inpatient hospital services would be separated from payments for other elements of capital costs, and phased out. For hospital cost reporting periods beginning in fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989, return on equity payments will be reduced to 75, 50, and 25 percent respectively. Thereafter no return on equity payments would be made for inpatient hospital services. The rate of return on equity capital for skilled nursing facilities would be one times the rate of return on the hospital insurance trust fund. For other services of providers, return on equity, if paid, would be not in excess of that rate.

8. Continuation of Medicare reimbursement waivers for certain hospitals subject to regional reimbursement demonstrations

This provision would permit, with several new requirements, a local hospital reimbursement system that had operated under a waiver to continue if the State requested the continuation, the local project meets the requirements for the State that receives such a waiver, and is approved by the Secretary.

9. Four year test for State waivers for certain States

The test period under sec. 1886(c)(1)(C) would be extended for 12 months. This would only apply to those States that applied for, and were approved of, a waiver prior to Dec. 31, 1984. This provision would be effective upon enactment.

10. Special rule for treatment of depreciation and capital indebtedness for donations of State property to nonprofit corporations

In cases of hospitals only that are donated by a State government (donor) to nonprofit corporations (donee), the basis from which capital-related costs to the donee is calculated, would be the donor's historical cost (net of depreciation). This provision would be effective as if it had been included in DEFRA.

11. Report on impact of outlier and transfer policy on rural hospitals

The Secretary of Health and Human Services would be required to review, and report to Congress by Oct. 1, 1986, the impact of the outlier and transfer policies under the PPS system as they relate to rural hospitals, particularly those with less than 100 beds.

12. Information on impact of PPS payments on hospitals

The Secretary of Health and Human Services would make available to the Prospective Payment Assessment Commission (ProPAC), the Congressional Budget Office, the Congressional Research Service, and the General Accounting Office, the most current information on the payments being made under the PPS system to individual hospitals. The provision would be effective upon enactment.

13. Indirect teaching adjustment related to independent clinic activities

This provision would clarify that the split payment provision was only intended to provide temporary billing accommodation for certain hospitals. Part A services billed under a waiver granted under this authority will be paid at 100 percent of the reasonable charge and the entity billing for such services under part B must accept such payment as payment in full.

14. Payments to sole community hospitals

The Secretary would be required to provide an adjustment to the PPS rates to reasonably compensate sole community hospitals that experience a significant increase in operating costs in cost reporting periods after the base period due to the addition of new inpatient facilities. The Secretary would be required to complete a study by Jan. 1, 1987, of the effects of this provision. The provision would be effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after Oct. 1, 1983, and would expire on Sept. 30, 1989.

15. Sense of the Senate with respect to inpatient hospital deductible

This provision would express the sense of the Senate that the Committee on Finance should report legislation on the annual increase in the deductible so that it is more consistent with annual increases in Medicare payments to hospitals.

16. Promulgation of inpatient hospital deductible

The Secretary would be required to publish a notice of the projected hospital deductible increase by September 15 of each year. This provision would be effective for calendar years after 1985.

17. ProPAC expansion

The ProPAC membership would be increased by two, to be appointed no later than 60 days after the enactment. It is the intent of the conferees that these two members represent nurses and rural hospitals. This provision would be effective upon enactment.

18. Hospice

Deletes the sunset of the hospice benefit under Medicare and incre daily payment rates by $10.

19. Late enrollment under part A

Reduces premium penalties for late enrollment under part A of Me care (hospital insurance).

20. Medicare coverage of, and application of hospital insurance tax to, ne hired State and local government employees

See revenue section of summary, number 2.

21. Responsibilities of Medicare hospitals in emergency cases

Medicare hospitals with emergency departments would be required provide appropriate medical screening for all patients at the emerge department to determine whether medical emergencies exist, to prov necessary stabilizing treatment, and not to transfer unstabilized patie unless the medical benefit outweighs the risks. Penalties would incl loss of Medicare participation, and civil money penalties. Injured prov ers and individuals could bring a civil action in appropriate Fede district court for damages and other equitable relief as appropriate. T courts are directed, on the issue of damages, to apply the law of the St in which the violating hospital is located.

22. Access to skilled nursing facilities

Skilled nursing facilities with less than 1,500 days of care per year Medicare patients would have the opportunity to receive payment ba on a flat formula, thus avoiding submission of a complex cost repo

23. Limitation on direct medical education payments

Limits payments for direct medical education on a per resident ba Provides payment for training years through those required for bo eligibility, plus 1 year, not in excess of a total of 5 years at 100 perce Beginning July 1, 1986, payment amounts for years beyond these lim will be phased down—first to 75 percent and then to 50 percent (t permanent rate). For hospital cost reporting periods beginning after Ju 1, 1985, a 1-percent increase will be allowed in direct medical educati per resident payments. For cost reporting periods beginning on or af July 1, 1986, increases will be determined by applying the increase in t CPI-U to the amounts allowed in the previous cost reporting peri Foreign medical graduates would be required to pass both days FMGEMS examination in order to qualify for Medicare reimburseme

24. Moratorium on Medicare lab payment demonstration

Provides for a moratorium on competitive bidding demonstrations f laboratory services until after Dec. 31, 1986.

25. Extend home health waiver of liability

Requires the Secretary to maintain the current 2.5 percent waiver liability policy for home health agencies from the date of enactment un 12 months after claims processing for home health agencies has be consolidated into 10 regional intermediaries (as required under curre law).

26. Studies relating to physical therapists and other professionals

Requires the Secretary to conduct studies relating to certain Medica requirements affecting physical therapists.

27. Extension of working aged provisions to individuals over age 69

Extends the working aged provision to persons over age 69. Curre law requires employers to offer their employees aged 65-69 the sa group health plans offered to employees under age 65. Where employe elect such coverage, Medicare becomes the secondary payer.

28. Health maintenance organization and competitive medical plans

Clarifies the financial responsibility for payment when a beneficiary an inpatient of a PPS hospital on the effective date of his HMO/CM enrollment. Specifies disenrollment procedures. Requires HMO/CMPs submit marketing materials to the Secretary for review and approv Requires the Secretary to publish AAPCC rates by September 7, prece ing the year concerned. Prohibits HMO/CMPs which were under a de onstration to obtain a waiver of the 50/50 membership requirement for noncontiguous sites.

29. Prohibition of administrative merger of renal disease networks with other organizations

Prohibits the Secretary from merging networks with PROs or other entities without prior approval from the Secretary. Permits consolidation of networks to no fewer than 14.

30. Extension of certain municipal health services demonstration projects

Requires the Secretary to extend for 3 years, demonstration projects in Cincinnati, Milwaukee, San Jose, and Baltimore.

31. Technical corrections

The bill includes technical corrections.

32. Increase audit effort and medical claim review

Requires budgets of Medicare intermediaries and carriers to be supplemented by $105 million for fiscal years 1986-1988 to be used exclusively for provider cost audits and medical necessity reviews.

33. Sense of the Senate regarding liver transplants

Expresses the sense of the Senate that, given available information, liver transplant services are to be covered under Medicare and that the Secretary reconsider coverage of liver transplant services for individuals over 18 years of age.

34. Physician payments

Extends existing payment rates, and the freeze on nonparticipating physicians' actual charges through Apr. 30, 1986. In April 1986, physicians will be given an opportunity to change their participation status for the 8-month period beginning May 1, 1986. Future update and participation cycles will begin on January 1 of each year, beginning in 1987.

Physicians covered under participation agreements on Feb. 1, 1986, will receive updates in their customary and prevailing charges. Physicians who participated in fiscal year 1985, but are not participating for the period beginning May. 1, 1986, will have their customaries updated. For physicians participating during neither period, the existing freeze on customary and prevailing charges is extended through Dec. 31, 1986. The freeze on actual charges is extended for all nonparticipating physicians for the same period.

The customary and prevailing charge screen updates applied on May. 1, 1986, for participating physicians are those which would have occurred on Oct. 1, 1985, except for the postponements provided for under Public Law 99-107, Public Law 99-155, Public Law 99-181, Public Law 99-189, and Public Law 99-201. In order to compensate participating physicians for the delay, the Medicare economic index will be increased by a one-time 1 percentage point increase. It is not permanently built into the prevailing charge levels.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1987, nonparticipating physicians will be subject to the prevailing charge limits applied to participating physicians during the preceding participation period. The bill includes additional incentives for participating physicians.

35. Physician payment assessment group and development of relative value scale

Provides for the establishment of an independent Physician Payment Review Commission responsible for physician payment issues. The Secretary is required to develop a relative value scale that establishes a numerical relationship among physicians' services paid for under part B.

36. Part B premium

Extends for 1 year (calendar year 1988) the existing temporary provision requiring beneficiary premiums to be calculated to yield revenues equal to 25 percent of part B costs.

37. Inherent reasonableness; customary charges for certain former hospital compensated physicians

Requires the Secretary to publish regulations: (a) describing factors to be used in determining cases (of particular items and services) where application of the reasonable charge methodology results in charges that are not inherently reasonable; and (b) specifying factors to be considered in establishing reasonable charges that are reasonable and equitable. The bill specifies calculations for customary charges for certain former hospital-compensated physicians.

38. Payments for assistants at surgery for certain cataract operations

Excludes coverage for assistants at surgery unless prior to the surgery, the appropriate PRO or carrier (whichever is designated by the Secretary) has approved the use of such assistant.

39. Limitation on Medicare payments for post-cataract surgery patients

Requires each carrier to: (a) provide for separate payment determinations for prosthetic lenses and related professional services, and (b) not recognize as reasonable amounts exceeding inherent reasonableness guidelines.

40. Demonstration of preventive health services under Medicare

Requires the Secretary to establish a demonstration program under the direction of schools of public health or medical schools with preventive health departments accredited by the Council on Education for Public Health.

41. Payment for clinical laboratory services

Provides that the annual update in fee schedules will occur on January 1 of each year beginning in 1987. The bill provides that ceilings are to be set for each test and applied nationwide. The ceilings will be set at 115 percent of the median fee for the respective tests beginning July 1, 1986 and 110 percent of the median beginning on Jan. 1, 1987. Beginning Jan. 1, 1987, Medicare payments for laboratory tests billed by physicians would conform with the payment method for independent labs, payment would equal 100 percent of the fee schedule.

42. Second opinion

Requires Peer Review Organizations (PROs) to perform 100 percent pre-procedure review on at least 10 elective surgical procedures whether the procedure is performed on an inpatient or outpatient basis.

The bill provides that a PRO could approve or disapprove a precedure as reasonable and necessary without requiring a second opinion. In addition, the PRO could require a second opinion and allow the beneficiary to decide among conflicting opinions. The Secretary would develop appropriate measures to ensure that second opinions are only required if needed to resolve outstanding uncertainties as to the medical necessity of the procedure.

43. Extension of On-Lok waiver

Requires the Secretary to extend the Medicare waivers for risk-sharing On-Lok demonstration upon their expiration and, if the State of California applies for an extension of related Medicaid waivers, to approve the State's application.

44. Removal of comment prohibition by Medicare and Social Security Actuaries relating to economic assumptions Permits Medicare and Social Security actuaries to comment on the economic assumption underlying the Trustees' report.

45. Extension of GAO reporting date

Extends to May 1, 1986, the reporting date for the GAO report on Medicare contracting.

46. Allow greater HMO membership on PRO boards

Gives Peer Review Organizations applicants that have more than one HMO board member the same status as other physician organizations.

47. Peer Review Organization reimbursement

Specifies that fiscal year 1986 is the base year against which aggregate PRO expenditures are compared and deletes the section specifying that reimbursement be set at a level which reflects peer review rates in fiscal year 1982 (adjusted for inflation). Reimbursement is to be made to PROs on a monthly basis.

48. PRO review of HMOs

Requires PRO review of Medicare services furnished to beneficiaries by HMOs and CMPs under a risk-sharing contract. The provision is effective Jan. 1, 1987.

49. Substitute review pending termination of PRO contract

Authorizes the Secretary to assign review authority to another PRO, intermediary, or carrier after the PRO has been notified on an intent to terminate its contract because the PRO is not performing effectively and prior to the time when a new PRO contract is awarded.

50. Authorize Peer Review Organizations to deny payment for substandard care

Authorizes PROs to deny payment for care of substandard quality identified through criteria developed pursuant to guidelines established by the Secretary.

TITLE X. PRIVATE HEALTH INSURANCE PROGRAMS

1. Private health insurance coverage

Denies the business tax deduction to employers with 20 or more employees who fail to provide widowed, divorced, and Medicare ineligible spouses and their dependent children the option to continue in the employer health plan for 3 years if they pay 102 percent of the group premium. Grants unemployed workers and part-time workers the same option but for only 18 months of coverage.

TITLE XI. SINGLE-EMPLOYER PLAN TERMINATION INSURANCE SYSTEM AMENDMENTS

The act increases the annual per participant premium that a private defined benefit plan generally must pay to the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC) from $2.60 to $8.50. The PBGC would be required to study the premium structure and make any recommendations for change, if necessary. The agreement also would modify employer liability upon plan terminations, the funding standard requirements, and special enforcement rules.

TITLE XII. INCOME-SECURITY AND RELATED PROGRAMS

SOCIAL SECURITY

1. The act contains a number of minor and technical changes that amend title II of the Social Security Act to provide for needed minor improvements and technical corrections to various sections of the act. While some provisions would result in minor extensions of benefit protection, most sections correct unintended results of recent amendments to the Social Security Act, primarily the 1980 Disability Amendments, and the Social Security Amendments of 1983.

The major provisions of the section extend the waiver authority under which the Social Security Administration may conduct vocational rehabilitation demonstration projects; substitute a special disability Advisory Council for the general quadrennial advisory council required by law to be appointed in 1985; extend the current law treatment of adopted grandchildren to adopted great-grandchildren; provide relief for disabled widows who were inadvertently made ineligible for SSI and Medicaid benefits by an increase in their social security benefits in the 1983 Social Security Amendments; and correct a technical error in the Social Security Amendments of 1983 which resulted in discriminatory tax treatment of benefits received by citizens of American Samoa. The section also contains several minor clerical and technical changes to clarify congressional intent in other areas, including reentitlement to benefits of childhood disability beneficiaries, the disability family maximum benefit computation for working auxiliary beneficiaries, and deeming January checks paid in December because of a holiday to be paid in January for purposes of taxation and reserve fund calculations.

2. The act excludes from the definition of wages for Social Security purposes, the amounts received by Federal judges who meet the criteria for retirement on salary (e.g., age 65 with 15 years of service or 70 with 10 of service), who retire, and who perform active duty. The effect of this exclusion would be to exempt their pay from Social Security taxes and to preclude it from being counted for Social Security earnings test purposes. This provision makes permanent the exemption for senior status Federal judges that was provided on a temporary basis as a result of Public Law 98–118.

3. The act provides that when (1) a payment is made to a decea individual by means of direct deposit; (2) such payment is credited by financial organization to an account jointly owned by the deceased in vidual and another person; and (3) such other person is (a) entitled to Social Security benefit based on the same wages and self-employme income as the deceased person for the month immediately preceding month in which the deceased person died; or (b) such other person is surviving spouse of the deceased person and was eligible for an S payment (or Federally administered State supplement) as an eligi spouse (including either member of an eligible couple) in the month which the deceased individual died; such payment shall be treated as overpayment to the surviving individual.

The act also allows the State of Connecticut, if the Governor requests, to cover State police hired on or after May 8, 1984, witho conducting a referendum.

SSI PROGRAM

1. Amendments relating to State supplementation under SSI program

Under current law, when there is an increase in the Federal SSI benef States which supplement the Federal benefit are required to "pa through" the Federal increase by not decreasing the State supplemen
The law stipulates two methods for determining whether this requireme has been met. The act establishes an additional method for determini compliance.

2. Third-party liability collections (SSI eligibilty)

Under current law, Medicaid recipients are required, as a condition eligibility for Medicaid, to assign their rights to medical support paymen to the State. The Senate amendment would have made this a condition
SSI eligibility as well. The act does not include this provision.

*3. Preservation of benefit status for disabled widows and widowers who lo
SSI benefits because of 1983 changes in actuarial reduction formula*

The act requires that those low-income widows and widowers who lo
SSI eligibility because of the January 1984 disability benefit increase ma file an application for protection with the State within 15 months aft enactment and be deemed to be receiving SSI benefits for the purpose
Medicaid eligibility.

AFDC, ADOPTION ASSISTANCE AND FOSTER CARE

1. AFDC and Medicaid quality control

The act prohibits collection of AFDC or Medicaid fiscal sanctions for years after enactment. During the 2-year moratorium, the Department
Health and Human Services and the National Academy of Sciences woul conduct a study to examine how best to operate the quality contr systems to improve administration and obtain reasonable data on which base fiscal sanctions.

2. Recovery of excess funding for incomplete automated AFDC systems

Under current law, a Federal matching rate of 90 percent is paid for th development and installation of automated claims processing and informa tion retrieval systems for AFDC. The act requires the Secretary of Healt and Human Services to recover 40 percent of the amounts spent o automated systems from any State that fails to implement the system b the implementation date established in the approved planning documen

3. Counting certain payments to Indians as income

Under current law, per capita payments to Indian tribal members ar generally disregarded by Federal benefit programs. The act directs th General Accounting Office to conduct a study of the extent, size, natur and frequency of payments to Indians from various funds which are base on their status as a member of an Indian tribe or organization. The stud would also examine the treatment of these payments under the Soci
Security Act and other means-tested programs.

4. Third-party liability collections (AFDC eligibility)

Under current law, Medicaid recipients are required, as a condition
Medicaid eligibility, to assign their rights to medical support payments the State. The act requires the assignment as an AFDC condition of eligibility. Errors resulting from the application of this policy are excluded for fiscal sanctions purposes.

5. Provisions relating to Medicaid coverage under the adoption assistance and foster care programs

The act removes the need for an actual adoption assistance payment to be made for the adopted child to be deemed eligible for Medicaid. If an adoption assistance agreement under Title IV-E is in effect, the child would be deemed eligible for Medicaid.

The act also provides that for purposes of Medicaid eligibility, children with respect to whom there is an adoption assistance agreement in effect under Title IV-E and foster care children for whom payments are being made under Title IV-E would be eligible for Medicaid from the State in which the child resides.

Finally, the act establishes Medicaid eligibility at the time a child is placed for adoption in accordance with applicable State law and for whom an adoption assistance agreement is in effect, whether or not a final adoption decree has been issued.

6. Extension of ceiling on AFDC foster care funds and of State authority to transfer funds to child welfare services

The act extends through fiscal year 1987, the ceilings on AFDC foster care funds when annual child welfare services appropriations equal at least $266 million. The act also extends formulas for calculating each State's ceiling and provisions allowing States to transfer unused foster care funds to child welfare services.

7. Extension of authority for ADFC foster care payments on behalf of children placed in foster care under a voluntary placement agreement

The act extends through fiscal year 1987, provisions allowing payment for children placed in foster care under a voluntary agreement.

8. Independent living initiatives

The act authorizes $45 million each for fiscal years 1987 and 1988 for State entitlement programs to help AFDC foster care children age 16 and over prepare for independent living.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

1. Supplemental unemployment compensation for certain individuals

The act allows certain individuals in the State of Pennsylvania to collect the remainder of their FSC benefits, notwithstanding the requirement in Public Law 99-15, that such benefits be collected in consecutive weeks. For these persons, collection of FSC benefits was interrupted because they were called up in the National Guard to provide services during a major disaster.

2. Recovery of overpayments

Under current law, States may recover overpayments of unemployment benefits by withholding subsequent benefits if the overpayment and the subsequent payment are funded from the State's own unemployment trust fund. The act allows reciprocal withholding of overpaid unemployment benefits regardless of the funding source.

Title XIII. Revenues, Trade and Related Programs

TRADE ADJUSTMENT ASSISTANCE

Worker Adjustment Assistance

1. Petitions

Sec. 221 of the Trade Act permits any group of workers or their authorized representative to file a petition with the Secretary of Labor for a certification of eligibility to apply for TAA.

The act provides explicitly that workers in agricultural firms or subdivisions may petition for TAA certification. The provision is effective upon date of enactment.

2. Group eligibility requirements

a. Agricultural workers.—Under present law any group of workers may be certified eligible to apply for TAA if they meet the statutory criteria.

The act provides explicitly that workers in agricultural firms or subdivisions may be certified eligible to apply for TAA. The provision is effective upon date of enactment.

b. Component parts, services.—Under sec. 222 of the Trade Act, the Secretary of Labor must certify a group of workers as eligible to apply for TAA benefits if he determines (1) a significant number or proportion of the workers in a firm or subdivision have been laid off or are threatened with layoff; (2) sales and/or production of the firm or subdivision have decreased absolutely; and (3) increased imports of articles like or directly competitive with articles produced by the firm or subdivision "contributed importantly" to the layoffs and sales/production declines.

The act expands certification eligibility to encompass those workers in firms that supply essential parts or essential services for articles produced by directly affected firms. The provision is effective 1 year after the import fee is imposed.

3. Qualifying requirements for workers

a. Cash assistance.—Under sec. 231 of the Trade Act, individual certified workers who meet the qualifying requirements on pre-layoff employment are entitled to weekly cash payments (trade readjustment allowances) equal to the amount of their unemployment compensation (UC) after they have first exhausted all UC for the balance of 52 weeks of unemployment. Workers may receive up to 26 additional weeks (maximum of 78 weeks) of TRA benefits while in approved training.

The act adds a new requirement for workers to qualify for TRA payments:

1. The worker must be enrolled in a training program approved under sec. 236(a); or
2. The worker must have completed such approved training after layoff.

Such workers would be entitled to up to the balance of 78 weeks of TRA benefits.

Alternatively, a worker would be entitled to TRA for up to the balance of 52 rather than the balance of 78 weeks if the worker has received a written Statement after layoff from the Secretary of Labor certifying that he was unable to approve a training program under sec. 236(a) (State or State agency responsibility under cooperative agreements). The Secretary is to certify workers for whom it is not feasible or appropriate to approve a training program. He must submit an annual report to the Ways and Means and Finance Committees on the number of certifications.

If the Secretary determines the worker has failed to begin or ceased to participate in the training program without justifiable cause, no TRA may be paid to the worker until be begins or resumes participation.

No TRA would be paid to the worker for any week he receives on-the-job training.

The provision is effective 1 year after the import fee is imposed.

b. Employment requirements.—Under present law an individual worker must have at least 26 weeks of employment at weekly wages of $30 or more in adversely affected employment during the 52 weeks preceding layoff to be eligible for TRA payments. Qualifying 26 weeks may include:

Up to 3 weeks of employer-authorized leave (e.g., vacation, sickness) or to serve as fulltime union representative;

Up to 7 weeks of disability covered by workmen's compensation; or

Up to 7 weeks combining disability and leave, of which not more than 3 weeks may be employer-authorized or union leave.

The act increases the maximum number of weeks that may be counted as weeks of employment toward the 26-week minimum preceding layoff from 3 to 7 for employer authorized or union leave; from 7 to 26 weeks for disability; and from 7 to 26 weeks combining disability and leave, of which authorized leave cannot exceed 7 rather than the present 3 weeks. The provision is effective 1 year after the import fee is imposed.

4. Limitations on trade readjustment allowances

Under sec. 233(a)(2) of the Trade Act, a worker may collect basic TRA only during the 52-week period beginning with the week immediately following the first week covered by the certification with respect to which the worker has first exhausted all rights to regular unemployment compensation.

The act extends the collection period for basic TRA benefits from 52 to 104 weeks following exhaustion of regular unemployment compensation. The provision is effective upon date of enactment.

5. Training

a. Approval standards.—Under sec. 236(a) of the Trade Act, if the Secretary of Labor determines that (1) there is no suitable employment available for an eligible worker; (2) the worker would benefit from appropriate training; (3) there is a reasonable expectation of employment after such training; (4) training approved by the Secretary is available; and (5) the worker is qualified to undertake and complete such training, then the Secretary may approve training for the worker.

The act adds the stipulation that a "reasonable expectation of employment" does not require that employment opportunities for a worker be available or offered immediately upon the completion of training. It also clarifies that "no suitable employment available" criterion refers to adversely affected workers, and amends "training approved by the Secretary" criterion to be "reasonably" available. The provision is effective upon date of enactment.

b. Training approval.—Under present law, the Secretary may, but is not required, to, approve training for a certified worker if the five criteria are met. Upon approval the worker is entitled to have the costs of training paid by the program.

The act requires approval of training for a certified worker if the five criteria for approval are met. The provision is effective 1 year after the import fee is imposed.

c. Types of training.—Under sec. 236(a) of the Trade Act, training approved by the Secretary may be available from either governmental agencies or private sources, insofar as possible on-the-job.

The act includes a list of types of training that may be approved, including but not limited to, on-the-job training provided by States or approved by a private industry council under the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA), or any other training program approved by the Secretary.

The act also amends sec. 247 to include a definition of "on-the-job training." The provision is effective upon date of enactment.

d. Training direct payment or voucher.—Under present law, if training is approved, the worker is entitled to have payment of costs of training paid on his behalf by the Secretary of Labor, through reimbursements to the States under cooperative agreements.

The act directs the Secretary of Labor to pay training costs, up to $4,000, either directly or through a new voucher mechanism, for each worker for whom training has been approved. (There may be one or more vouchers to a qualified worker with respect to a particular separation.) Prohibits double Federal reimbursement of training costs. The provision is effective 1-year after the import fee is imposed.

e. On-the-job training.—Sec. 236(a) of the Trade Act requires the Secretary to provide or assure training on-the-job insofar as possible, including related education necessary for occupational skills.

The act applies the provisions of sec. 143(b) of JTPA to TAA training (provisions for no displacement or infringement of promotion opportunities of currently employed workers, etc.), permits payment of on-the-job training only if the training is not for the same occupation from which the worker was laid off and certified, the employer certifies he will employ the worker for at least 26 weeks after training completion if the worker desires and the employer does not have due cause to terminate, and the employer has not violated sec. 143(b) of the JTPA or any other certification of paid on-the-job training. The position is effective upon date of enactment.

6. Job search allowances

Under sec. 237 of the Trade Act, the Secretary of Labor may provide reimbursement for 90 percent of the costs of necessary job search by a certified worker, up to $800, if the worker has been laid off, cannot reasonably be expected to secure suitable employment within his commuting area, and applies within specified time limits.

The act adds a benefit of reimbursement for necessary expenses of a job search program approved by the Secretary, available to any certified worker regardless of whether the worker has enrolled in an approved training program or meets the eligibility criteria for existing job search allowances. A reimbursable job search program includes either a job search workshop (short seminar to provide participants with knowledge e.g., interview techniques, resume writing, to enable them to find jobs) or a job finding club (the same except it includes a 1 to 2 week period of supervised activity in which participants attempt to obtain jobs). The provision is effective 1 year after the import fee is imposed.

7. Agreements with States

Sec. 239(a) of prior law, authorizes the Secretary of Labor to enter into cooperative agreements with any State or any State agency to receive applications, make payments to TAA benefits, and afford adversely affected workers who apply for payments testing, counseling, referral to training, and placement services.

The act adds requirements that each cooperating State agency (1) advise each adversely affected worker to apply for training at the time the worker applies for TRA benefits; and (2) within 60 days after the worker applies for training, to interview and review with that worker suitable training opportunities available under sec. 236. The provision is effective upon date of enactment.

The act also adds a provision that agreements may be made with one or more State or local agencies, including State employment service agencies, State agencies, carrying out the JTPA dislocated worker program, or any other State or local agency (e.g., private industry council) administering job training or related programs. The provision supersedes the previous provision 1-year after the import fee is imposed.

Firm Adjustment Assistance

8. Petitions and determinations

a. Agricultural firms.—Sec. 251 of the Trade Act permits any firm or its representative to file a petition with the Secretary of Commerce and be certified eligible to apply for TAA if they meet the statutory criteria.

The act provides explicitly that any agricultural firm may petition and be certified for TAA eligibility (conforms to the amendment for agricultural workers). The provision is effective upon date of enactment.

b. Component parts, services.—Under sec. 251 of the Trade Act, the Secretary of Commerce must certify a firm eligible to apply for TAA benefits if (1) a significant number or proportion of the workers in such firm have been laid off or are threatened with layoff; (2) sales and/or production of such firm have decreased absolutely; and (3) increased imports of articles like or directly competitive with articles produced by that firm contributed importantly to the layoffs and sales/production declines.

The act expands certification eligibility to encompass firms that supply essential parts or essential services to directly affected firms (conforms to the amendment for workers). The provision is effective 1 year after the import fee is imposed.

c. Significant product lines.—Under present criteria, total sales and/or production criterion if sales and/or production of an article that accounts for not less than 25 percent of the firm's total sales or production decline absolutely during the 12 months preceding the most recent 12-month period for which data are available. The provision is efffective upon date of enactment.

9. Financial assistance

Sec. 252 of the Trade Act, authorizes the Secretary of Commerce to provide a certified firm either technical assistance, financial assistance, or both, if he determines that the firm's application (including an economic adjustment proposal) meets the statutory approval criteria.

Financial assistance under sec. 254 consists of direct loans and/or loan guarantees to be used for fixed asset investment or as working capital to enable the firm to implement its adjustment proposal. If the Secretary determines that the required funds are not available from the firm's own resources or the private capital market and that there is a reasonable assurance of repayment, he may provide direct loans up to $1 million per firm and/or loan guarantees up to $3 million per firm.

The act eliminates financial assistance, i.e., authority to provide any new direct loans or loan guarantees; conforming amendment eliminates approval criterion that the firm has no reasonable access to financing through the private capital market. The provision is effective upon date of enactment.

10. Technical assistance

a. Types of technical assistance.—Sec. 252(b) of the Trade Act, authorizes technical assistance to certified firms to implement acceptable adjustment proposals, sec. 252(c) authorizes technical assistance to certified firms to help them prepare adjustment proposals. Sec. 253 authorizes technical assistance to assist firms in preparing petitions for certification, as well as to certified firms to prepare and implement adjustment proposals.

The act amends sec. 252 to clarify that three forms of technical assistance are available to firms, consistent with sec. 253. The provision is effective upon date of enactment.

b. Matching requirements.—Sec. 253(b)(2) of the Trade Act, limits the U.S. Government share to 75 percent of the cost of technical assistance provided by private individuals, firms or institutions.

The act removes the 75 percent limitation on the U.S. Government share of the cost of technical assistance to assist firms in preparing petitions for certification. The matching share requirement would continue to apply to assistance for preparing and implementing economic adjustment proposals. The provison is effective upon date of enactment.

Extension of Trade Adjustment Assistance

11. Termination date

Sec. 285 of the Trade Act, as amended in 1983, terminated the worker and firm TAP programs on Sept. 30, 1985. Four Public Laws extended the program until Dec. 19, 1985.

The act extends the worker and firm TAA programs for 6 years from the date of enactment.

Funding of Trade Adjustment Assistance

12. Program funding

Under present law, worker and firm TAA are funded from general revenues.

The act imposes a small fee on all imports into the United States, up to a maximum 1 percent, to be set at a uniform ad valorem rate sufficient to provide the necessary funding for the TAA programs and for allowable payment of drawbacks and refunds of such fee. The fee is to be assessed regardless of any duty-free treatment accorded articles under other provisions of law, except on most articles treated as duty-free under schedule 8 of the Tariff Schedules of the United States and entries valued at less than $1,000. One year after the imposition of the import fee, the entire program would be funded by the fee, rather than by general revenues.

The provision is effective on the earlier of two years after enactment or 30 days after the President certifies that GATT allows import fees.

Upon enactment, the President is directed to undertake negotiations to achieve changes in the GATT to allow any country to impose such a small uniform fee on all imports to fund any program which assists adjustment to import competition. The President must report to Congress on the progress of negotiations within 6 months of enactment and submit a Statement of certification on the date the GATT allows such a fee.

13. Authorization of appropriations

Secs. 245 and 256(b) of the Trade Act, authorize to be appropriated to the Secretaries of Labor and Commerce such sums as may be necessary to carry out their program functions.

The act authorizes appropriations of such sums as necessary for worker and firm TAA for fiscal year 1986 through the earlier of 1 year after imposition of the import fee or fiscal year 1989.

14. Trust Fund

The act establishes within the Treasury of the United States a Trade Adjustment Assistance Trust Fund. The Secretary of the Treasury is to transfer to the Trust Fund, from the General Fund of the Treasury, amounts equivalent to receipts from the import fee at least quarterly, adjusted for any shortfall or overage in previous transfers. The Secretary must submit an annual report to the Ways and Means and Finance Committees on the actual and expected financial condition and operation of the Fund. The Secretary must invest such portion of the Fund which is not required to meet current withdrawals; interest and proceeds would be credited to the Fund. The provision is effective on the same date as the import fee is imposed.

15. Annual appropriations

Under present law, the program is funded from general revenues under annual appropriations bills for the Departments of Labor and Commerce.

Under the act, payments out of the Trust Fund would be subject to the annual appropriations process.

16. Taxation of training benefits

Sec. 85 of the Internal Revenue Code provides a limited exclusion from gross income for amounts received by a taxpayer that are in the nature of unemployment compensation. There is no express provision exempting training cost from income.

The act expressly excludes payments of training costs or vouchers entirely from gross income for purposes of income taxation. The provision is effective for taxable years ending on or after 1 year after imposition of the import fee.

Authorization of Appropriations for Trade and Customs Agencies

17. U.S. International Trade Commission

Sec. 330(e) of the Tariff Act of 1930, restricts sums to be appropriated to the ITC to the amount authorized by law; no authorization exists beyond Oct. 1, 1985. (H.R. 2965, as agreed to in conference, appropriates $28,600,000 for fiscal year 1986, including not to exceed $2,500 for official reception and representation expenses).

The act authorizes appropriations of $28,901,000 for fiscal year 1986 (including for rental of conference rooms), of which not to exceed $2,500 may be used, subject to the chairman's approval, for reception and entertainment expenses.

18. U.S. Customs Service

Sec. 301 of the Customs Procedural Reform and Simplification Act of 1978, requires annual enactment of an authorization of appropriation to the U.S. Customs Service.

The act authorizes for fiscal year 1986, appropriations for salaries and expenses of the U.S. Customs Service of an amount not to exceed $772,141,000 of which $53,500,000 is for the operation of the air interdiction program and not to exceed $14,000,000 is for the implementation of "Operation Exodus" and related programs. This authorization level not only would restore the proposed cut of 887 positions, but would also allocate $27.9 million for the hiring of 800 new frontline customs officers.

The act also includes provisions relating to the use of savings from administrative consolidation, criteria for closing ports, the Customs air program, consolidation of drawback liquidation centers, sureties on customs bonds, appropriations for the Customs Forfeiture Fund, and user fees at certain small airports.

Under the act, the application of users fees at certain small airports provided for in sec. 236 of the Trade and Tariff Act of 1984 to additional airports and continuing a provision requiring Customs to notify the committees before taking certain actions. The conferees also agreed to continue the funding for new Customs personnel in fiscal years 1987 and 1988.

19. U.S. Trade Representative

Sec. 141(f) of the Trade Act of 1974, authorizes to be appropriated to the USTR such sums as are provided by law (H.R. 2965, as passed by the House and Senate, appropriates $13,158,000 for fiscal year 1986, of which not to exceed $72,000 is available for official reception and representation expenses).

The act authorizes appropriations of $13,582,000 for fiscal year 1986, of which not to exceed $80,000 may be used for official entertainment and representation expenses.

Customs Fees

The U.S. Customs Service does not currently have the general legal authority to collect fees for the processing of persons, aircraft, vehicles, vessels, and merchandise arriving in or departing from the United States. They do, however, have authority to charge fees under certain limited circumstances, such as when they are providing services (such as preclearance of passengers and private aircraft) which are of special benefit to a particular individual. They also have the authority to assess fees on operators of bonded warehouses and foreign trade zones and on the entry of vessels into ports and are authorized to receive reimbursement from carriers for overtime for services provided during nonbusiness hours and reimbursement from local authorities for services provided to certain small airports.

The act establishes the following fee structure to cover the costs of customs' processing of arrivals of:

Commercial vessels (100 net tons or more)	$397
Commercial trucks	5
(Total fees not to exceed $100 per truck in calendar year)
Railroad cars	5
(Total fees not to exceed $100 per car in calendar year) (Would not apply if train originates and terminates in same country)
Private aircraft and boats (per year)	25
Passengers (commercial vessel or aircraft):
From Mexico, Canada, insular possessions and adjacent islands	0
From all other countries	5
Dutiable mail entries prepared by customs officer	5
Customs broker permits (per year)	125

Such fees would be applicable 90 days after date of enactment, except that with respect to passengers fees, such fees would apply to customs services rendered to passengers using transportation for which documents or tickets were issued more than 90 days after the date of enactment.

REVENUE PROVISIONS

1. Railroad unemployment repayment tax

a. Loan authority.—The act makes permanent the authority of the RRUI program to borrow from the railroad retirement program.

b. Loan repayment tax.—Under the act the rate of the present-law loan repayment tax is modified to be as follows, beginning July 1, 1986 and expiring Sept. 30, 1990.

Fiscal year:	Percent
1987	4.7
1988	6.0
1990	3.2

c. Loan surtax.—Under the act an automatic surcharge of 3.5 percent on the loan repayment tax base will be levied if the RRUI program must borrow from the retirement program. The surtax proceeds are to be used to repay such loans made after Sept. 30, 1985, and is in effect for any year, if on September 30 of the prior year any principal or interest from a loan after Sept. 30, 1985, remains unpaid.

d. Effective date.—The tax provisions will apply to remuneration paid after June 30, 1986. The extension of borrowing authority is effective upon enactment.

2. Extension of Medicare coverage, hospital insurance tax to State and local employees

Medicare coverage is extended to all State and local government employees hired after Dec. 31, 1985. These employees and their employers would be liable for the hospital insurance portion of the FICA tax. In addition, a State may voluntarily extend coverage to those employees hired prior to Dec. 31, 1985.

3. Tobacco excise tax

The act makes permanent the 16-cents-per-pack tax rate on cigarettes.

4. Black lung

The act increases the excise tax rate on domestically mined coal, effective Jan. 1, 1986, through Dec. 31, 1985, to the lesser of (a) $1.10 per ton for coal from underground mines and 55 cents per ton from surface mines, or (b) 4.4 percent of the sale price. The agreement would provide a 1-time 5-year forgiveness of the current interest payments on the cumulative indebtedness of the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund for borrowin from the general revenue of the Treasury.

5. FUTA tax exemptions

a. Certain nonresident farm workers.—Under the act the FUTA exem tion for certain nonresident farm workers is extended only for wages pa before Jan. 1, 1988.

b. Summer camp counselors.—The act provides a permanent FUT exemption for wages paid to summer camp counselors who are full-ti students, effective for wages paid after Sept. 19, 1985.

c. Fishing boat crew members.—The act provides a permanent FUT exemption for wages paid to certain fishing boat crew members, effecti for wages paid after Dec. 31, 1980.

6. Tax treatment of certain railroad retirement benefits

The act requires that railroad retirement tier I benefits that are n identical to what social security would otherwise provide, receive t same tax treatment that tier II benefits receive.

7. Income averaging

The act provides that an individual is not eligible for income averagin if the individual was a full-time student during any of the prior 3 yea

8. Fringe benefits

Under the act, the value of the use of free or discounted airline pass by parents of an airline employee would be excluded on the same basis where such benefits are used by the employee's spouse or depende children. Also excluded from income and wages would be the value of th use of airline passes by certain individuals who are directly engaged providing airline-related services. Other miscellaneous modifications a also included.

9. Minimum tax in insolvency

The act provides that an insolvent farmer who transfers real propert (farmland) used in the active conduct of a trade or business of the taxpay er is not required to treat certain capital gain on the transfer as a minimu tax preference if the transfer was made to a creditor in cancellation indebtedness or to a third party under threat of foreclosure.

10. Tax-exempt bonds

The act authorizes up to $200 million of industrial development bond for acquisition of 23 specific pollution control facilities for the Gulf Coa Waste Disposal Authority.

11. Cooperatives

The act provides that a cooperative is not ineligible for treatment as tax-exempt farmers' cooperative if it offsets certain earnings and losses determining any amount available for distribution to patrons. A notifica tion requirement would be imposed.

12. Moratorium on research and development expense allocation

The act effectively would extend for 1 year the moratorium on th application for the research and experimental expense allocation rules Treasury regulation, sec. 1.861-8.

13. United States bonds

The act increases the exception from the interest rate limitation on U.S savings bonds from $200 billion to $250 billion.

14. Internal Revenue Service budget

The act provides a sense of the Congress resolution that both th restoration of the funding cuts initially proposed by the administration t the IRS budget for fiscal year 1986 and the further increase to the IRS budget as recommended by the House Committee on Appropriations i H.R. 3036, as reported, are necessary for the efficient operation of th government and to carry out the purposes of reconciliation. The repor also would authorize to be appropriated $46.5 million in each fiscal yea 1986, 1987, and 1988 for the use of the IRS to employ additional agent and examination employees.

H.R. 3129 (Mr. Anderson with cosponsors); pending in conference.

H.R. 3129, the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1986, was referred solely to the Public Works and Transportation Committee. They reported the bill to the House on July 2, 1986. The Committee on Ways and Means approved an amendment on July 22, 1986, relating to the Highway Trust Fund, which would provide a 5-year extension of the current highway excise taxes (through Sept. 30, 1993) and a 5-year authorization for Highway Trust Fund expenditure programs (fiscal years 1987-1991). It also updates the Highway Trust Fund to reflect new trust fund authorization purposes including highway beautification and university transportation research centers. The amendment was made in order by the Rules Committee and passed the House on Aug. 15, 1986.

H.R. 3129 passed the Senate with an amendment which provides a 4-year extension of the taxes and trust fund authorizations, on Sept. 24, 1986. On Oct. 2, 1986, the House disagreed to the Senate amendment and agreed to a conference with the Senate. The conference committee on H.R. 3129 tentatively agreed to a 5-year authorization extension, but reached no final agreement on tax or trust fund provisions before the 99th Congress adjourned.

H.R. 3131 (Mr. Wirth with cosponsors); reported to the House Apr. 15, 1986. (See H.R. 4800.)

H.R. 3131, the Telecommunications Trade Act of 1986, was originally referred to the Committee on Energy and Commerce. On Feb. 6, 1986, H.R. 3131 was reported with an amendment by the Committee on Energy and Commerce. The bill was sequentially referred to the Committee on Ways and Means for a period ending not later than Apr. 15, 1986, for consideration of such provisions of the bill and amendment as fall within the jurisdiction of the Committee. On Apr. 15, 1986, the Committee on Ways and Means reported H.R. 3131 with an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

On May 6, 1986, the Committee on Ways and Means reported H.R. 4750, the Comprehensive Trade Policy Reform Act of 1986. H.R. 4750 incorporated the text of H.R. 3131 as amended, as Chapter 2 of Title I of that bill. H.R. 4750 was superseded by H.R. 4800, the Trade and International Economic Policy Reform Act of 1986, which passed the House on May 22, 1986.

H.R. 3131 would require that within 6 months after the date of enactment, the U.S. Trade Representative (USTR): would (1) identify those foreign acts, policies, and practices denying fully competitive market opportunities to U.S. firms; and (2) establish specific negotiating objectives for each country identified, drawing from a list of primary and secondary negotiating objectives set forth in the bill. Investigations also may be prompted by petition or by self-initiation by the USTR.

Immediately thereafter, the President is required to begin negotiations with countries identified by the USTR as denying fully competitive market opportunities. The purpose of the negotiations is to enter into bilateral or multilateral agreements which achieve the primary and secondary objectives established by the USTR for each country. Such agreements must be reached within 18 months of the date of enactment. However, if substantial progress is being made, the President may request up to two 1-year extensions of negotiating authority, subject to the "fast-track" congressional review process set forth in secs. 102 and 151 of the Trade Act of 1974 (an up or down vote within 90 days, with no amendments permitted).

If the President is unable to enter into a satisfactory agreement with a particular country within the authorized time period, the President is required to take whatever actions authorized in the bill that are necessary and appropriate to achieve the purposes of the primary objectives not covered by the agreement. The President, at his discretion, also may take whatever authorized actions are necessary to achieve the secondary objectives not covered by the agreement. The President is authorized to take a wide variety of actions under trade laws and other laws. Any actions taken must be directed first at telecommunications products and services from the country concerned. The same "fast-track" congressional approval described above is required for any actions taken by the Predident against imports.

The USTR is required to conduct annual reviews of agreements reached by the President to determine whether any act, policy, or practice of the country concerned: (a) is not in compliance with the terms of the agreement; or (b) otherwise denies fully competitive market opportunities, within the context of the agreement, to U.S. firms. In making this determination, the USTR must "consider any evidence of actual patterns of trade (including United States exports of telecommunications products to a foreign country and sales and services related to those products) that do not reflect patterns of trade which would reasonably be anticipated to flow from the concessions or commitments of such country based on the international competitive position and export potential of such products and services."

If the USTR determines that a country's acts, policies, or practices violate a telecommunications trade agreement or deny fully competitive market opportunities under that agreement, he must take whatever authorized actions are necessary to: (a) fully offset the foreign acts, policies, and practices; and (b) restore the balance of concessions between the United States and the foreign country in telecommunications trade. No action may be taken against a country with an agreement in existence on the date of enactment before action has been taken by the President against any other country. The USTR is authorized to terminate, withdraw, or suspend trade agreements or take any action under sec. 301 of the Trade Act of 1974, except that action must be directed first at telecommunications products and services from the country concerned. "Fast-track" congressional approval is required for any action taken by the USTR against imports.

Subject to the conditions described above regarding the authorized time period for negotiations, the bill extends to the President for 42 months (3½ years) of general authority to enter into telecommunications trade agreement. "Fast-track" congressional approval is required for all agreements except those involving unilateral concessions on the part of a foreign country. Agreements may be extended on a non-most-favored-nation basis and need not apply uniformly to all parties to an agreement.

The President is authorized to compensate any country for actions taken by the President or the USTR against its trade, if such actions are found to violate U.S. international obligations. Compensation agreements are subject to congressional approval under "fast-track" procedures. The bill also specifies that nothing in the Act shall be construed to require the President and the Congress to violate U.S. legal obligations, including obligations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

H.R. 3452 (Mr. Rostenkowski and Mr. Duncan); Public Law 99–107; app. Sept. 30, 1985.

H.R. 3452, the Emergency Extension Act of 1985, was referred jointly to the Committees on Ways and Means and Energy and Commerce. On Sept. 30, 1985, both committees were discharged from consideration of the bill, and H.R. 3452 passed both the House and the Senate without amendment.

H.R. 3452 includes the following extensions of expiring provisions:

1. The bill extends the previous cigarette excise tax rates of 16-cents-per-pack from Oct. 1, 1985, through Nov. 14, 1985.

2. The bill extends the trade adjustment assistance programs from Sept. 30, 1985, through Nov. 14, 1985.

3. The bill extends through Nov. 14, 1985, the authority for the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Account to borrow from the Railroad Retirement Account.

4. Medicare hospital payment rates are frozen for a 45-day period, implementation of a new wage index would be deferred, and the proportions of hospital-specific and Federal DRG components in the prospective payment amounts would remain unchanged during the period Oct. 1 through Nov. 14, 1985. Medicare physician reimbursement amounts would remain unchanged from Oct. 1 through Nov. 14, 1985, and the amounts that nonparticipating physicians may charge beneficiaries would remain frozen for this period.

The President signed H.R. 3452 into law on Sept. 30, 1985, as Public Law 99-44.

H.R. 3453 (Mr. Rostenkowski and Mr. Duncan of Tennessee); passed Senate with amendments Oct. 9, 1985.

H.R. 3453 passed the House on Oct. 1, 1985. As passed by the House, H.R. 3453 would extend the previous Superfund excise taxes for 45 days, from Oct. 1, 1985, through Nov. 14, 1985.

On Oct. 9, 1985, the Senate passed the bill with amendments which would authorize the Government, between Oct. 9, and Oct. 18, 1985, to borrow up to $5 billion from the Federal Financing Bank rather than the $15 billion of borrowing otherwise allowed. On Oct. 18, 1985, no additional borrowing would be allowed, and any borrowing outstanding would be placed within the debt ceiling. See H.R. 3721 and H.J. Res. 372 for further action regarding the debt ceiling.

H.R. 3500 (Mr. Derrick); passed House Oct. 24, 1985.

H.R. 3500, the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 was reported from the Committee on the Budget on Oct. 3, 1985. H.R. 3500 passed the House on Oct. 24, 1985.

As it passed the House, H.R. 3500 included budget reconciliation legislation reported from every committee in the House except the Committee on Ways and Means. The Ways and Means Committee's reconciliation legislation was passed by the House in H.R. 3128. The Senate passed H.R. 3128 on Nov. 14, 1985, and on Dec. 5, 1985, the House agreed to the Senate amendment with an amendment incorporating both House-passed H.R. 3500 and H.R. 3128.

See summary of H.R. 3128 for further action.

H.R. 3669 (Mr. Rostenkowski with cosponsors); passed Senate Nov. 1, 1985.

H.R. 3669 would have permitted the public debt limit to increase from $1,823.8 billion to $1,840.8 billion in order to permit the United States to meet obligations without disinvesting Social Security and other trust funds. It passed the House on Nov. 1, 1985, and passed the Senate on the same day with an amendment that would have limited the increase in the public debt limit to the period through Nov. 6, 1985. No further action was taken. See H.R. 3721 and H.J. Res. 372.

H.R. 3721 (Mr. Rostenkowski and Mr. Duncan of Tennessee); Public Law 99-155; app. Nov. 14, 1985.

H.R. 3721 temporarily increased the public debt limit from $1,823.8 billion to $1,903.8 billion through Dec. 6, 1985. The bill provided sufficient debt authority for the Secretary of the Treasury to replace securities disinvested from the Social Security and other trust funds and directed the Secretary to do so immediately after enactment. Trust fund securities had been disinvested in order to meet U.S. Government obligations when the prior law debt limit was reached in September 1985.

H.R. 3721 passed the House on Nov. 13, 1985. The Senate also passed it on that day with an amendment setting the expiration of the temporary increase in the debt limit on Dec. 6, 1985 (the date in the House bill was Dec. 13, 1985), and added temporary extensions of the 16-cents-per-pack cigarette excise tax until Dec. 15, 1985, trade adjustment assistance, railroad unemployment benefits, and the hospital and physician reimbursement procedures under the Medicare program until Dec. 14, 1985.

The House agreed to the Senate amendment on Nov. 14, 1985. The bill was signed into law by the President on Nov. 14, 1985, as Public Law 99-155.

H.R. 3722 (Mr. Rostenkowski and Mr. Duncan of Tennessee); passed House Nov. 13, 1985.

H.R. 3722 passed the House on Nov. 13, 1985. As passed by the House, H.R. 3722 includes the following extensions of expiring provisions:

1. Extends the previous cigarette excise tax rates of 16-cents-per-pack from Nov. 15, 1985, through Dec. 14, 1985.

2. Extends the trade adjustment assistance programs from Nov. 15, 1985, through Dec. 14, 1985.

3. Extends through Dec. 14, 1985, the authority for the Railroad Une ployment Insurance Account to borrow from the Railroad Retireme Account.

4. Medicare hospital payment rates are frozen for a 30-day perio implementation of a new wage index would be deferred, and the propo tions of hospital-specific and Federal DRG components in the prospecti payment amounts would remain unchanged during the period Nov. 1 through Dec. 14, 1985. Medicare physician reimbursement amounts wou remain unchanged from Nov. 15 through Dec. 14, 1985, and the amoun that nonparticipating physicians may charge beneficiaries would rema frozen for this period.

As of adjournment of the 99th Congress, H.R. 3722 was pending on th Senate calendar.

H.R. 3810 (Mr. Rodino and Mr. Mazzoli); passed House Oct. 9, 1987. (See S. 1200, Public Law 99-603.)

H.R. 3810, the Immigration Control and Legislation Amendments Ac of 1985, was referred solely to the Judiciary Committee. On July 16, 198 the Judiciary Committee reported the bill to the House. It was referred t the Committees on Agriculture, Banking, Finance and Urban Affair Education and Labor, Energy and Commerce, Post Office and Civ Service, and Ways and Means for those sections of the bill under the jurisdiction. On Aug. 5, 1986, the Banking, Finance and Urban Affair and Post Office and Civil Service Committees were discharged; the othe committees reported their sections of the bill to the House: Education an Labor (part 2); Ways and Means (part 3); Energy and Commerce (part 4) and Agriculture (part 5).

The bill passed the House on Oct. 9, 1986, with an amendment in th nature of a substitute consisting of the text of H.R. 5665, as original tex for the purpose of amendment. Passage was vacated and S. 1200 as passe the Senate was passed in lieu thereof, as amended.

H.R. 3810, as reported by the Committee on Ways and Means contained the following provisions:

1. Social security number verification

The report strikes the provision that requires the Attorney General to establish a system to verify the social security numbers of all applicant for employment in the United States. The committee report requires the Social Security Administration, in conjunction with the Attorney Genera and the Department of Labor, to conduct a study of the feasibility, cost and privacy implications of establishing a social security number validation system to help carry out the purposes of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

2. Legalization of illegal aliens and eligibility for certain public assistanc programs

The committee made clarifying and technical changes to the provisio in the bill that disqualifies certain newly legalized aliens from public assistance programs to make clear that the disqualification applies to the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program and not to other public assistance programs within the committee's jurisdiction.

3. Verification of immigration status of aliens applying for public assistanc benefits

The committee report requires States and other agencies administering public assistance programs to establish an automated system of verifying the alien status of individuals applying for aid. The committee report allows the respective Secretaries with administrative responsibilities over the programs to waive the requirement that a verification system be established if the Secretary finds that such a program would not be cost effective or that an alternative system is in place which is as timely and effective. In addition, the Supplemental Security Income program would not be subject to the verification system requirement.

In addition, the report authorizes the chairman or his designee to request of the Committee on Rules that an amendment be made in order under the rule for consideration of H.R. 3810, which would disqualify the special agricultural workers who are granted permanent resident status under the bill from receipt of AFDC in the same manner that the aliens being granted amnesty under the bill are disqualified from such benefits.

H.R. 3838 (Mr. Rostenkowski with cosponsors); Public Law 99-514; app. Oct. 22, 1986.

H.R. 3838, the Tax Reform Act of 1986, was reported to the House on Dec. 7, 1985, and passed on Dec. 17, 1985. H.R. 3838 was reported to the Senate amended on May 29, 1986, and passed the Senate amended on June 24, 1986. A conference was held and the conference report was filed in the House on Sept. 18, 1986. The House agreed to the conference report on Sept. 25, 1986, and the Senate agreed on Sept. 27, 1986.

The bill was signed into law by the President on Oct. 22, 1986, as Public Law 99-514. A summary of the act follows:

TITLE I. INDIVIDUAL INCOME TAX PROVISIONS

A. BASIC RATE STRUCTURE

1. Tax rate schedules

New Schedules.—The act provides two-bracket rate schedules for individual taxpayers, with rates of 15 and 28 percent. This new structure replaces the present-law structure of up to 15 brackets, with a top rate of 50 percent. The new structure goes into effect beginning in 1988; transitional rate schedules are provided for 1987 returns.

The 28-percent rate begins at taxable income levels of $29,750 for married individuals filing jointly and surviving spouses, $23,900 for heads of household, $17,850 for single individuals, and $14,875 for married individuals filing separately. (Taxable income equals adjusted gross income less personal exemptions and less the standard deduction or itemized deductions.) Beginning in 1989, the taxable income amounts at which the 28-percent rate starts will be adjusted for inflation.

Rate adjustment.—Beginning in 1988, the benefit of the 15-percent bracket is phased out for taxpayers having taxable income exceeding specified levels. The income tax liability of such taxpayers is increased by five percent of their taxable income within specified ranges.

The rate adjustment occurs between $71,900 and $149,250 of taxable income for married individuals filing jointly; between $61,650 and $123,790 of taxable income for heads of household; between $43,150 and $89,560 of taxable income for single individuals; and between $35,950 and $113,300 of taxable income for married individuals filing separately. These amounts will be adjusted for inflation beginning in 1989.

The maximum amount of the rate adjustment generally equals 13 percent of the maximum amount of taxable income within the 15-percent bracket applicable to the taxpayer (for a married individual filing separately, within the 15-percent bracket applicable for married taxpayers filing jointly). Thus, if the maximum rate adjustment applies, the 28-percent rate in effect applies to all of the taxpayer's taxable income, rather than only to the amount of taxable income above the breakpoint.

Transitional rate structure for 1987.—For taxable years beginning in 1987, five-bracket rate schedules are provided, as shown in the table below. Neither the rate adjustment (described above) nor the personal exemption phaseout (described below) applies for 1987.

Tax rate (percent)	Taxable income brackets
	Married, filing joint returns	Heads of household	Singles
11	0-$3,000	0-$2,500	0-$1,800
15	$3,000-28,000	$2,500-23,000	$1,800-16,800
28	28,000-45,000	23,000-38,000	16,800-27,000
35	45,000-90,000	38,000-80,000	27,000-54,000

For married individuals filing separate returns, the taxable income bracket amounts for 1987 begin at one-half the amounts for joint returns.

2. Standard deduction

Increased amounts for all taxpayers.—Under the act the standard deduction replaces the zero bracket amount (ZBA). Effective in 1988, the standard deduction amounts are $5,000 for married individuals filing jointly and for surviving spouses; $4,400 for heads of household; $3,000 for single individuals; and $2,500 for married individuals filing separately. Beginning in 1989, these amounts will be adjusted for inflation.

Additional amount for the elderly or blind.—An additional standard deduction amount of $600 is allowed for an elderly or blind individual who is married ($1,200 for a married individual who is both elderly and blind). An additional standard deduction amount of $750 is allowed for an unmarried individual who is elderly or blind ($1,500 if both). For elderly or blind taxpayers only, the new standard deduction amounts (listed in the preceding paragraph) and the additional $600 or $750 standard deduction amounts are effective beginning in 1987. Beginning in 1989, the $600 and $750 additional standard deduction amounts will be adjusted for inflation.

Standard deduction for 1987.—For all individual taxpayers other than elderly or blind individuals, the standard deduction amounts for 1987 are $3,800 for married individuals filing jointly and surviving spouses; $2,570 for heads of household and single individuals; and $1,900 for married individuals filing separately.

3. Personal exemption

Exemption amount.—The act increases the personal exemption for each individual, the individual's spouse, and each dependent to $1,900 for 1987, $1,950 for 1988, and $2,000 in 1989. Beginning in 1990, the $2,000 personal exemption amount will be adjusted for inflation.

Beginning in 1988, the personal exemption amounts are phased out for taxpayers having taxable income exceeding specified levels. The income tax liability of such taxpayers is increased by 5 percent of taxable income within certain ranges. This reduction in the personal exemption amounts starts at the taxable income level at which the benefit of 15-percent rate is totally phased out (see "Rate adjustment," above). For example, in the case of married individuals filing joint returns, in 1988 the personal exemption phaseout begins at taxable income of $149,250. The exemption is totally phased out at $10,920 per exemption above that amount in 1988 and $11,200 per exemption above that amount in 1989. For example, in the case of married individuals filing jointly who have two dependent children, in 1988 the four $1,950 personal exemptions are completely phased out at taxable income of $192,930.

Relief for elderly.—The additional personal exemptions in present law for the elderly and for blind individuals are repealed, starting in 1987. As stated above, the act provides an additional standard deduction amount of $600 or $750 for an elderly or blind individual, starting in 1987. In addition, the increased standard deduction amounts generally applicable in 1988 (e.g., $5,000 for married individuals filing jointly) apply for elderly or blind individuals starting in 1987. The present-law tax credit for the elderly and certain disabled individuals is retained.

Rules for dependents.—The act provides that the personal exemption is not allowed to an individual who is eligible to be claimed as a dependent on another taxpayer's return (for example, where a child is eligible to be claimed as a dependent on his or her parents' return). This rule is intended to preclude the doubling of tax benefits allowed under present law, where the personal exemption for a child can be claimed by the parents on their return and also by the child on his or her return. However, unlike the present-law rule that allows such dependent to use the standard deduction (ZBA) only to offset earned income, the act provides that the dependent may use up to $500 of his or her standard deduction to offset unearned income. These rules for dependents are effective beginning in 1987.

4. Inflation adjustments

Inflation adjustments (indexing) to the rate brackets, standard deduction (and the $600 or $750 additional standard deduction), and personal exemption will be made beginning in the years stated above. These adjustments will be rounded down to the nearest multiple of $50. The 12-month period for measuring inflation will end August 31 (rather than September 30) of each year.

5. Repeal of two-earner deduction

The deduction for two-earner married individuals is repealed, beginning in 1987. Adjustments made in the standard deduction for married individuals filing jointly and in the relationship of the rate schedules for unmarried individuals and married individuals filing joint returns are intended to compensate for the repeal of this provision.

6. Repeal of income averaging

The act repeals income averaging, beginning in 1987, in light of the new rate structure.

B. EARNED INCOME CREDIT

The act increases the refundable earned income credit from 11 percent of the first $5,000 of earned income to 14 percent of the first $5,714 of earned income, beginning in 1987. (The earned income credit provides tax relief to low-income working individuals with children.) Thus, the maximum credit is increased from $550 to $800. In addition, the act increases the credit phase-out to apply at higher income levels ($9,000-$17,000) than under present law, effective beginning in 1988.

As a further liberalization of present law, the maximum dollar amount of earned income against which the credit applies ($5,714) and the income levels at which the phase-out of the credit begins ($6,500 in 1987 and $9,000 in 1988 and later years) are to be adjusted, beginning in 1987, for inflation occurring after 1984. These adjustments will not be subject to the $50 rounding-down rule otherwise applicable under the act to inflation adjustments.

Under the act, Treasury regulations are to require employers to notify employees whose wages are not subject to income tax withholding that they may be eligible for the refundable earned income credit.

C. EXCLUSIONS FROM INCOME

1. Unemployment compensation benefits

The present-law partial exclusion for unemployment compensation benefits is repealed, effective beginning in 1987.

2. Scholarships and fellowships

Under the act, the exclusion for scholarship or fellowship grants is limited to degree candidates, and to amounts required to be used for tuition and course-required fees, books, supplies, and equipment; thus, additional amounts for room, board, or incidental expenses are not excludable. No exclusion is provided for nondegree candidates.

The act also provides that the exclusion does not apply to any portion of amounts received as a grant or a tuition reduction that represents payment for teaching, research, or other services required as a condition of receiving the grant, or to certain Federal grants where the recipient is required to perform future services as a Federal employee.

These provisions are effective for scholarships and fellowships granted after August 16, 1986.

3. Prizes and awards

Under the act, the present-law exclusion for certain prizes and awards for charitable, scientific, artistic, and similar achievements is to apply only if the winner assigns the prize or award to charity. The act provides a limited exclusion for certain employee awards for length of service or safety achievement; all other prizes or awards by employers to employees are includible in income except for de minimis fringe benefits excludable under Code section 132(e). These provisions are effective beginning in 1987.

D. DEDUCTIONS FOR PERSONAL EXPENDITURES

1. Itemized deduction for State and local sales taxes

The itemized deduction for State and local sales taxes is repealed, effective beginning in 1987. The itemized deductions for State and local income taxes, real estate taxes, and personal property taxes are retained.

The act also provides that State, local, and foreign taxes for which an itemized deduction is not allowed, but which are incurred in a business or investment activity in connection with the acquisition or disposition of property, are not deductible; instead, such taxes are to be treated as part of the cost of the acquired property or as a reduction in the amount realized on the disposition. This provision is effective for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1987.

2. Charitable deduction for nonitemizers

Under the act, the nonitemizer charitable deduction terminates for contributions made after December 31, 1986, as under present law.

3. Medical expense deduction

The floor under the medical expense deduction is increased from percent to 7.5 percent of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income, effective beginning in 1987. The act clarifies that certain expenses incurred to accommodate a personal residence to the needs of a physically handicapped individual are eligible for the medical expense deduction.

4. Adoption expenses

The itemized deduction for certain costs of adopting special need children is repealed, effective beginning in 1987. Also, the act modifies the Adoption Assistance Program of Title IV-E of the Social Security Act to provide assistance through that program for such adoption expenses.

5. Deductibility of mortgage interest and taxes allocable to certain housing allowances

The act provides that the receipt of tax-free housing allowances by ministers or military personnel does not result in loss of deductions for mortgage interest or real property taxes on the individual's residence, effective for past and future years.

E. EXPENSES FOR BUSINESS OR INVESTMENT

1. Meals, travel, and entertainment expenses

Under the act, 80 percent of otherwise allowable business meal expenses and business entertainment expenses are deductible, subject to certain exceptions (including qualified banquet meeting meals) allowing full deductibility. The requirements for deducting business meal expenses are tightened, generally by conformity to the standards for deducting other business entertainment expenses.

No deductions are allowed for (1) any costs of attending conventions or seminars other than for trade or business purposes, (2) educational travel expenses, (3) charitable travel expenses unless there is no significant element of personal pleasure, recreation, or vacation in the travel, or (4) costs (other than 80 percent of regular ticket costs) of renting skyboxes for more than one event (subject to a 3-year phase-in of skybox nondeductibility). Deductions for entertainment ticket costs and luxury water travel are limited. The act also tightens certain rules with respect to home office expenses and hobby losses.

These provisions are effective for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1987.

2. Employee business expenses, investment expenses, and other miscellaneous itemized deductions

Under the act, employee business expenses other than reimbursed expenses (sec. 62(2)(A)) are to be allowed only as itemized deductions and are subject to the floor described below. Moving expenses of an employee or self-employed individual are to be allowed only as itemized deductions, but are not subject to the new floor.

The miscellaneous itemized deductions, including the employee business expenses described above, generally are subject to a floor of 2 percent of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income. However, the floor does not apply to impairment-related work expenses for handicapped employees; estate tax in the case of income in respect to a decedent; certain adjustments where a taxpayer restores amounts held under a claim of right; amortizable bond premium; certain costs of cooperative housing corporations; expenses of short sales in the nature of interest; certain terminated annuity payments; and gambling losses to the extent of gambling winnings. The floor is to apply with respect to indirect deductions through passthrough entities (including mutual funds) other than estates, trusts, cooperatives, and REITs.

Under the act, a new above-the-line deduction is allowed for business expenses of certain performing artists who had more than one employer during the taxable year, whose allowable expenses in performing such services exceed 10 percent of wages for such services, and whose adjusted gross income (before deducting such expenses) does not exceed $16,000.

These provisions are effective for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1987.

F. POLITICAL CONTRIBUTIONS TAX CREDIT

The act repeals the tax credit for political contributions, effective beginning in 1987.

Title II. Capital Cost Provisions

A. COST RECOVERY: DEPRECIATION; ITC; FINANCE LEASES

1. Depreciation and expensing

Accelerated Cost Recovery System.—The act modifies the Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS) for property placed in service after December 31, 1986, except for property covered by transition rules. The cost of property placed in service after July 31, 1986, which is not transition-rule property, may be covered under the modified rules at the election of the taxpayer.

The act provides more accelerated depreciation for the revised 3-year, 5-year, and 10-year classes and reclassifies certain assets according to their present class life (or "ADR midpoint life"), including the creation of a 7-year and 20-year class. Depreciation methods are prescribed for each ACRS class (in lieu of providing statutory tables). Eligible personal property is assigned among a 3-year class, a 5-year class, a 7-year class, a 10-year class, a 15-year class, or a 20-year class.

The depreciation method applicable to property included in the 3-year, 5-year, 7-year, and 10-year classes is the double declining balance method, switching to the straight-line method at a time to maximize the depreciation allowance. For property in the 15-year and 20-year class, the act applies the 150-percent declining balance method, switching to the straight-line method at a time to maximize the depreciation allowance. The cost of real property is recovered using the straight-line method over 27.5 years for residential rental property and 31.5 years for nonresidential real property.

Property is classified into the classes as follows:

3-year class.—ADR midpoints of 4 years and less, except excludes automobiles and light trucks, and includes horses in the present-law 3-year class.

5-year class.—ADR midpoints of more than 4 years and less than 10 years, and adding automobiles, light trucks, qualified technological equipment, computer-based central office switching equipment, renewable energy and biomass properties that are small power production facilities, and research and experimentation property.

7-year class.—ADR midpoints of 10 years and more and less than 16 years, adding single-purpose agricultural or horticultural structures and property with no ADR midpoint not classified elsewhere.

10-year class.—ADR midpoints of 16 years and more and less than 20 years.

15-year class.—ADR midpoints of 20 years and more and less than 25 years, including waste-water treatment plants, and telephone distribution plant and comparable equipment used for the two-way exchange of voice and data communications.

20-year class.—ADR midpoints of 25 years and more, other than real property with an ADR midpoint of 27.5 years and more, and including sewer pipes.

27.5-year class.—Residential rental property.

31.5-year class.—Nonresidential real property (real property that is not residential rental property and that either has no ADR midpoint, or the ADR midpoint of which is not less than 27.5 years).

Alternative Depreciation System.—A taxpayer may elect to recover the cost of property over the ACRS class life or, generally, the ADR midpoint life, using the straight-line method. For purposes of computing the depreciation preference under the minimum tax, the cost of personal property is recovered using the 150-percent declining balance method, switching to the straight-line method, generally over the ADR midpoint life. Additionally, assets used abroad or by tax-exempt entities, or financed with the proceeds of tax-exempt bonds, and for purposes of computing earnings and profits must be recovered using the straight-line method generally over the ADR midpoint life.

Expensing.—The amount of personal property that may be expensed is increased to $10,000 (from the present-law $5000). For every dollar of qualifying investment in excess of $200,000, the $10,000 limit is reduced by one dollar.

2. Regular investment tax credit

The act repeals the investment tax credit for property placed in service after December 31, 1985, except for property covered by transition rules. Investment tax credits on transition property result in a full basis adjustment. Beginning in 1988, credits on transition property and credit carryovers are subject to a 35-percent reduction (17.5 percent in 1987).

3. Finance leasing

Finance leasing is repealed for agreements entered into after December 31, 1986, except for property covered by transition rules.

B. LIMIT ON GENERAL BUSINESS CREDIT

The act reduces the 85-percent limitation on the amount of income tax liability that can be offset by business tax credits to 75 percent, for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1985. Credits subject to the limitation include the research credit and the low-income housing credit.

C. RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

1. Tax credit for increasing research expenditures

The act extends the incremental research tax credit for an additional 3 years, i.e., for qualified research expenditures paid or incurred through December 31, 1988. In addition, the act modifies the credit as follows:

(a) The credit rate is reduced from 25 percent to 20 percent.

(b) Rental and similar payments for the use of personal property in research are made ineligible for the credit, except for certain payments for use of computer time.

(c) The definition of qualified research for purposes of the credit is modified.

(d) Increased tax incentives are provided for corporate cash expenditures in excess of certain floors for basic research performed by universities or certain scientific research organizations.

(e) The general limitation on use of business credits is applied to the research credit.

The provision extending the research credit is effective for taxable years ending after December 31, 1985, with respect to expenditures prior to January 1, 1989. The provisions modifying the credit are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1985, except that the modifications to the university basic research credit are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

2. Augmented charitable deduction for donations of scientific equipment

The present-law rule allowing an augmented charitable deduction for donations of newly manufactured scientific equipment to universities for research use is extended to such donations made to certain tax-exempt scientific research organizations, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1985.

3. Tax credit for orphan drug clinical testing

The tax credit for clinical testing of orphan drugs is extended for 3 additional years, i.e., through December 31, 1990.

D. RAPID AMORTIZATION PROVISIONS

1. Trademark and trade name expenditures

The act repeals 5-year amortization for trademarks and tradenames, for expenditures paid or incurred after December 31, 1986. Transitional rules are provided for certain binding contracts.

2. Railroad grading and tunnel bores

The act repeals 50-year amortization for qualified railroad grading and tunnel bores, for expenditures paid or incurred after December 31, 1986. Transitional rules are provided for certain binding contracts.

3. Bus operating authorities

Owners of certain bus operating authorities are allowed an ordinary deduction ratably over five years for loss in value of such authorities, effective for taxable years ending after November 18, 1982. A similar rule will apply to freight forwarders, contingent on deregulation.

4. Removal of architectural and transportation barriers to the handicapped and elderly

The act makes permanent the election to deduct up to $35,000 of qualifying expenditures for removing architectural and transportation barriers to the handicapped and elderly, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1985.

E. REAL ESTATE PROVISIONS

1. Tax credit for rehabilitation expenditures

The act replaces the existing three-tier rehabilitation credit with a two-tier credit for qualified rehabilitation expenditures. The credit percentage is 10 percent for expenditures incurred in rehabilitation of buildings (other than certified historic structures) built before 1936, and 20 percent for certified historic structures.

In general, the act retains the structure of the existing rehabilitation credit, except that the external walls requirement is modified in the case of certified historic structures. In addition, the act requires a basis adjustment for the full amount of the rehabilitation credit in the case of both historic and nonhistoric buildings.

For a summary of the rules applicable with respect to the credit under the passive loss limitations of the act, see Title VB, below.

The modifications to the rehabilitation credit generally are applicable to property placed in service after December 31, 1986.

2. Tax credit for low-income rental housing

The act provides a new tax credit that may be claimed by owners of residential rental property providing low-income housing. This new tax credit replaces existing tax incentives for low-income housing—i.e., preferential depreciation, 5-year amortization of rehabilitation expenditures, and special treatment of construction period interest and taxes. Separate credits are provided for new construction and rehabilitation of low-income housing and for certain costs of acquisition of existing housing to serve low-income individuals.

The credits are claimed annually for a period of 10 years. The annual credit has a maximum rate for property placed in service in 1987 of nine percent for new construction and rehabilitation, and a maximum rate of 4 percent for the acquisition cost of existing housing. (These credit rates are equivalent to a credit with a present value of 70 percent and 30 percent, respectively.) All credits apply only to the expenditures on the low-income units. In addition, in order to qualify for the credit for new construction or rehabilitation, such expenditures must exceed $2,000 per low-income unit. Certain costs of new construction and rehabilitation of low-income housing financed with tax-exempt bonds or receiving other Federal subsidies are eligible for a credit having a present value of 30 percent (i.e., for property placed in service in 1987, 4 percent each year for 10 years).

Residential rental property is eligible for the credit if either (1) at least 20 percent of the housing units in the project are occupied by individuals with incomes of 50 percent or less of area median income, or (2) at least 40 percent of the housing units in the project are occupied by individuals with incomes of 60 percent or less of area median income. Income limits are adjusted for family size and may be adjusted for areas with unusually low family income or high housing costs relative to family income. The rent charged to tenants in units with respect to which the credit is allowable may not exceed 30 percent of the qualifying income. Eligible projects must continuously comply with these requirements for a 15-year period. The penalty for noncompliance is recapture of prior credits. Certain single room occupancy housing is eligible for the credit.

Each State is permitted to issue low-income rental housing tax credits in an annual amount equal to $1.25 per resident of the State. At least 10 percent of this credit authority must be reserved for projects developed by certain nonprofit organizations, one of whose exempt purposes is the fostering of low-income housing. This credit authority is sufficient to cover approximately $14 per capita of new construction or rehabilitation expenditures (for property not receiving other Federal subsidies) or $31 per capita of acquisition cost. Additionally, expenditures financed with the proceeds of tax-exempt bonds are eligible for the credit without reducing a State's credit authority, since the volume of these bonds is directly limited under the act.

The basis with respect to which credits are allowed must be reduced by the amount of any rehabilitation credit under section 46 for which the property is eligible. The basis of a project for depreciation is not reduced by the amount of low-income housing tax credits claimed.

For a summary of the rules applicable with respect to the credit under the passive loss limitations of the act, see Title VB, below. For purposes of the credit, a limited exception to the credit at-risk rules is provided.

The credit is effective for property placed in service after December 31, 1986, and before January 1, 1990. Property placed in service after 1989 may qualify for the credit if expenditures of 10 percent or more of total project costs are incurred before January 1, 1989, and the property is placed in service before January 1, 1991.

F. MERCHANT MARINE CAPITAL CONSTRUCTION FUND

The Merchant Marine Act of 1936, as amended, provides Federal income tax incentives for U.S. taxpayers who own or lease vessels operated in the foreign or domestic commerce of the United States or in U.S. fisheries. The act coordinates the application of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 with the capital construction fund program of the Merchant Marine Act of 1936, as amended. In addition, new requirements are imposed relating to (1) the tax treatment of nonqualified withdrawals, (2) certain reports to be made to the Secretary of the Treasury by the Secretaries of Transportation and Commerce, and (3) a 25-year time limit on the amount of time moneys can remain in a fund without being withdrawn for a qualified purpose, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

TITLE III. CAPITAL GAINS AND LOSSES

A. INDIVIDUAL CAPITAL GAINS

The act repeals the present-law exclusion for long-term capital gains of individuals, effective for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1987. Thus, such gains will be taxed at the same rates as ordinary income. However, the tax rate on long-term capital gains during calendar year 1987 will not exceed 28 percent. Capital losses are allowed in full against capital gains plus $3,000 of other income.

The present-law rules for nonrecognition of gain on sale of a principal residence where reinvested in a new residence, and for a one-time exclusion of up to $125,000 of gain on sale of a principal residence by a taxpayer age 55 or older, are retained.

B. CORPORATE CAPITAL GAINS

The alternative tax rate for net capital gains of corporations shall not apply for gain included in income in taxable years when the new corporate rates are fully effective (i.e., years beginning on or after July 1, 1987). For gain included in income in earlier taxable years but after December 31, 1986, the alternative tax rate is 34 percent. As under present law, capital losses are allowed in full against capital gains.

C. INCENTIVE STOCK OPTIONS

The act liberalizes the incentive stock option provisions by repealing the requirement that options must be exercised in the order granted, and modifies the $100,000 limit on the amount of options that may be granted in any year. Under this modification, an employer may not, in the aggregate, grant an employee incentive stock options that are first exercisable during any one calendar year to the extent that the aggregate fair market value of the stock (at the time the options are granted) exceeds $100,000. These provisions apply to options granted after December 31, 1986.

D. STRADDLES

Under the loss deferral rule in the straddle provisions, the act denies the qualified covered call exception to a taxpayer who fails to hold an option for 30 days after the related stock is disposed of at a loss, where gain on termination or other disposition of the option is included in the subsequent year. This provision applies to positions established after December 31, 1986.

Title IV. Agriculture, Timber, Energy, and Natural Resources

A. Agricultural Provisions

1. Special expensing provisions

The act provides that soil and water conservation expenditures are deductible only if they relate to improvements that are consistent with a conservation plan approved by the the U.S. Department of Agriculture or, if there is no federally approved plan in the location of the land on which improvements are made, by a comparable State agency. In no event, however, may expenditures relating to the draining or filling of wetlands or the installation or operation of a center pivot irrigation system be deducted under this provision. This provision applies to expenditures after December 31, 1986.

The special provision allowing a deduction for land clearing expenditures is repealed, effective for expenditures after December 31, 1985. The special election to expense fertilizer and soil conditioning expenditures is retained.

2. Dispositions of converted wetlands and highly erodible croplands

The act provides that gain from the disposition of wetlands and highly erodible cropland that are converted to agricultural use (other than livestock grazing) is ordinary and that any loss on such disposition is a capital loss. The provision is effective for dispositions of land converted after March 1, 1986.

3. Preproductive period expenses of farmers

In general.—The act provides that the uniform capitalization rules (see VIII D, below) apply to farmers in the case of products having a preproductive period of more than 2 years. Under a special election, certain farmers may elect to deduct preproductive period expenses currently, provided the alternative cost recovery system is used on all farm assets. The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

Grove, orchard, and vineyard crops.—The act provides that planting and maintenance costs incurred following loss or damage to a grove, orchard, or vineyard as a result of freezing temperatures, disease, drought, pests, or casualty may be deducted by persons other than the farmer who owned the grove, etc., at the time the damage occurred, provided that (1) the taxpayer who owned the property at such time retains an equity interest of more than 50 percent in the property, and (2) the person claiming the deduction owns part of the remaining equity interest and materially participates in the planting or maintenance of the property. In addition, replanting costs may qualify even though the grove, etc. is replanted in a different location, provided the costs do not relate to acreage in excess of the acreage of the property on which the loss or damage occurred. This provision is effective for such costs paid or incurred after the date of enactment.

4. Prepayments of farming expenses

The act provides that to the extent the prepaid farming expenses of a farmer using the cash method of accounting exceed 50 percent of total nonprepaid farm expenses, amounts paid for feed, seed, fertilizer, and certain other similar farm items may be deducted only as such items are actually consumed. This provision applies to amounts with respect to which a deduction otherwise would be allowable under present law after March 1, 1986.

5. Treatment of discharge of indebtedness income for certain farmers

The act provides that discharge of indebtedness income arising from an agreement between a solvent individual debtor engaged in the trade or business of farming and an unrelated person to discharge certain farming indebtedness is treated as income realized by an insolvent individual, and hence is eligible for exclusion from income if certain conditions are satisfied. Qualified indebtedness includes debt incurred to finance production of agricultural products and business debt secured by farmland or equipment. The provision applies to discharge of indebtedness income realized after the date of enactment.

B. TIMBER PROVISIONS

1. Preproductive expenses of growing timber

The act retains present law treatment with regard to the preproductive expenses of growing timber.

2. Reforestation expenses

The act retains present law treatment, allowing up to $10,000 of reforestation expenditures incurred in each taxable year to qualify for amortization over a 7-year period, and also a 10-percent tax credit.

3. Capital gains for timber

The capital gains rate for timber is conformed to the top individual and corporate tax rates, effective in accordance with the general amendments to the treatment of individual and corporate capital gains. Taxpayers are permitted to revoke elections (under sec. 631(a)) to treat cutting of timber as a sale or exchange.

C. OIL, GAS, AND GEOTHERMAL PROPERTIES

1. Intangible drilling costs

The act generally retains the present-law tax treatment of domestic IDCs, but increases to 30 percent the present-law reduction in expensible IDCs of integrated producers. This 30-percent amount must be amortized over a 5-year, straight-line period.

IDCs incurred on wells located outside the United States (other than nonproductive wells) are to be recovered (i) using 10-year, straight-line amortization, or (ii) at the taxpayer's election, as part of the basis for cost depletion.

These provisions are generally effective for costs paid or incurred after December 31, 1986.

2. Percentage depletion for bonuses and advance royalties

The act denies percentage depletion for lease bonuses, advance royalties, or any other amount payable without regard to actual production from an oil, gas, or geothermal property. This reverses the holding in Commissioner v. Engle, 464 U.S. 206 (1984).

D. HARD MINERALS

1. Exploration and development costs

The act generally retains the present-law treatment of domestic mining exploration and development costs. However, the reduction in expensible exploration and development costs for corporations (under sec. 291) is increased to 30 percent. This 30-percent amount is required to be amortized over a 5-year, straight-line period.

In the case of foreign mines, exploration and development costs are recovered by (1) 10-year straight-line amortization or (2) at the election of the taxpayer, as part of the basis for cost depletion.

These provisions are effective for costs paid or incurred after December 31, 1986.

2. Percentage depletion of hard mineral deposits

The act increases the reduction in corporate coal and iron ore percentage depletion deductions (under sec. 291) from 15 to 20 percent, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986. Present-law depletion rates are retained for hard minerals.

3. Gain on disposition of interest in mineral properties

The act expands the amount of gain that must be treated as ordinary income on the disposition of oil, gas, or geothermal property to include the amount of depletion deductions that have previously reduced basis, in addition to intangible drilling costs. Similar rules are applied for mining exploration and development costs. The new provisions generally apply to property placed in service by the taxpayer after 1986.

E. ENERGY-RELATED TAX CREDITS AND OTHER INCENTIVES

1. Business energy tax credits

The solar energy tax credit is extended for 3 years at 15 percent in 1986, 12 percent in 1987, and 10 percent in 1988.

The geothermal energy tax credit is extended for 3 years at 15 percent in 1986, and 10 percent in 1987 and 1988.

The act does not extend to dual purpose solar or geothermal energy property. The conference committee, however, notes with respect to this matter that there are administrative issues which the Treasury Department should resolve under the regulatory authority provided in the Energy Tax Act of 1978 and subsequent Acts with provisions relating to energy tax credits.

The ocean thermal energy tax credit is extended for 3 years at 15 percent.

The biomass energy tax credit is extended for 2 years at 15 percent in 1986 and 10 percent in 1987.

Energy tax credits earned under the affirmative commitment rules will be treated in the same manner as the general investment tax credit for transition property.

2. Alcohol fuels

The act generally incorporates the language of section 864 of H.R. 4800, which permits duty-free entry of (1) ethyl alcohol which has been both fermented and dehydrated in an insular possession or a CBI country, or (2) ethyl alcohol dehydrated in an insular possession or CBI country produced using hydrous ethyl alcohol which is wholly the product of manufacture of any insular possession or beneficiary country having a value not less than 30 percent in 1987, 60 percent in 1988, and 75 percent thereafter of the value of the ethyl alcohol or mixture.

Ethyl alcohol imported for other than fuel uses is excluded from tariff through a certification process with evidence of actual use presented within a reasonable time. The definition of ethyl alcohol is clarified to include mixtures containing ethyl alcohol which are suitable for use as fuel or in producing a fuel.

These provisions apply to articles entered after December 31, 1986, subject to certain transition provisions.

3. Neat alcohol fuels

The 9-cents-per-gallon exemption from the motor fuels excise tax for neat alcohol fuels (methanol and ethanol) is reduced to 6-cents per-gallon after December 31, 1986.

4. Taxicab fuels tax exemption

The 4-cents-per-gallon excise tax exemption from the motor fuels excise taxes for taxicabs meeting specified requirements is extended from October 1, 1985, through September 30, 1988.

TITLE V. TAX SHELTERS; INTEREST EXPENSE

A. AT-RISK RULES

The at-risk rules are extended to the activity of holding real property, with an exception for qualified nonrecourse financing which is secured by real property used in the activity. Under this rule, real estate joint ventures may obtain financing from an otherwise qualified lender who has an equity interest in the venture, provided that the terms of financing are commercially reasonable and substantially similar to loans made to unrelated parties. Seller financing is not treated as qualified nonrecourse financing.

This provision is effective with respect to property acquired after December 31, 1986.

B. LIMITATIONS ON LOSSES AND CREDITS FROM PASSIVE ACTIVITIE

Deductions from passive activities, to the extent that they excee income from all such activities (exclusive of portfolio income), generally may not be deducted against other income of the taxpayer. Similarly credits from passive activities generally are limited to the tax allocable to the passive activities. Suspended losses and credits are carried forward and treated as deductions and credits from passive activities in the next taxable year. When the taxpayer disposes of his entire interest in an activity, any remaining suspended loss incurred in connection with that activity i allowed in full.

Passive activities are defined to include trade or business activities i which the taxpayer does not materially participate (e.g., a limited partnership interest in an activity), and rental activities. Passive activities do not include working interests in oil and gas property in which the taxpayer's form of ownership does not limit liability. Interest attributable to passive activities is not treated as investment interest (see C, below).

In the case of rental real estate activities in which an individual actively participates, up to $25,000 of losses (and credits, in a deduction-equivalent sense) from all such activities may be taken in each year against nonpassive income of the taxpayer. This amount is phased out ratably between $100,000 and $150,000 of adjusted gross income (determined without regard to passive losses).

The rehabilitation and low income housing credits (but not losses from such activities except to the extent stated above) may be used to offset tax on up to $25,000 of nonpassive income regardless of whether the taxpayer actively participates, subject to a phaseout between $200,000 and $250,000 of adjusted gross income (disregarding passive losses). The exceptions under the passive loss rule for the low income housing credit apply only (for the original credit compliance period) to property placed in service before 1990, except if the property is placed in service before 1991 and 10 percent or more of the total project costs are incurred before 1989.

The provision generally applies to individuals, estates, trusts, and personal service corporations (as defined for purposes of the provision). Certain closely held corporations are subject to a more limited rule under which passive losses and credits may not be applied to offset portfolio income.

The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986, but is phased in over five years for interests in passive activities in which the taxpayer invested prior to the date of enactment. During the phase-in period, the amount of excess losses and credits from such activities that are disallowed is limited to 35 percent in taxable years beginning in 1987, 60 percent in taxable years beginning in 1988, 80 percent in taxable years beginning in 1989, 90 percent in taxable years beginning in 1990, and 100 percent in taxable years beginning in 1991 and thereafter. Any passive loss which is disallowed for a taxable year during the phase-in period and carried forward may be allowed in a subsequent year only to the extent there is net passive income in the subsequent year (or the activity is disposed of).

C. INTEREST DEDUCTION LIMITATION

No deduction is allowed for personal interest (such as interest on car loans or credit card balances for personal expenditures). Interest on underpayments of tax (other than certain deferred estate taxes) is treated as personal interest under the provision. Interest on debt secured by the principal residence or a second residence of the taxpayer is deductible only to the extent the amount of the debt does not exceed the purchase price of the residence plus the cost of improvements, except that home mortgage interest on debt in excess of the purchase price plus improvements, up to the fair market value of the residence, is deductible if the debt is incurred for educational or medical purposes.

The deduction for investment interest is generally limited to the amount of net investment income. Interest (and income) from activities subject to the passive loss rules is not treated as investment interest (or investment income). In calculating net investment income, passive losses that are allowed under the passive loss phase-in provision are subtracted from investment income.

The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986 but is phased in. During the phase-in period, the amount of interest disallowed under the provision is limited to 35 percent in taxable years beginning in 1987, 60 percent in taxable years beginning in 1988, 80 percent in taxable years beginning in 1989, 90 percent in taxable years beginning in 1990, and 100 percent in taxable years beginning in 1991 and thereafter. Interest that is disallowed for a taxable year during the phase-in period and carried forward may be allowed in a subsequent year only to the extent there is investment income in excess of net investment interest paid or incurred in such subsequent year.

TITLE VI. CORPORATE TAXATION

A. CORPORATE TAX RATES

The act provides a three-bracket graduated corporate rate structure as follows:

Taxable income:	Tax rate
Not over $50,000	15
Over $50,000 but not over $75,000	25
Over $75,000	34

This structure reduces from five to three the number of corporate income tax brackets, and lowers from 46 to 34 the tax rate applicable to large corporations. The benefit of graduated rates is fully phased out for corporations with more than $335,000 of taxable income (compared to $1,405,000 under present law).

The graduated income tax rates are effective for taxable years beginning on or after July 1, 1987. For taxable years including July 1, 1987, blended rates will apply.

(See Title III,B, above, regarding corporate long-term capital gains.)

B. CORPORATE DIVIDENDS PAID DEDUCTION

The act does not adopt the House bill provision, which would have provided a new 10-percent dividends paid deduction phased in over 10 years.

C. CORPORATE DIVIDENDS RECEIVED DEDUCTION

The 85-percent dividends received deduction under present law is reduced to 80 percent for dividends received after December 31, 1986.

D. EXTRAORDINARY DIVIDENDS

The act requires the basis of stock held by a corporation to be reduced by the untaxed portion of extraordinary dividends, if the stock has not been held for at least 2 years before the date of announcement or agreement about the dividend, with provisions for certain joint venture agreements and preferred stock dividends. For purposes of determining whether a dividend is extraordinary under the 2-year rule, a taxpayer may measure the dividend by reference to the market value of the stock rather than its basis, provided market value is established to the satisfaction of the IRS. Certain other distributions are also treated as extraordinary dividends requiring basis adjustments.

The 2-year provision applies to dividends announced after July 18, 1986; other modifications apply to dividends declared after date of enactment.

E. DIVIDEND EXCLUSION FOR INDIVIDUALS

The $100 dividend exclusion for individuals ($200 for a joint return) is repealed, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

F. STOCK REDEMPTION PAYMENTS

The act provides that no amount paid or incurred by a corporation in connection with a redemption of its stock is deductible or amortizable. This would preclude, for example, deduction of so-called "greenmail" payments made to stockholders to avert a hostile takeover. The provision is effective for amounts paid or incurred after February 28, 1986.

G. LIMITATIONS ON NET OPERATING LOSS (NOL) CARRYOVERS

The act modifies the special limitations on the use of net operating loss (NOL) and other carryforwards.

After a change in ownership of more than 50 percent of value of stock in a loss corporation, however effected, the taxable income available for offset by preownership change NOLs is limited to the long-term tax-exempt rate for the ownership change date, times the value of the loss corporation's equity. In addition, NOL carry forwards are disallowed unless the loss corporation satisfies the continuity-of-business-enterprise rule that applies to tax-free reorganizations for the 2-year period following an ownership change, regardless of the type of transaction that results in the change of control. The act also expands the scope of the special limitations to include built-in losses (other than depreciation) and takes into account built-in gains.

In certain circumstances, creditors who exchange debt for stock in a bankruptcy are treated as continuing shareholders with a provision for reducing NOLs by interest deductions taken with respect to exchanged debt within three years prior to the exchange. However, NOLs are reduced by 50 percent of the excess of the discharged debt over the value of the stock transferred to the creditors, and there are restrictions on subsequent ownership changes within 2 years.

The act includes a number of rules designed to ensure the limitations accomplish their intended objectives and makes other changes to present law, of a more technical nature, including rules relating to the measurement of beneficial ownership. Similar rules are applied to carryforwards other than NOLs, such as net capital losses and excess foreign tax credits, as well as passive activity losses and credits and minimum tax credits under the act.

In general, the provisions apply to changes in ownership that occur after December 31, 1986 (unless pursuant to plans of tax-free reorganization adopted before January 1, 1987, or petitions filed in bankruptcy court before August 14, 1986).

H. GAIN OR LOSS ON LIQUIDATING SALES AND DISTRIBUTIONS

The act provides that, in general, gain or loss is recognized to a corporation on a distribution of its property in complete liquidation, as if it had sold the property at fair market value. This repeals the so-called General Utilities rule. An exception is provided for carryover basis distributions to certain controlling corporate shareholders. There is no general exception for distributions to noncorporate, long-term shareholders; however, there is additional transition relief for certain small, closely held companies.

The provision generally applies to liquidations completed after December 31, 1986 (including deemed liquidations under section 338 where the acquisition date is after December 31, 1986). However, liquidations completed before January 1, 1988 (including deemed liquidations under section 338 where the acquisition date is before 1988) are grandfathered if pursuant to a plan of liquidation adopted before August 1, 1986 or a binding contract for sale of the company entered into before August 1, 1986. Liquidations grandfathered under the special definitions of the House bill as to what constituted adequate action before November 20, 1985 are also grandfathered if they are completed before January 1, 1988. Complete relief (except for ordinary income and short-term gain property) is provided for small, closely held companies on liquidations completed before January 1, 1989. Such companies are those not exceeding $5 million in value and more than 50 percent of whose stock is owned directly or indirectly for a substantial period by no more than 10 individuals. Relief phases out for such closely held companies with value between $5 and $10 million.

The Treasury Department is to study reform of subchapter C and report to the tax-writing committees by January 1, 1988.

I. ALLOCATION OF PURCHASE PRICE IN CERTAIN ASSET SALES

The act conforms the basis allocation rules in asset acquisitions to the rules for stock acquisitions where basis is stepped up (under section 338 rules) so that both buyer and seller would use the so-called "residual" method of allocating the purchase price to nondepreciable goodwill and going concern value. The Treasury Department is authorized to require information reporting with respect to purchase price allocations. The provision applies to transactions after May 6, 1986, unless pursuant to a binding contract in effect on that date.

J. RELATED PARTY SALES

The act modifies the rules that limit installment sales treatment and ordinary income treatment on certain sales between related parties. The definition of related parties is expanded so that persons and entities with certain more than 50-percent relationships are covered (rather than the 80-percent relationships under present law) and certain other cases are covered. In some cases, ratable basis recovery and conformity between buyer and seller regarding recognition of income and basis are required, instead of denying deferred income treatment to the seller.

This provision applies to sales after the date of enactment, unless made pursuant to a binding contract in effect before August 14, 1986.

K. AMORTIZABLE BOND PREMIUM

The act requires amortizable bond premium deductions to be treated as interest, except as provided in regulations.

L. COOPERATIVE HOUSING CORPORATIONS

Under the act, cooperative housing corporations that charge tenant-stockholders with a portion of the cooperative's interest or taxes in a manner that reasonably reflects the cost to the cooperative of the interest or taxes allocable to each tenant-stockholder's dwelling unit, may elect to have such tenant-stockholders deduct the separately allocated amounts for income tax purposes (rather than amounts based on proportionate ownership of shares of the cooperative).

In addition, under the act, the tax treatment of individuals owning stock in cooperative housing corporations is extended to corporations, trusts, and other entities that are stockholders. Also, the act disallows maintenance and lease deductions by tenant-stockholders in situations where the amount paid by such tenant-stockholders is properly chargeable to the capital account of the cooperative. These provisions are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

M. REAL ESTATE INVESTMENT TRUSTS

The act modifies several aspects of the requirements for qualification as, and the taxation of, real estate investment trusts (REITs). Under the act, relief is granted from certain shareholder and income and asset requirements for the first year that an entity otherwise qualifies as a REIT. In addition, relief is granted from certain income and asset requirements for the first year after a REIT receives new equity capital and certain new debt capital. REITs also are permitted to hold assets in wholly owned subsidiaries under the act.

The act modifies the definition of rents from real property to permit REITs to perform those services that would not result in the receipt of unrelated business income if performed by certain tax-exempt entities, without using an independent contractor. The act also includes in the definition of rents from real property and the definition of interest, rent, or interest that is based on the net income of the tenant or debtor, but only if such net income is based on amounts that would be treated as rents from real property if received directly by the REIT. The act also permits income from certain shared appreciation mortgages to be treated as qualifying income for a REIT.

The act provides certain relief from the distribution requirement where a REIT has certain types of income that are not accompanied by the receipt of cash. The REIT is required to pay tax on amounts not distributed, however. The act also applies to REITs the same minimum requirement for distribution within a taxable year applicable to regulated investment companies. In addition, the safe harbor under which sales by a REIT may not be treated as prohibited transactions is expanded, the computation of the amount of capital gains dividends that a REIT may pay is modified, and one of the penalties relating to the distribution of deficiency dividends is eliminated.

These provisions generally are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

N. MORTGAGE-BACKED SECURITIES

The act provides a new vehicle, referred to as a real estate mortgage pool (REMP) for the issuance of multiple class mortgage-backed securities. The REMP may be created in the form of a corporation, partnership or trust. The assets that the REMP is permitted to hold generally are limited to mortgages secured by real property.

Under the act, the net income of the REMP is allocated to and taken into account by holders of "regular" and "residual" interests in the REMP. Amounts in excess of an imputed yield on the residual interest are treated as unrelated business income, are subject to withholding at the statutory rate, and may not be offset by net operating losses (other than net operating losses of thrift institutions).

The act provides rules relating to the transfer of mortgages to a REMP in exchange for regular or residual interests. In addition, the act provides rules relating to subsequent transfers of regular and residual interests. The act also clarifies the application of the original issue discount and market discount rules for certain mortgage-backed securities. In addition, the act contains certain provisions which are intended to assure that only one set of Federal income tax consequences arises from the issuance of multiple class mortgage-backed securities.

These provisions generally are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986. The provisions relating to other type of entities issuing mortgage-backed securities generally are effective as of January 1, 1992.

O. REGULATED INVESTMENT COMPANIES

Under the act, regulated investment companies (RICs) are required to distribute in each calendar year all but a de minimis amount of their ordinary income and all but a portion of their capital gains derived during the year. Also, RICs are required to pay a 5-percent nondeductible excise on distributions to the extent that the distribution requirement for the calendar year is not met.

In addition, the act provides that permitted income for RICs generally includes income from foreign currencies, and options and futures contracts, derived with respect to the RIC's business of investing. In the case of RICs that have series funds, each fund is treated as a separate corporation. The time for filing notices for capital gains dividends and certain other purposes is extended from 45 to 60 days. RICs are treated as third party recordkeepers. In applying the "short-short test," certain gains from hedging transactions are not taken into account. Business development companies are eligible to elect RIC status. Certain institutional RICs are permitted to deduct preference dividends.

These changes generally are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

P. DEFINITION OF PERSONAL HOLDING COMPANY INCOME

An exception from the definition of personal holding company income and foreign personal holding company income is provided for computer software royalties received by certain corporations that are actively engaged in the business of developing computer software, effective for past and future years. An exception from the definition of personal holding company income also is provided for certain interest income of a specified broker dealer in securities, effective for interest received on or after the date of enactment.

TITLE VII. MINIMUM TAX PROVISIONS

A. INDIVIDUAL MINIMUM TAX

The present-law individual alternative minimum tax is retained with the following modifications.

The minimum tax rate is increased to 21 percent. The exemption amount is phased out at a rate of 25 cents on the dollar for alternative minimum taxable income in excess of $150,000 ($112,500 for single taxpayers and $75,000 for married taxpayers filing separately).

Accelerated depreciation on all property placed in service after 1986 (other than property granted a transitional exception for regular tax depreciation and investment tax credit purposes) is a preference to the extent different from alternative depreciation (using the 150 percent declining balance method for personal property). The preference for intangible drilling cost deductions is reduced by 65 percent of net oil and gas income. Tax-exempt interest on newly issued private activity bonds (but not qualified 501(c)(3) bonds) and untaxed appreciation on charitable contributions of appreciated property are preferences. Use of the completed contract method of accounting and of the installment method are preferences.

Certain passive farm losses are denied, and the rule limiting passive losses for regular tax purposes applies under the minimum tax without a phase-in. The definition of investment interest is conformed to that applying for regular tax purposes, and a carryforward is provided for disallowed interest deductions.

Certain timing preferences (such as depreciation) are measured for post-1986 property on an aggregated basis, instead of item-by-item without netting. A credit is allowed against the regular tax for prior years' minimum tax liability attributable to timing preferences. Net operating losses and foreign tax credits are not permitted to reduce the minimum tax liability that otherwise would arise (disregarding regular tax liability) by more than 90 percent.

These provisions apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986. The treatment of interest on private activity bonds as a preference item applies to bonds issued after August 7, 1986, except that in the case of bonds covered under the Joint Statements on Effective Dates of March 14, 1986, and July 17, 1986, such treatment applies to bonds issued on or after September 1, 1986.

B. CORPORATE MINIMUM TAX

An alternative minimum tax similar to the individual minimum tax, replaces the present-law add-on tax. The rate is 20 percent, and there is a $40,000 exemption amount (phased out at the rate of 25 cents on the dollar for alternative minimum taxable income in excess of $150,000).

The items of tax preference include the corporate preferences under present law, accelerated depreciation (to the extent different from alternative depreciation, using the 150 percent declining balance method for personal property) for all property (other than transitional property) placed in service after 1986, intangible drilling costs (with an offset for 65 percent of net oil and gas income), use of the completed contract method of accounting and of the installment method, capital construction funds for shipping companies, and mining exploration and development costs. Tax-exempt interest on newly issued private activity bonds (but not qualified 501(c)(3) bonds), and untaxed appreciation on charitable contributions of appreciated property are preferences.

For 1987 through 1989, one-half of the excess of pretax book income of the taxpayer (including members of a group filing a consolidated tax return for the year), over other alternative minimum taxable income, is a preference. After 1989, pretax book income is replaced for this purpose by earnings and profits, with certain adjustments.

Rules similar to those under the individual alternative minimum tax apply to incentive credits, the foreign tax credit, net operating losses, and the credit for minimum tax liability attributable to timing preferences. As a transition rule, investment tax credits generally are permitted to offset 25 percent of minimum tax liability.

These provisions apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986. The treatment of interest on private activity bonds as a preference item applies to bonds issued after August 7, 1986, except that in the case of bonds covered under the Joint Statements on Effective Dates (described above), such treatment applies to bonds issued on or after September 1, 1986.

TITLE VIII. ACCOUNTING PROVISIONS

A. LIMITATIONS ON THE USE OF THE CASH METHOD OF ACCOUNTING

The act prohibits the use of the cash method of accounting by any C corporation, partnership that has a C corporation as a partner, tax-exempt trust with unrelated business income, or tax shelter. Excepted entities, that may continue to use the cash method, are farming and timber businesses, qualified personal service corporations, and entities (other than tax shelters) with average annual gross receipts of $5 million or less.

Qualified personal service corporations are corporations that meet a function test and an ownership test. The function test is met if substantially all the activities of the corporation are the performance of services in the fields of health, law, engineering, architecture, accounting, actuarial science, performing arts, or consulting. The ownership test is met if substantially all of the value of the outstanding stock of the corporation is owned by present or retired employees, the estates of such persons, by any person who acquired its ownership interest as the result of the death of such a person within the last 24 months, or by a holding company the stock of which is owned by employees of the corporation or employees of an affiliate of the corporation that is engaged in the same field of service. Stock owned by an ESOP or pension plan is considered as owned by the beneficiaries of the plan.

The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986. Any adjustment required by the provision is to be taken into income over a period not to exceed 4 years.

B. SIMPLIFIED DOLLAR-VALUE LIFO METHOD FOR CERTAIN SMALL BUSINESSES

The act provides an election to use a simplified method of computing LIFO inventory values for taxpayers with average annual gross receipts of $5 million or less, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986. The method uses inventory pools established in accordance with general categories of inventory items published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

C. INSTALLMENT SALES

Under the act, use of the installment method is denied for sales pursuant to a revolving credit plan and for sales of certain publicly traded property.

The act also limits the use of the installment method based on the ratio of the taxpayer's debt to assets for all sales of property held for sale to customers, and for sales of real property used in a trade or held for the production of rental income, if the selling price of such property exceeds $150,000. The provision does not apply, however, to installment obligations arising from the sale of crops, livestock held for slaughter, and certain farm property. Personal use property, and debt related to such property, is not taken into account in applying the limitation.

Taxpayers selling certain residential lots and timeshares are permitted to elect to pay interest on the deferral of tax liability attributable to the use of the installment method, rather than be subject to the limitations under the act. An exception from the provisions of the act is provided for certain sales by a manufacturer to a dealer where the term of the installment obligation is based on the time that the property is resold by the dealer.

The denial of use of the installment method for sales pursuant to revolving credit plans and for sales of certain publicly traded property is effective for sales after December 31, 1986. Taxpayers selling property on revolving credit plans are permitted to spread any adjustment arising from the change in accounting method over a period not exceeding 4 years. The limitation on the use of the installment method based on the ratio of the taxpayer's debt to assets is effective as of January 1, 1987, for sales on or after March 1, 1986.

D. CAPITALIZATION OF INVENTORY, CONSTRUCTION, AND DEVELOPMENT COSTS

The act provides that, in general, uniform rules for determining costs that must be capitalized apply to all persons who produce property or acquire property for resale. Thus, the rules apply to inventory, noninventory property produced or held for sale to customers, and assets constructed for self-use. The rules are based on present law capitalization rules applicable to extended period long-term contracts. Interest is subject to a special rule requiring capitalization only if the property is real property, long-lived property, or property requiring more than 2 years (1 year in the case of items costing more than $1 million) to produce.

An exception from the rules is provided for personal property held for resale by retailers and wholesalers whose average annual gross receipts do not exceed $10 million. Simplified methods of absorbing costs will be provided under regulations for personal property held by resale by other retailers and wholesalers.

The uniform capitalization rules generally apply to costs paid or incurred after December 31, 1986. In the case of inventories, the rules apply to the taxpayer's first taxable year beginning after December 31, 1986.

E. LONG-TERM CONTRACTS

The act requires certain changes to methods of accounting for long-term contracts.

F. RESERVES FOR BAD DEBTS

The act generally repeals the reserve method of computing deductions for bad debts, other than for certain financial institutions (see IX.A, below). The reserve method of computing deductions for losses on debt obligations guaranteed by a dealer also is repealed. Taxpayers that are not allowed to continue to use the reserve method are allowed a deduction for bad debts when the debt becomes wholly or partially worthless. The balance of any reserve for bad debts or guarantees is taken into income ratably over a period of 4 years.

The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986. A partner in a partnership or a shareholder in an S corporation, that would otherwise be required by this provision to include more than 12 months of income in a single taxable year, may include such excess in income rotably over a period of 4 taxable years.

G. TAXABLE YEAR OF PARTNERSHIPS, S CORPORATIONS, AND PERSONAL SERVICE CORPORATIONS

The act requires that partnerships, S corporations, and personal service corporations use a taxable year that generally conforms to the taxable year of their owners.

A partnership must use (in order of priority) the taxable year of the partners owning the majority of partnership profits and capital, the taxable year of all of its principal partners, or the calendar year. An S corporation or a personal service corporation must use the calendar year. An exception is made for any partnership, S corporation, or personal service corporation that establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Treasury a business purpose for having a different taxable year. The deferral of income to partners or shareholders for any period is not to be treated as a business purpose. Personal service corporations may not deduct payments to owner-employees prior to the year such payments are made.

The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986. A partner in a partnership or a shareholder in an S corporation, that would otherwise be required by this provision to include more than 12 months of income in a single taxable year, may include such excess in income ratably over a period of 4 taxable years.

H. SPECIAL TREATMENT OF CERTAIN ITEMS

1. Qualified discount coupons

The act repeals the election to deduct the cost of redeeming qualified discount coupons that are received for redemption after the close of the taxable year. A deduction will be allowed only for the cost of redeeming coupons that have been received by the close of the taxable year. The repeal of the election is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

2. Utilities using accrual accounting

The act provides that taxpayers using the accrual method of accounting must recognize income attributable to the sale or furnishing of utility services to customers not later than the year in which such services are provided to customers. The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986. Any adjustment required by the provision is to be taken into income ratably over a period of 4 taxable years.

3. Contributions in aid of construction

The act provides that a utility must include in gross income the value of any property, including money, that it receives to encourage it to provide services to, or for the benefit of, the person transferring the property. The provision of present law that allows certain utilities to treat these amounts as contributions to capital is repealed. The change is effective for contributions received after December 31, 1986.

4. Discharge of indebtedness of solvent taxpayers

The act repeals the provision of present law that allows income from the discharge of qualified business indebtedness to be excluded from gross income. Income from the discharge of indebtedness must be recognized currently unless the discharge occurs in a title 11 (bankruptcy) case or when the debtor is considered to be insolvent. The provision is effective for discharges of indebtedness occurring after December 31, 1986.

TITLE IX. FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

A. RESERVE FOR BAD DEBTS

1. Commercial banks

Commercial banks may continue to compute their deductions for losses on bad debts under present law, except that "large banks" must use the specific charge-off method to compute the deduction for bad debts. A bank is considered to be a large bank if, for any taxable year beginning after 1986, the sum of the average adjusted bases of the assets of the bank (or of the assets of any controlled group to which the bank is a member) exceeds $500 million.

Large banks required to change their method of accounting for bad debts must recapture the balance in reserve for bad debts over a period of 4 years (10 percent in the first year, 20 percent in the second, 30 percent in the third, and 40 percent in the fourth), or are required to account for bad debts on existing loans under a "cutoff" method. A large bank is not required to recapture any of its existing reserves during any year in which the bank is "troubled," i.e., if the amount of its nonperforming loans exceeds 75 percent of its equity capital.

These changes are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

2. Thrift institutions

Thrift institutions that use the reserve method to compute their deductions for losses on bad debts may do so using either the experience method allowed to small banks, or the percentage of taxable income method with the percentage reduced to 8 percent from 40 percent. In order to be eligible for the special treatment of bad debt reserves, at least 60 percent of the assets of the institution must be invested in qualifying assets.

The excess of the bad debt deduction of thrift institutions computed under the percentage of taxable income method over the deduction computed under the experience method is treated as a tax preference for alternative minimum tax purposes. The excess will not, however, constitute a preference item for purposes of the 20-percent reduction of present law for corporate tax preferences.

These provisions apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

B. INTEREST ON DEBT TO PURCHASE OR CARRY TAX-EXEMPT OBLIGATIONS

The act disallows 100 percent (as opposed to 20 percent under present law) of deductions of all financial institutions for interest expense allocable to tax-exempt obligations acquired after August 7, 1986. A 20-percent disallowance continues to apply with respect to tax-exempt obligations acquired after December 31, 1982, and before August 8, 1986. Certain governmental and section 501(c)(3) organization bonds issued by small governmental units, in aggregate amounts not exceeding $10 million per year, will remain subject to a 20-percent disallowance.

This provision is effective for taxable years ending after December 31, 1986, with respect to tax-exempt obligations acquired after August 7, 1986. A transitional rule is provided for obligations acquired pursuant to a written commitment to purchase entered into before September 25, 1985.

C. NET OPERATING LOSS CARRYOVERS OF FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

The provision of present law allowing a carryback period of 10 years and a carryforward period of 5 years for the net operating losses of depository institutions is repealed, effective for losses incurred in taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986, except for the portion of the losses of commercial banks (not including thrift institutions) that are attributable to bad debts in taxable years before 1994. Other losses incurred in taxable years beginning after 1986 are required to be carried back 3 years and carried forward 15 years in accordance with the general rules for net operating losses. Losses incurred by thrift institutions in years after 1981 and before 1986 may be carried back 10 years and carried forward 8 years.

D. REORGANIZATIONS OF FINANCIALLY TROUBLED THRIFT INSTITUTIONS

The act repeals the special rules of present law that provide special relief to reorganizations of financially troubled thrift institutions. In general, these rules provide that the continuity of interest requirement is satisfied, and net operating losses may be carried over, if the depositors of a financially troubled thrift become depositors of the surviving corporation. In addition, these rules provide that certain payments from the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation to financially troubled thrifts are exempt from the thrift's income and do not reduce its basis in assets.

The repeal is effective for reorganizations occurring on or after January 1, 1989.

E. LOSSES ON DEPOSITS IN INSOLVENT FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

Under the act, individuals with deposits in certain insolvent financial institutions may elect to deduct as a casualty loss any loss with respect to their deposits at the time it can be reasonably estimated, effective for losses incurred in taxable years beginning after December 31, 1982.

TITLE X. INSURANCE PRODUCTS AND COMPANIES

A. INSURANCE POLICYHOLDERS

1. Exclusion for interest on installment payments of life insurance proceeds

The act repeals the provision of present law under which the income on the proceeds of life insurance that are paid to a surviving spouse as periodic payments is includible in gross income only to the extent that the amount of income paid during any taxable year exceeds $1,000. The provision is effective for amounts received by a beneficiary with respect to deaths occurring after the date of enactment.

2. Treatment of structured settlement agreements

The act limits the exclusion from income for qualified assignments under structured settlement agreements to those assignments requiring the payment of damages on account of a claim for personal injury or sickness involving physical injury or sickness (including death), effective for assignments entered into after December 31, 1986.

3. Treatment of interest on loans from life insurance policies

A deduction for interest on policyholder loans is not allowed in the case of loans aggregating more than $50,000 per officer, employee, or owner of an interest in any trade or business carried on by the taxpayer. The legislative history restates the present-law rules relating to the deduction for interest on loans incurred to carry or purchase single premium life insurance contracts, including a Senate floor colloquy relating to universal life insurance.

4. Treatment of policies to cover prearranged funeral expenses

Life insurance policies purchased to cover payment of burial expenses or prearranged funeral expenses may be treated as life insurance contracts if (1) the initial death benefit is $5,000 or less in the aggregate per policyholder, (2) the policies provide for fixed annual death benefit increases not exceeding certain amounts, and (3) the death benefit under the contract never exceeds $25,000.

5. Deduction for nonbusiness casualty losses

Under the agreement, in the case of a loss covered (wholly or partially) by insurance, a taxpayer is permitted to deduct a casualty loss for damages to property not used in a trade or business or in a transaction entered into for profit only to the extent of losses not covered by insurance and only if the taxpayer files a timely insurance claim with respect to damage to that property. The provision applies to losses sustained in taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

B. LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

1. Special life insurance company deduction

Under the act, the special life insurance company deduction equal to 20 percent of tentative life insurance company taxable income (LICTI) is repealed, generally effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986. A special rule is provided for a certain life insurance company.

2. Tax-exempt organizations engaged in insurance activities

The act provides, for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986, that certain organizations (described in secs. 501(c)(3) or (4)) are entitled to tax exemption only if no substantial part of their activities is providing commercial-type insurance, including the issuance of annuity contracts. In addition, the commercial-type insurance activities of an otherwise tax-exempt organization are treated as an unrelated trade or business that is subject to tax under subchapter L.

Commercial-type insurance does not include insurance provided at substantially below cost to a class of charitable recipients, incidental health insurance provided by a health maintenance organization of a kind customarily provided by such organizations, or property and casualty insurance (such as fire insurance) provided directly or through a wholly owned corporation by a church or convention or association or churches.

In the case of certain existing tax-exempt organizations providing health insurance, the agreement provides that these organizations are (1) taxable as stock property and casualty insurance companies, (2) allowed a deduction for regular tax purposes (not to exceed taxable income) equal to one quarter of the year's annual claims and administrative expenses less prior year's surplus, (3) given a fresh start with respect to accounting methods, including loss reserves, and (4) exempt from the provision of the act regarding unearned premiums of property and casualty insurance companies. The basis of assets of existing organizations is stepped up to fair market value immediately prior to the effective date for purposes of determining gain.

To be eligible for this special treatment, other organizations are required to satisfy certain conditions: (1) at least 10 percent of accident and health insurance is provided to individuals and small groups (disregarding Medicare supplemental coverage), defining a small group as the lesser of 15 individuals or the number of individuals required for a small group under State law, (2) full-year open enrollment (including conversions) is provided for individuals and small groups, (3) policies covering individuals provide full coverage of preexisting conditions of high-risk individuals without a price differential (with a reasonable waiting period), and coverage is provided without regard to age, income, or employment status of persons under age 65, and (4) at least 35 percent of enrollment is community rated.

Further, the act requires the Department of the Treasury to conduct a study of fraternal beneficiary associations (sec. 501(c)(8)) that received gross annual insurance premiums in excess of $25 million in 1984.

Exemptions from the provision are provided for TIAA/CREF (pension business only), for certain church-sponsored insurance, for YMCA (retirement fund), for administrative services performed by municipal leagues, and for the Missouri Hospital Association.

3. Physicians' and surgeons' mutual protection associations

The act provides that contributions to a pooled malpractice insurance association are currently deductible to the extent they do not exceed the cost of a commercial insurance premium and are included in the association's income, and that refunds of such contributions are deductible to the fund only to the extent included in income of the recipient. The provision applies to associations operating under State law prior to January 1, 1984, and is effective for contributions and refunds after the date of enactment of the bill.

4. Operations loss deduction of insolvent companies

Under the act, a life insurance company may apply current losses from operations and loss carryovers against the increase in its taxable income attributable to amounts deemed distributed from the policyholder surplus account, if the company is required to be liquidated pursuant to a court order and certain other criteria are met.

C. PROPERTY AND CASUALTY INSURANCE COMPANIES

1. Inclusion in income of 20 percent of unearned premium reserves

Under the act, 20 percent of the annual increase in unearned premiums is included in property and casualty insurance company income. Also, 20 percent of the unearned premium reserve outstanding at the end of the most recent taxable year beginning before January 1, 1987, is included ratably over a 6-year period commencing with the first taxable year beginning after December 31, 1986.

In the case of insurance against default in the payment of principal or interest on securities with a maturity of 5 years or more (i.e., bond insurance), the percentage of unearned premiums included in income is 10 percent, rather than 20 percent.

If a property and casualty insurance company ceases to be subject to tax as a property and casualty insurance company, the remaining portion (if any) of the amount to be ratably included over six years is includible for the taxable year preceding the taxable year in which the company ceases to be taxed as a property and casualty insurance company.

2. Treatment of certain dividends and tax-exempt income

For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986, a property and casualty insurance company's deduction for losses incurred is reduced by a portion of the company's tax-exempt income and the deductible portion of dividends received (with special rules for dividends from affiliates). The portion taken into account is 15 percent of tax-exempt income and the deductible portion of dividends received from investments made after August 7, 1986.

3. Treatment of loss reserves

The deduction for unpaid losses (i.e., reported losses that have not been paid, estimates of losses incurred but not reported, resisted claims, and unpaid loss adjustment expenses) is limited to the amount of discounted unpaid losses. This provision applies to property and casualty lines of business reported on Schedules O and P of the annual statement approved by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, to accident and health reserves (other than life insurance reserves subject to discounting under life insurance company tax rules), and to international and reinsurance lines of business. This treatment applies to loss reserves of both property and casualty insurance companies and life insurance companies to the extent such loss reserves are not subject to life insurance company reserve rules. Loss adjustment expenses of life insurance companies are not subject to discounting because they are not deductible.

In the case of title insurance companies, the agreement applies the discounting rules to the title insurance State law unearned premium reserves. The discounting period is the period over which the unearned premium reserves are deferred under State law, and the discount rate the rate generally applicable to property and casualty insurers. Title insu ance case reserves are subject to discounting under the same method property and casualty insurance loss reserves.

The amount of the discounted unpaid losses as of the end of any taxab year attributable to any accident year is determined by using (1) the gro amount to be subjected to discounting (i.e., the undiscounted loss r serves), (2) the pattern of payment of claims, including the duration years over which the claims will be paid, and (3) the rate of interest to b assumed in calculating the discounted reserve.

The interest rate to be applied is 100 percent of the applicable Feder midterm rate applied on a 5-year rolling average basis. The loss payme patterns are to be promulgated by the Secretary of the Treasury for 19 and every fifth year thereafter, taking account of aggregate industr experience for each line of business.

A company may elect to use its own loss payment pattern experienc Special rules are provided for long-tail lines and for international a reinsurance lines of business. The provision is effective for taxable yea beginning after 1986, with a fresh start provision and special treatment fo reserve strengthening in taxable years beginning after December 31, 198

4. Repeal of protection against loss account

Effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986, th deduction for contributions to the protection against loss (PAL) accou for mutual property and casualty companies is repealed. Balances in th account are includible in income as under present law.

5. Revision of special treatment for small companies

Under the act, property and casualty companies (whether stock o mutual) with net written premiums or direct written premiums (whicheve is greater) that do not exceed $350,000 for the taxable year are exem from tax. Property and casualty companies (whether stock or mutual with net written premiums or direct written premiums (whichever greater) that exceed $350,000, but do not exceed $1,200,000, may elect be taxed only on taxable investment income. In the case of a controll group, these amounts are determined on a group basis, applying 50 percent control test. The provisions are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

6. Study of property and casualty insurance companies

Under the act, the Treasury Department is required to conduct a stud of the tax treatment of policyholder dividends of mutual property an casualty insurance companies for regular as well as minimum tax purpose and an examination of whether the property and casualty insurance industry meets projected revenue targets.

TITLE XI. PENSIONS AND DEFERRED COMPENSATION; EMPLOYEE BENEFITS; ESOPs

A. TREATMENT OF TAX-FAVORED SAVINGS

1. Individual retirement arrangements (IRAs)

Under the act, deductible IRA contributions are permitted as unde present law (1) if an individual (or a married couple) has adjusted gro income (AGI) under a phaseout level, or (2) if the individual is not a active participant (or, in the case of a married individual, neither th individual nor his or her spouse is an active participant) in an employe maintained retirement plan for any part of the plan year ending with o within the individual's taxable year. The phaseout begins at $25,000 for a individual and $40,000 for a married couple filing a joint return. Fo purposes of the phaseout, AGI is determined without regard to any IR contributions.

For an individual who is an active participant in an employer-maintained retirement plan, the IRA deduction limit is reduced proportionatel for AGI between $25,000 and $35,000. For married couples filing a joi return, the IRA deduction limit for each spouse is reduced proportionatel for AGI between $40,000 and $50,000, if either spouse is an active participant in an employer-maintained retirement plan.

For purposes of determining whether an individual is an active participant in an employer-maintained retirement plan, an employer-maintaine retirement plan means (1) a qualified pension, profit-sharing, or stock bonus plan (sec. 401(a)), (2) a qualified annuity plan (sec. 403(a)), (3) a simplified employee pension (sec. 408(k)), (4) a plan established for its employees by the United States, by a State or political subdivision, or by any agency or instrumentality of the United States or a State or political subdivision, (5) a plan described in section 501(c)(18), or (6) a tax-sheltered annuity (sec. 403(b)).

The act provides that individuals may make nondeductible IRA contributions to the extent that they are not eligible to make deductible IRA contributions. Earnings on nondeductible IRA contributions are not subject to tax until they are withdrawn.

Under the act, the rules relating to spousal IRA contributions are amended to eliminate the requirement that the spouse have no earned income for the year in order to be eligible for the spousal IRA contribution.

The act also amends present law to permit the acquisition by IRAs of certain gold and silver coins issued by the United States.

The provisions are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986, except that the provision eliminating the requirement that the spouse have no earned income in order to be eligible for the spousal IRA contribution is effective for years beginning after December 31, 1985.

2. Qualified cash or deferred arrangements (sec. 401(k) plans)

Under the act, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986, the maximum amount that an employee can elect to defer for any taxable year under all cash or deferred arrangements in which the employee participates is limited to $7,000. The $7,000 cap is adjusted for inflation by reference to percentage increases in the dollar limit under a defined benefit plan (sec. 415(d)).

Effective generally for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986, and, in the case of plans maintained by State or local government employers, for years beginning after December 31, 1988, the act modifies the special nondiscrimination test applicable to qualified cash or deferred arrangements by (1) modifying the percentage tests, (2) clarifying the rules for aggregating elective contributions with certain nonelective contributions for purposes of the special nondiscrimination test, (3) redefining the group of highly compensated employees and compensation to conform to the new uniform definitions used generally for purposes of the nondiscrimination rules applicable to qualified plans and employee benefit programs (described below), (4) establishing a mechanism for the return of contributions that violate the special nondiscrimination test, and (5) imposing an excise tax on contributions that are not returned (or forfeited) within a specified period of time.

Under the act, the actual deferral percentage for an employer's highly compensated employees may not exceed 125 percent of the actual deferral percentage of eligible nonhighly compensated employees. Alternatively, the actual deferral percentage of an employer's highly compensated employees may not exceed the lesser of 200 percent of the actual deferral percentage of the nonhighly compensated employees, or the actual deferral percentage of the nonhighly compensated employees plus two percentage points.

The act modifies certain present-law restrictions and imposes several additional restrictions on qualified cash or deferred arrangements. First, qualifying total distributions may be made to a participant in a qualified cash or deferred arrangement on account of the sale of a subsidiary or of substantially all the assets used in a trade or business or the termination of the plan of which the arrangement is a part, effective for sales or terminations occurring after December 31, 1984.

Second, the act limits hardship withdrawals under a qualified cash or deferred arrangement to the amount of an employee's elective deferrals. In addition, the act provides that a qualified cash or deferred arrangement cannot require, as a condition of participation in the arrangement, that an employee complete a period of service with the employer (or employers) maintaining the plan in excess of 1 year of service, effective for years beginning after December 31, 1988.

Under the act, effective for years beginning after December 31, 1988, an employer generally may not condition, either directly or indirectly, contributions and benefits (other than matching contributions) upon an employee's elective deferrals. An exception is provided for certain qualified offset arrangements.

The act provides that qualified cash or deferred arrangements are not available to employees of State or local governments, unless the plan was adopted before May 6, 1986, or to employees of tax-exempt organizations, unless the plan was adopted before July 1, 1986.

3. Employer matching contributions and employee contributions

Under the act, a special nondiscrimination test is applied to employer matching contributions and employee contributions under all qualified defined contribution plans and employee contributions under a defined benefit plan (to the extent allocated to a separate account on behalf of the employee). This nondiscrimination test applies in lieu of the usual nondiscrimination rules applicable to the amount of contributions under qualified plans and is similar to the special nondiscrimination test applicable to qualified cash or deferred arrangements under the act.

The provisions generally are effective for plan years beginning after December 31, 1986.

4. Unfunded deferred compensation plans of State and local governments

The act (1) applies the rules relating to unfunded deferred compensation plans to tax-exempt organizations; (2) requires that amounts deferred on a before-tax basis by an employee under a simplified employee plan (SEP), a qualified cash or deferred arrangement (sec. 401(k)), or other elective contribution arrangement, be taken into account in determining whether the employee's deferrals under an eligible deferred compensation plan exceed the limits on deferrals under the eligible plan; (3) modifies the distribution requirements applicable to eligible deferred compensation plans, (4) permits certain rollovers between eligible deferred compensation plans; and (5) modifies the rule that deferrals under an eligible plan are includible in an employee's income when made available to the employee. An exception is provided for qualified State judicial plans.

The provision relating to application of the unfunded deferred compensation plan rules to tax-exempt organizations is effective for years beginning after December 31, 1986. The distribution provisions are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1988.

5. Deferred annuity contracts

Under the act, if a deferred annuity contract is held by a person who is not a natural person (e.g., a corporation or a trust is not a natural person), then the contract is not treated as an annuity contract for Federal income tax purposes and the investment income on the contract for any taxable year is treated as ordinary income received or accrued by the owner of the contract during the taxable year. An exemption from the rule is provided for qualified funding assets purchased by structured settlement companies and annuities held by an employer with respect to a terminated pension plan.

In addition, the act increases the early withdrawal tax to 10 percent and modifies the circumstances under which the additional income tax on early withdrawals from deferred annuity contracts will be imposed to conform generally to the circumstances under which the early withdrawal tax is imposed under qualified plans pursuant to the act.

The provisions are effective for years beginning after December 31, 1986.

6. Elective contributions to tax-sheltered annuities (sec. 403(b))

Under the act, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986, the maximum amount that an employee can elect to defer for any taxable year under all tax-sheltered annuities in which the employee participates is limited to $9,500. The $9,500 cap will be adjusted for inflation when the $7,000 cap on elective deferrals under a qualified cash or deferred arrangement reaches $9,500. A special catch-up election is provided.

7. Simplified employee pensions (SEPs)

The act revises the requirements relating to SEPs to permit an employee to elect to have SEP contributions made on the employee's behalf or to receive the contributions in cash without being treated as having constructively received the amounts contributed to the SEP pursuant to the employee's election.

Elective deferrals under a SEP are to be treated like elective deferrals under a qualified cash or deferred arrangement and, thus, are subject to the $7,000 (indexed) cap on elective deferrals. Consistent with the rules applicable to elective deferrals under a qualified cash or deferred arrangement or tax-sheltered annuity under present law, elective deferrals under a SEP are treated as wages for employment tax purposes.

The bill provides that the election to have amounts contributed to a SEP or received in cash is available only if all of the employees of the employer are eligible to make such an election at least 50 percent of the employees of the employer elect to have amounts contributed to the SEP and is available only in a taxable year in which the employer maintaining the SEP has 25 or fewer employees as of the beginning of the year.

In addition, elective deferrals under SEPs are subject to special nondiscrimination rules similar to the special nondiscrimination rules applicable to qualified cash or deferred arrangements.

The act makes miscellaneous changes to the SEP requirements to decrease the administrative burden of maintaining a SEP.

The provisions are effective for years beginning after December 31, 1986.

8. Salary reduction permitted under section 501(c)(18) plans

Under the act, employees who participate in a sec. 501(c)(18) pension plan are permitted to elect to make deductible contributions up to the lesser of $7,000 (coordinated with other elective deferrals) or 25 percent of the compensation of the employee includible in income for the taxable year subject to nondiscrimination rules similar to the rules applicable to qualified cash or deferred arrangements.

The provision is effective for years beginning after December 31, 1986.

B. MINIMUM STANDARDS FOR QUALIFIED PLANS

1. Coverage requirements for qualified plans

Under present law, a qualified plan is required to cover employees in general rather than merely the employees of an employer who are officers, shareholders, or highly compensated. A plan generally satisfies the present-law coverage rule if (1) it benefits a certain percentage of the employer's work force (percentage test), or (2) it benefits a classification of employees determined by the Secretary of the Treasury not to discriminate in favor of employees who are officers, shareholders, or highly compensated (classification test).

The act modifies the present-law coverage rules to require that at least one of the following tests is satisfied:

(a) at least 70 percent of all nonhighly compensated employees are covered by the plan;

(b) the percentage of nonhighly compensated employees covered by the plan is at least 70 percent of the percentage of highly compensated employees covered by the plan; or

(c) the group of employees covered by the plan satisfies the present-law classification test and the average benefit provided to nonhighly compensated employees (as a percentage of compensation) is at least 70 percent of the average benefit provided to highly compensated employees (as a percentage of compensation).

For purposes of determining whether the average benefit provided to nonhighly compensated employees is at least 70 percent of the average benefit provided to highly compensated employees, all employer-provided benefits and employer contributions, including elective deferrals under a qualified cash or deferred arrangement, are taken into account.

In addition, the act (1) clarifies the circumstances under which an employee will be treated as benefiting under a plan for purposes of the coverage rules, (2) modifies, for purposes of satisfying the new coverage requirements, the circumstances under which certain categories of employees may be excluded from consideration; (3) establishes a uniform objective definition of those employees in whose favor discriminatory coverage is prohibited; (4) permits satisfaction of certain of the coverage rules on a controlled group or line of business basis; (5) establishes a definition of a separate line of business or operating unit with a special safe-harbor rule; and (6) contains a special transition rule for certain dispositions or acquisitions of a business.

The provisions are generally effective for plan years beginning after December 31, 1988. A special effective date applies to plans maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement.

2. Minimum participation requirement

Under the act, a plan is not a qualified plan unless it benefits at least (a) 50 employees or (b) 40 percent or more of all employees of the employer (if less). The requirement may not be satisfied by aggregating comparabl plans. The requirement does not apply to multiemployer plans. The multiemployer plan exception does not apply to plans maintained pursuant t collective bargaining agreements covering professionals (e.g., doctors o lawyers).

The provisions are generally effective for plan years beginning afte December 31, 1988. A special effective date applies to plans maintaine pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement. In addition, the act contain a special transition rule under which plans that do not comply with th minimum participation rule must be merged or terminated by the end o the first plan year to which the rule applies. If a plan is terminated o merged under the special transition rule (1) the present value of accrue benefits must be calculated using an interest rate no lower than a specifie rate, and (2) the excise tax on asset reversions does not apply to such a termination or merger.

3. Nondiscrimination rules applicable to tax-sheltered annuities

The act extends certain nondiscrimination rules to tax-sheltered annuity programs other than those maintained by churches. With respect to employer (i.e., nonelective and matching) contributions to tax-sheltered annuity programs, the bill applies the general coverage and nondiscriminatio requirements applicable to qualified pension plans. The act also directs th Secretary of the Treasury to develop simplified comparability rules fo purposes of applying the coverage and nondiscrimination requirements.

With respect to elective contributions to tax-sheltered annuity programs (other than those maintained by churches), the act provides that an employer that offers any employee the opportunity to make elective deferral is required to make the opportunity available to all employees, with no more than a de minimis contribution requirement.

The act also clarifies the definition of an employer for purposes of the nondiscrimination rules applicable to both employer contributions and elective deferrals under a tax-sheltered annuity program. In addition, the act provides that for purposes of applying the nondiscrimination rules, students who customarily work less than 20 hours per week may be disregarded.

The provisions are generally effective for plan years beginning afte December 31, 1988.

4. Integration with Social Security

The act provides that a plan is not to be considered discriminatory merely because the contributions and benefits under the plan favor highly compensated employees if the plan meets the new requirements (i.e., the disparity limits) of the act relating to the integration of contributions or benefits under qualified plans.

Under the act, a defined contribution plan meets the disparity limits for integrated plans only if the contribution percentage under the plan for compensation over the integration level does not exceed the lesser of (1) 200 percent of the contribution percentage for compensation up to the integration level or (2) the sum of the contribution percentage for compensation up to the integration level and a specified rate.

In the case of an integrated excess defined benefit pension plan, the act limits the benefit percentage for compensation above the integration level to no more than 200 percent of the benefit percentage for compensation up to the integration level. In addition, the act further provides that the disparity between the benefit percentages for compensation above and below the integration level may not exceed an amount comparable to the disparity permitted under present law and contains rules regarding the accrual of the disparity. The act also requires that any optional form of benefit, preretirement benefit, actuarial factor, or other benefit or feature provided by the plan with respect to remuneration in excess of the integration level specified by the plan for the year be provided with respect to remuneration that is not in excess of that level.

A defined benefit pension plan meets the requirements for integrated offset plans if it provides that a participant's accrued benefit derived from employer contributions (sec. 411(c)(1)) may not be reduced by reason of the offset by more than 50 percent of the benefit that would have accrued without regard to the reduction. The act further limits the size of the offset to an amount comparable to that permitted under present law and contains rules as to the rate at which the offset may accrue under a plan.

The provisions are effective for plan years beginning after December 31, 1988. A special effective date applies to plans maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement.

5. Uniform definition of highly compensated employees

The act provides a new uniform definition of the group of employees in whose favor discrimination is prohibited ("highly compensated employees") that generally applies for purposes of the nondiscrimination rules for qualified plans and statutory employee benefit plans.

An employee is treated as highly compensated with respect to a year if, at any time during the year or the preceding year, the employee (1) was a 5-percent owner of the employer; (2) earned more than $75,000 in annual compensation from the employer; (3) earned more than $50,000 in annual compensation from the employer and was a member of the top-paid group of employees, i.e., the top 20 percent of employees by pay during the same year; or (4) was an officer of the employer and received compensation greater than 150 percent of the dollar limit on annual additions to a defined contribution plan. Treatment of an employee as a highly compensated employee under the last three categories is subject to the top-100-employee rules. If for any year no officer of the employer received compensation in excess of this level, the highest paid officer of the employer is treated as a highly compensated employee. The $50,000 and $75,000 thresholds are indexed in the same manner as the indexation of the dollar limitation under section 415.

6. Determining top-heavy status

Under the act, a uniform accrual rule is used in testing whether a qualified plan is top-heavy (or super top-heavy), effective for plan years beginning after December 31, 1986. In determining whether a plan is top heavy, the fractional accrual rule is applied. However, at the employer's election, the top heavy determination may be based on any other accrual method if that method is used for benefit accrual purposes by all plans of the employer.

7. Includible compensation

The act provides a limit of $200,000 on the amount of compensation that may be taken into account under any plan for purposes of both the nondiscrimination rules and the deduction limits under section 404. The limit on includible compensation is increased in the same manner as the dollar limit on annual additions under a defined benefit plan. The provision is effective for plan years beginning after December 31, 1986.

8. Benefit forfeitures

The act creates uniform rules for forfeitures under any defined contribution plan, effective for plan years beginning after December 31, 1985.

9. Vesting standards

The act provides (under the Code and ERISA) that a plan (other than a top-heavy plan subject to separate vesting requirements) is not a qualified plan of an employer unless a participant's employer-provided benefit vests at least as rapidly as under one of two alternative minimum vesting schedules.

A plan satisfies the first schedule if a participant has a nonforfeitable right to 100 percent of the participant's accrued benefit derived from employer contributions upon the participant's completion of 5 years of service. A plan satisfies the second alternative schedule if a participant has a nonforfeitable right to at least 20 percent of the participant's accrued benefit derived from employer contributions after 3 years of service, 40 percent at the end of 4 years of service, 60 percent at the end of 5 years of service, 80 percent at the end of 6 years of service, and 100 percent at the end of 7 years of service.

A special rule is provided in the case of a multiemployer plan to require 100-percent vesting after 10 years of service.

The act also provides that a plan may not condition eligibility to participate in the plan on more than 2 years of service, and that a plan with a 2-years-of-service eligibility requirement must provide for full and immediate vesting after 2 years of service.

The provisions are generally applicable for plan years beginning after December 31, 1988, with respect to participants who perform at least 1 hour of service in a plan year to which the new provisions apply. A special effective date applies to plans maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement.

C. TREATMENT OF DISTRIBUTIONS

1. Uniform minimum distribution rules

The act establishes a uniform commencement date for benefits under all qualified plans, IRAs, tax-sheltered annuities, custodial accounts, and unfunded deferred compensation plans of State and local government and tax-exempt employers. Under the act, distributions under a qualified retirement plan must commence no later than April 1 of the calendar year following the calendar year in which the participant or owner attains age 70½, without regard to the actual date of retirement.

In addition, the act establishes a new sanction, in lieu of plan disqualification, in the form of an excise tax for failure to satisfy the minimum distribution rules.

The provisions generally apply to distributions made after December 31, 1988.

2. Treatment of distributions

The act (1) phases out capital gains treatment over 6 years beginning on January 1, 1987, and (2) eliminates 10-year forward averaging for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986, and, instead, permits a one-time election of 5-year forward averaging for a lump-sum distribution received after attainment of age 59½. Under a transition rule, a participant who attained age 50 by January 1, 1986, is permitted to make one election of 5-year forward averaging or 10-year forward averaging (at present-law rates) with respect to a single lump sum distribution without regard to attainment of age 59½, and to retain the capital gain character of the pre-1974 portion of such a distribution. Under the transition rule, the capital gains portion would be taxed at a rate of 20 percent.

The act also (1) modifies the present-law basis recovery rules for amounts distributed prior to a participant's annuity starting date to provide for pro-rata recovery of employee contributions, (2) eliminates the special 3-year basis recovery rule of present law, (3) modifies the general basis recovery rules for amounts paid as an annuity to provide that each distribution is treated part as recovery of employee contributions and part as payment of taxable employer contributions (until all employee contributions are recovered), and (4) restricts rollovers of partial distributions to distributions due to separation from service.

The new preannuity starting date basis recovery rules and the new restrictions on rollovers of partial distributions are generally effective with respect to distributions made after December 31, 1986, with a provision preventing avoidance of repeal of the 3-year basis recovery rule. Under a transition rule, in the case of a plan that, on May 5, 1986, permitted the withdrawal of employee contributions before separation from service, distributions are treated as made first out of employee nontaxable contributions made before December 31, 1986. The post-annuity starting date basis recovery rules are generally effective with respect to individuals whose annuity starting date is after July 1, 1986.

The act also provides basis recovery rules (effective January 1, 1987) for distributions from an IRA to which nondeductible contributions have been made, and permits rollovers from frozen deposits in bankrupt or insolvent savings and loan associations after the 60-day rollover election period.

3. Taxation of early distributions from qualified retirement plans

The act applies a 10 percent additional income tax to withdrawals from a qualified plan, qualified annuity, tax-sheltered annuity, or IRA, made before death, disability, or attainment of age 59½. The additional tax does not apply to certain distributions (1) in the form of an annuity payable over the life or life expectancy of the participant (or the lives or joint life and last survivor expectancy of the participant and the participant's beneficiary), (2) made after the participant has attained age 55, separated from service, and satisfied the conditions for early retirement under the plan, (3) used for payment of medical expenses to the extent deductible under sec. 213, (4) received from an employee stock ownership plan before January 1, 1990, (5) received prior to March 15, 1987, if made on account of separation from service in 1986 if the recipient elects to be taxed on the distribution in 1986, or (6) to an alternate payee pursuant to a qualified domestic relations order.

The provisions generally are effective for distributions in taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

4. Tax-sheltered annuities

The act extends the withdrawal restrictions currently applicable to tax-sheltered custodial accounts to elective contributions made to a tax-sheltered annuity. Withdrawals on account of hardship from a custodial account are permitted only to the extent of contributions made pursuant to a salary reduction agreement (but not earnings on those contributions). The provision is effective for years beginning after December 31, 1986.

5. Loans under qualified plans

The act modifies the rules relating to the tax treatment of loans under qualified plans by (1) limiting the ability of plan participants to maintain permanent loan balances, (2) limiting the availability of the extended repayment period for loans for principal residences to loans applied to the purchase of the participant's principal residence, and (3) requiring level amortization of a loan over the permissible repayment period.

In addition, the act provides a deferral of the deduction (to the extent otherwise allowable under the provisions of the act) for interest paid by employees on loans secured by elective deferrals from a 401(k) plan or tax-sheltered annuity (sec. 403(b) plan), and also by key employees on loans from any qualified plan. The deferral would be accomplished by denying a deduction for interest, and increasing the participant's basis under the plan by the amount of nondeductible interest paid.

The provisions are generally effective for amounts received as a loan after December 31, 1986.

D. TAX DEFERRAL UNDER QUALIFIED PLANS

1. Overall limitations on contributions and benefits under qualified plans

The act makes several changes to the overall limits on contributions and benefits under qualified plans, tax-sheltered annuity programs, and SEPs of private and public employers.

The normal retirement age, for purposes of the limit on benefits under a defined benefit pension plan, is conformed to the social security retirement age. If the retirement benefit under a defined benefit plan begins before the social security retirement age (presently, age 65), then the $90,000 limitation on annual benefits generally is reduced so that it is the actuarial equivalent of an annual benefit of $90,000 beginning at the social security retirement age. Under transition rules provided by the act, benefits already accrued by a plan participant under an existing plan are not affected by the reductions for actuarial equivalence. The changes do not affect plans maintained by tax-exempt employers.

Under the act, the dollar limit on annual benefits under a qualified defined benefit pension plan is phased-in over 10 years of participation. The act provides for rules under which nonabusive benefit increases are not limited by the phase-in.

The act provides for qualified cost-of-living arrangements and clarifies the terms under which an employee may obtain an employer-provided cost-of-living subsidy.

The act provides special rules for commercial airline pilots, and participants in a qualified police or firefighters' defined benefit pension plan. The act clarifies the definition of a qualified police or firefighters' plan and provides for indexing of the limit applicable under the special rules for those plans. In addition, the act clarifies the application of the special rules for pilots who retire before age 60.

With respect to defined contribution plans, the act adopts the rules of the House bill with respect to cost-of-living adjustments and clarifies the application of the limits for defined contribution plans. Although cost-of-living adjustments will be made to the defined benefit pension plan limit beginning in 1988, no cost-of-living adjustments to the defined contribution plan limit will be made until the $30,000 defined contribution plan limit is equal to 25 percent of the defined benefit dollar limit. The cost-of-living adjustment will be determined by reference to the consumer price index.

Under the act, contributions made by retired non-key employees for retiree medical coverage are not subject to the percentage-of-compensation limit on annual additions.

Under the act, the class of employers whose employees are entitled to the special catch-up elections for tax-sheltered annuities is expanded to include employers that are health and welfare service agencies. The act also provides a technical modification clarifying that the catch-up rules apply before separation from service.

The act provides for a 15-percent excise tax on benefit payments in excess of $112,500. Under the act, the tax does not apply to excess benefits accrued before August 1, 1986.

The provisions generally are effective for years beginning after December 31, 1986. Special rules are provided in the case of plans maintained pursuant to collective bargaining agreements.

2. Deductions for contributions to qualified plans

The act makes several changes to the limits on employer deductions for contributions to qualified plans. The agreement (1) repeals the limit carryforward applicable to profit-sharing and stock bonus plans, (2) extends the 25-percent of compensation combined plan deduction limit to any combination of a defined benefit pension plan and a money purchase pension plan, profit-sharing, or stock bonus plan, and (3) applies a 10-percent excise tax to nondeductible employer contributions. The agreement includes a technical modification relating to fully insured plans.

The provisions are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

3. Excise tax on reversion of qualified plan assets to employer

The act imposes a 10-percent nondeductible excise tax on a reversion from a qualified plan. The tax is imposed on the person who received the reversion. The tax does not apply to the portion of a reversion that is transferred to an ESOP under certain circumstances.

The provision applies to reversions received after December 31, 1985, with an exception for a certain employer. The special provision for transfers to an ESOP expires for reversions received after December 31, 1988.

E. MISCELLANEOUS PENSION AND DEFERRED COMPENSATION PROVISIONS

1. Discretionary contribution plans

Under the act, an employer's contribution to a profit-sharing plan is not limited to the employer's current or accumulated profits. This provision applies without regard to whether the employer is tax-exempt. The provision applies for plan years beginning after December 31, 1985.

2. Requirement that collective bargaining agreements be bona fide

The act clarifies that no agreement will be treated as a collective bargaining agreement unless it is a bona fide agreement between bona fide employee representatives and one or more employers. The provision is effective upon enactment.

3. Penalty for overstatement of pension liabilities

The act provides a new penalty in the form of a graduated addition to tax applicable to certain income tax overstatements of deductions for pension liabilities. As an addition to tax, this penalty will be assessed, collected, and paid in the same manner as a tax. This addition to tax applies only to the extent of any income tax underpayment that is attributable to such an overstatement. The penalty is similar to the present-law penalty for overvaluations of liabilities.

The provision is generally effective after December 31, 1986.

4. Treatment of certain fishing boat crews as self-employed individuals

Under the act, members of fishing boat crews (described in sec. 3121(b)(20) are treated as self-employed individuals for purposes of the rules relating to qualified pension, profit-sharing, or stock bonus plans.

The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

5. Cash out of certain accrued benefits

The act amends the rules of the Code and ERISA relating to cash outs of accrued benefits to require that, for purposes of determining the present value of a participant's accrued benefit, a plan is to compute the first $25,000 of the present value of a benefit by using an interest rate no greater than the interest rate (deferred or immediate, whichever is appropriate) that would be used by the PBGC (as of the date of distribution) upon the plan's termination. The remaining portion of the present value of the benefit is to be determined by using an interest rate no greater than 120 percent of the PBGC interest rate. In addition, the act clarifies that certain plan amendments adopting the provision will not constitute a cutback of a participant's accrued benefit.

The provision is applicable for distributions after December 31, 1984. However, it does not apply to distributions that were made after December 31, 1984, and before the date of enactment, if such distributions were made in accordance with the requirements of regulations issued under the Retirement Equity Act of 1984.

6. Time required for plan amendments, issuance of regulations, and development of section 401(k) master and prototype plans

Under the act a delayed effective date is provided for plan amendments to comply with the provisions of the act relating to qualified plans.

Further, the act provides that the Treasury Department is to issue final regulations by February 1, 1988, for (1) the rules relating to the integration of benefits under qualified plans, (2) the coverage requirements applicable to qualified plans, (3) the amendments applicable to qualified cash or deferred arrangements (sec. 401(k) plans), and (4) the new nondiscrimination rules for employer matching and employee contributions (sec. 401(m)).

The act provides that the Treasury Department is to begin issuing determination letters with respect to master and prototype plans that include qualified cash or deferred arrangements by May 1, 1987.

7. Exemption from the survivor benefit requirements of the Retirement Equity Act of 1984

The act exempts a plan from the survivor benefits requirements of the Retirement Equity Act of 1984, if (1) the plan was established prior to January 1, 1954, as a result of an agreement between employee representatives and the Federal Government during a period of Government operation, under seizure powers, of a major part of the productive facilities of the industry, and (2) under the plan, participation is substantially limited to participants who, before January 1, 1976, ceased employment covered by the plan.

8. Employee leasing

The act modifies the safe harbor under which an individual (a leased employee) who performs certain services for another person (the recipient) on a substantially full time basis will not be treated as an employee of the recipient for purposes of the nondiscrimination rules. The act (1) raises the safe harbor contribution rate under section 414(n)(5) for a plan maintained by a leasing organization from 7½ percent to 10 percent; (2) requires as a condition of the safe harbor that the leasing organization cover 100 percent of its employees (excluding employees who have compensation of less than $1000 for the year); and (3) provides that the safe harbor may not be used if more than 20 percent of the individuals performing substantial services for the recipient organization are leased employees. The act also provides an exemption from the employee leasing recordkeeping requirements for recipient organizations that have no top-heavy plans and with respect to which only a de minimis percentage of individuals performing substantial services are not employees.

F. EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PROVISIONS

1. Nondiscrimination rules for certain statutory employee benefit plans and cafeteria plans

The act establishes comprehensive nondiscrimination rules for certain statutory employee benefit plans. Under the agreement, a highly compensated employee who is a participant in any discriminatory statutory employee benefit plan is taxed generally only on the value of the discriminatory portion of the employer-provided benefit under the plan if such portion is timely reported.

The agreement (1) revises the nondiscrimination rules applicable to group-life term insurance plans and self-insured accident or health plans; (2) extends those rules to insured accident or health plans; (3) establishes a new nondiscrimination test applicable to dependent care assistance plans; (4) applies the uniform definition of highly compensated employee, employer, and compensation generally applicable under the nondiscrimination rules for qualified plans; (5) permits satisfaction of the nondiscrimination tests on a controlled group, line of business, or operating unit basis; and (6) contains a special transition rule for certain dispositions or acquisitions of a business. Present-law concentration tests would continue to apply. Educational assistance and group legal services are not subject to the new nondiscrimination rules because the exclusions for those benefits are scheduled to expire before the effective date of the new nondiscrimination rules.

Under the new nondiscrimination tests, employee benefit plans are subject to eligibility tests and a benefits test, applicable to each type of benefit. In applying the tests to health plans, employees with other health coverage can be disregarded, and family health coverage can be tested separately. In the case of group-life term insurance, the nondiscrimination rules can be applied to the value of coverage provided, expressed as a percentage of compensation (with the same cap on includible compensation applicable to qualified plans). Generally, different types of benefits can be aggregated for purposes of satisfying the benefits test, except that health plans must satisfy the benefits test without aggregation with other types of plans.

Under the act, benefits provided under a cafeteria plan are generally subject to the new nondiscrimination rules. In addition, the present-law cafeteria plan availability test continues to apply.

Under the act, full-time life insurance salesmen can participate in cafeteria plans, and employees of educational organizations may elect post-retirement life insurance coverage under a cafeteria plan. The act also provides that salary reduction under cafeteria plans is excluded from the FICA and FUTA wage bases.

The nondiscrimination rules are generally effective for the later of: (1) plan years beginning after December 31, 1987, or (2) the earlier of plan years beginning at least 3 months following the issuance of Treasury regulations or after December 31, 1988.

2. Deductibility of health insurance costs of self-employed individuals

The act provides a deduction for 25 percent of the amounts paid for health insurance for a taxable year on behalf of a self-employed individual and the individual's spouse and dependents. No deduction is allowable to the extent the deduction exceeds the self-employed individual's net earnings from self employment (sec. 1402(a)) for the taxable year. In addition, no deduction is allowable for any taxable year for which the self-employed individual is eligible to participate (on a subsidized basis) in a health plan of an employer of the self-employed individual or such individual's spouse.

The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986, and before Januray 1, 1990.

3. Exclusions for educational assistance programs, qualified group legal services, and dependent care assistance programs

The act retroactively extends the exclusions from gross income for educational assistance and group legal services and the tax exemption for qualified group legal services organizations for 2 years through 1987.

In addition, the agreement increases the cap on annual excludable educational assistance benefits to $5,250 from $5,000.

The provisions generally are effective (1) in the case of educational assistance benefits, for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1985, and (2) in the case of group legal services benefits and the tax exemption for qualified group legal services organizations, for taxable years ending after December 31, 1985. A special rule is provided for group legal services benefits provided under a cafeteria plan.

The act imposes a $5,000 cap ($2,500 for a married individual filing separately) on the exclusion for dependent care assistance. The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1985.

4. Faculty housing

The act provides generally that, for Federal tax purposes, the fair market value of the use (on an annualized basis) of qualified campus lodging furnished by, or on behalf of, a school, college, or university is to be treated as not greater than 5 percent of the appraised value for the lodging, but only if, under Treasury regulations, an independent appraisal of the fair market value is obtained by a qualified appraiser.

The provision is effective for taxable years or periods beginning after December 31, 1985.

5. Accrued vacation pay

Under the act, the special rule allowing a deduction for additions to a reserve account for vacation pay (sec. 463) is limited to the vacation pay that is paid during the current taxable year or within 8½ months after the close of the taxable year of the employer with respect to which the vacation pay was earned by the employees.

The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

G. EMPLOYEE STOCK OWNERSHIP PLANS (ESOP'S)

1. Repeal of employee stock ownership tax credit

The act repeals the special payroll-based ESOP tax credit for compensation paid or accrued after December 31, 1986. A special transition rule is provided.

2. Certain additional tax benefits relating to ESOPs

The act permits an exclusion from the gross estate of 50 percent of the qualified proceeds from a qualified sale of employer securities. Under the conference agreement, a qualified sale means any sale of employer securities (within the meaning of sec. 409(l)) by the executor of an estate to (1) an ESOP, or (2) an eligible worker-owned cooperative (as defined in sec. 1042(c)(2)). The provision is effective for sales after the date of enactment and before January 1, 1992.

Under the act, the deduction for dividends paid on ESOP stock is expanded to apply to dividends that are used to repay ESOP loans used to acquire the stock on which the dividends are paid. The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after the date of enactment.

The act extends the 50-percent exclusion for interest paid on securities acquisition loans (sec. 133) to refinancing of loans used to acquire employer securities after May 23, 1984. In addition, the act modifies the exclusion in two respects. First, the act provides that the exclusion is also available with respect to a loan to a corporation to the extent that, within 30 days, employer securities are transferred to the plan in an amount equal to the proceeds of the loan and such contributions are allocable to participants' accounts within 1 year after the date of the loan. Second, under the act, a lender eligible for the interest exclusion is amended to include a regulated investment company (as defined in sec. 851). These modifications are effective for loans used to acquire employer securities after the date of enactment.

3. Changes in qualification requirements relating to ESOPs

Under the act, additional requirements are provided for any ESOP. These additional qualification requirements (1) permit distributions upon termination of an ESOP, (2) modify the distribution and put option requirements, (3) modify the special limits on allocations of contributions to an ESOP to conform the definition of highly compensated employee to the new definition provided for qualified plans generally, (4) require stock bonus plans to satisfy the put option requirements applicable to ESOPs, (5) permit an eligible plan participant to direct the ESOP trustee to diversify a portion of the participant's account balance, (6) require the value of employer securities to be determined by an independent appraiser, and (7) eliminate, with respect to ESOPs maintained by certain closely held newspaper publishers, the passthrough voting requirements.

The provision permitting distributions upon plan termination generally is effective for termination distributions made after December 31, 1984. The distribution requirements and the extension of the put option requirement to stock bonus plans are effective for distributions attributable to stock acquired after December 31, 1986. The modifications of the put option requirement are effective with respect to stock acquired after the date of enactment. The modified definition of highly compensated employees is effective for years beginning after December 31, 1988. The diversification requirements are effective with respect to ESOPs adopted after December 31, 1986, and contributions made to an existing ESOP after December 31, 1986.

TITLE XII. FOREIGN TAX PROVISIONS

A. FOREIGN TAX CREDIT

1. Foreign tax credit limitation

The overall foreign tax credit limitation of present law is retained. The separate limitation for interest income is replaced with separate limitations for passive income, shipping income, and banking income. Passive income includes certain categories of income described under the anti-tax haven rules (subpart F).

The act adopts a de minimis rule only for controlled foreign corporations. Coordination rules are provided for controlled foreign corporations that have no subpart F inclusions because they satisfy the subpart F de minimis rule. The subpart F de minimis rule is amended so that it applies if gross foreign base company income is less than the lesser of (1) 5 percent of gross income or (2) $1 million.

The act contains a modified high tax kickout.

Taxable interest payments from controlled foreign corporations to related persons consist of passive income to the extent of the payor's passive income (computed prior to the operation of subpart F). There is a separate foreign tax credit limitation for each noncontrolled foreign corporation that pays dividends eligible for deemed paid foreign tax credit (with separate treatment for amounts attributable to high withholding tax interest). Interest received from noncontrolled foreign corporations is treated as passive income. Rents and royalties received from noncontrolled foreign corporations are treated as passive or active without reference to look-through rules. Interest earned in connection with export activities of the taxpayer or a related person is not subject to the banking limitation or the high withholding tax limitation described below. These provisions are effective for taxable years beginning after 1986, subject to certain transitional relief.

2. Credit for high withholding taxes on interest

Foreign gross withholding taxes on interest that are at least 5 percent of the gross amount are subject to a separate foreign tax credit limitation unless the loan is to finance exports of the taxpayer or related person. This provision is generally effective for taxes paid in taxable years beginning after 1986, but transitional relief is provided.

3. Deemed-paid credit

The deemed-paid credit for a U.S. corporation's share of foreign taxes paid by a foreign corporation is determined with respect to the foreign corporation's multi-year pool of accumulated earnings and profits. Earnings and profits generally are computed in the same manner for actual distributions as they are now for subpart F inclusions. These rules are generally effective for earnings and profits accumulated in taxable years beginning after 1986.

4. Effect of foreign and U.S. losses on foreign tax credit

Foreign source losses reduce all types of foreign source income before reducing U.S. source income. U.S. losses reduce categories of foreign income pro rata. This provision applies to losses incurred in taxable years beginning after 1986.

5. Subsidies

The act clarifies that foreign taxes that are rebated directly or indirectly are not creditable. This provision applies to taxable years beginning after 1986.

6. Carrybacks

Foreign tax credits that are currently unusable only because of the bill's rate reductions cannot be carried back for use in higher-rate taxable years.

B. SOURCE RULES

1. Income from purchase and sale of inventory-type property

Present law generally is retained for U.S. persons (i.e., the title passage rule), while income earned by a foreign person attributable to a fixed place of business within the United States is U.S. source. A Treasury study will evaluate the title passage rule.

2. Income from intangible property

With respect to royalty income, the act retains the place-of-use source rule of present law. With respect to sales income, unless the amount received is contingent on the use of the intangibles, the source is generally in the country of residence of the seller. However, for U.S. persons, sales involving a foreign office will yield foreign source income (if the income is subject to at least a 10-percent foreign tax). In addition, income earned by a foreign person attributable to a fixed place of business within the United States is U.S. source.

3. Income from sale of other personal property

Under the act, recapture income derived from sales of personal property used by the seller in a business is sourced where deductions with respect to such property previously offset income. Income in excess of those deductions is sourced according to present law. Income derived from sales of other personal property, including passive investment property, is generally sourced in the country of residence of the seller. However, for U.S. persons, sales involving a foreign office will yield foreign source income (if the income is subject to at least a 10-percent foreign tax). Certain sales of corporate stock are sourced in the country where the corporation whose stock is sold did most of its business. In addition, income earned by a foreign person attributable to a fixed place of business within the United States is U.S. source.

4. Transportation income

The act sources transportation income from United States-foreign routes as 50-percent U.S. source income and 50-percent foreign source. (Present law generally treats most transportation income earned on such routes as foreign source income.) The special U.S. sourcing rule for income and expenses associated with vessels or aircraft constructed in the United States and leased to U.S. persons is repealed. The act also repeals a similar rule for transportation income earned in leasing certain aircraft used on United States-U.S. possessions routes. The repeal of both special rules is subject to a grandfather rule.

The reciprocal tax exemption for foreign persons' shipping and aircraft income is available only if a foreign person's country of residence gives U.S. persons an equivalent foreign tax exemption. Eligibility for the reciprocal exemption is extended to bareboat charter income. In addition, a 4-percent gross basis tax is generally imposed on U.S. source transportation income of foreign persons not resident in countries that provide reciprocal tax exemptions to U.S. carriers.

5. Other offshore income and income earned in space

The act generally sources other offshore income and income earned in space in the recipient's country of residence. Certain communications income is sourced half in the place of transmission, half in the place of reception.

6. Dividend and interest income

In general, interest and dividend income paid by a U.S. corporation that earns more than 80 percent of its income from an active foreign business (an "80/20" company) is foreign source to the extent that the company's income is derived from foreign sources. Dividends paid to U.S. persons are U.S. source, however. A similar rule applies to interest paid by "80/20 individuals". The act also restructures certain interest income exemptions.

7. Allocation of interest and other expenses (other than research and development)

The act generally requires corporate members of affiliated groups to allocate all expenses between U.S. and foreign income on a consolidated group basis. Certain corporations that cannot join in filing consolidated returns can continue to allocate expenses on a separate company basis. Authority to require netting of interest expense and interest income is provided for in limited cases. The asset method of allocating interest expense is modified and the optional gross income method is eliminated. Tax-exempt income and assets are not taken into account for purposes of allocating expenses. The new interest allocation rules will be phased in over 3 to 5 years in certain cases. Other transitional relief is provided.

8. Allocation of R&D expenses

For 1 year, taxpayers are to allocate half the expenses for U.S.-performed R&D to U.S. source income, and the other half on the basis of sales or gross income. (The Statement of Managers indicates that legislative intervention is appropriate until the Treasury Department resolves the incompatibility between the suspended Treasury regulations and foreign tax systems.) After 1 year, starting with taxable years beginning after August 1, 1987, a suspended Treasury Regulation generally requiring allocation on the basis of sales or gross income will take effect.

9. Effective date

The rules governing the source of income are generally effective for taxable years beginning after 1986, although the bill provides certain transitional relief. Certain rules applicable to foreign taxpayers apply to transactions occurring after March 18, 1986.

C. TAXATION OF U.S. SHAREHOLDERS OF FOREIGN CORPORATIONS

1. Tax haven income generally

Interest, dividends, and gains received by banks and insurance companies (with an export finance exclusion), insurance income, amounts equivalent to interest, income earned in space or outside any country, and net gains from transactions in commodities, foreign currency, and certain other property generally are taxed currently if earned by controlled foreign corporations. Certain exceptions to the Code's rules that currently tax certain "tax-haven" income of foreign subsidiaries of U.S. shareholders are repealed, including the exclusion for reinvested shipping income. The subjective tax avoidance safe-harbor rule is replaced with an objective test. To coordinate the subpart F rules and the passive basket rules, prior year deficits in earnings and profits and other companies' deficits in earnings and profits do not reduce subpart F income. Income that is recaptured under the foreign loss recharacterization rule is subpart F income in accordance with the character of the original income requiring recapture.

2. Determination of U.S. control of foreign corporations

The U.S. ownership requirement for imposition of the subpart F rules is amended. For the subpart F rules to apply to a foreign corporation, more than 50 percent of the vote or value (not merely vote) of that corporation must belong to 10-percent U.S. shareholders. Similarly, for the foreign personal holding company rules to apply, more than 50 percent of the vote or value of a foreign corporation must be owned by five or fewer U.S. individuals.

3. De minimis tax haven income rule

Present law is amended to reduce the 10 percent of gross income threshold for foreign base company income to the lesser of $1 million or 5 percent of gross income.

4. Possessions-chartered corporations

The exception in the subpart F rules for possessions-chartered corporations is repealed subject to a transition rule.

5. Application of accumulated earnings tax (AET) and personal holding company (PHC) tax to foreign corporations

Present law is amended to allow foreign corporations a net capital gain deduction for purposes of calculating the AET or PHC tax only if the gains are taxed by the United States at the corporate level. This provision applies to transactions occurring after March 1, 1986.

6. Deduction for dividends received from foreign corporations

The deduction for dividends received from foreign corporations is modified to extend to dividends from corporations earning either any amount of U.S.-connected income or dividends from U.S. subsidiaries. The deduction is limited to 10-percent U.S. corporate shareholders, and is to be calculated on a net basis. Any amount eligible for the deduction is to be treated as U.S. source. Rules are provided to prevent double benefits.

7. Delayed effective date for 1984 amendment to earnings and profits rules

The act extends through 1987 the delay in the application to foreign corporations of the 1984 Act's amendments to the earnings and profits rules relating to installment sales.

8. Effective date

Except as indicated above, the act's rules applicable to income earned through foreign corporations are generally effective for taxable years beginning after 1986.

D. SPECIAL TAX PROVISIONS FOR U.S. PERSONS

1. Possession tax credit

The act retains the existing possession tax credit with certain modifications. The optional cost sharing method of allocating intangible income is changed to require that the cost sharing payment be determined as the greater of (1) 110 percent of the payment determined under present law or (2) an arm's-length royalty. The act also requires an increase in the cost sharing payment (20 percent above the present law payment), and makes a technical correction thereto, for purposes of the 50/50 profit split method. The active income test for possession corporation status is increased from 65 to 75 percent. Income from loans for active business assets and development projects in qualified Caribbean Basin Initiative countries is eligible for U.S. tax exemption. Compliance rules are provided, and a good faith effort to implement Puerto Rico's twin plant program is expected. In addition, the requirement that funds be received in a possession to qualify for the section 936 credit does not apply to active business income from an unrelated party. Finally, section 936 treatment is extended to the U.S. Virgin Islands. These provisions are generally effective for taxable years after 1986.

2. Taxation of certain employees in Panama

The act clarifies that the Panama Canal Treaty and its implementing agreements do not exempt U.S. taxpayers from U.S. tax. The act provides that Panama Canal Commission and Defense Department employees are entitled to certain tax-free allowances like those available for State Department employees. The agreement's clarification of the effect of the Panama Canal treaty is effective for all taxable years. The rule concerning taxation of employees' allowances applies for taxable years beginning after 1986.

3. Exclusion for private sector earnings of Americans abroad

The act reduces the maximum annual exclusion for foreign earned income of Americans working abroad, from the present $80,000 to $70,000. It denies this exclusion to Americans in foreign countries to which travel is prohibited by law. These provisions are effective for taxable years beginning after 1986.

4. Transfers of intangibles to related parties outside of the United States

The payment for intangibles received from foreign corporations by related U.S. persons shall be commensurate with the actual income attributable to the intangible. These rules generally apply to taxable years beginning after 1986, with respect to intangibles transferred after November 16, 1985.

5. Compliance provisions applicable to U.S. persons resident abroad

The act requires that passport and green card applicants complete an IRS information return. It also requires withholding on pension payments to persons with foreign addresses. These provisions apply to taxable years beginning after 1986.

6. Foreign investment companies (FICs)

Present law is amended to require either payment of an interest charge on eventual recognition of income earned by U.S. investors through passive FICs (subject to a gain limitation) or current recognition, and to apply these rules to U.S. investors irrespective of the degree of aggregate U.S. ownership. This provision is effective for taxable years beginning after 1986.

E. TREATMENT OF FOREIGN TAXPAYERS

1. Branch profits tax

The branch profits tax proposed by the President as a substitute for the present dividend withholding tax is generally adopted. The act generally retains present law (but with a reduction of present law's 50 percent income threshold to 25 percent) when a treaty allows present law to apply but would not allow a branch profits tax to apply. The withholding tax on interest is based on the deduction taken by the branch, with amounts deducted in excess of actual branch payments treated as interest paid to a home country parent. The act does not override treaties, including those regarding dividend and interest payments, except in treaty shopping cases. These rules are effective for taxable years beginning after 1986.

2. Retain character of effectively connected income

The act treats income or gain as effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business if it is attributable to a different taxable year and would have been so treated if it had been taken into account in the other year. This rule applies to taxable years beginning after 1986.

3. Tax-free exchanges by expatriates

The tax-avoidance expatriate rules under present law are applied to gains on the sale of property the basis of which was determined by reference to U.S. property. This rule applies to sales or exchanges of property received in exchanges after September 25, 1985.

4. Excise tax on insurance premiums paid to foreign insurers

The act does not contain the excise tax provision of the House bill. Instead, the act adopts a provision that imposes current tax on each U.S. person who owns stock in any 25-percent or more U.S.-owned foreign insurance company with respect to income from insuring risks of U.S. stockholders and related parties, whatever the degree of ownership of the U.S. stockholder. An exception applies to insurance companies whose stock is publicly and freely traded. Similar rules apply to mutual companies. This income is separately boxed. The provision is effective for years beginning after 1986. Treasury is to study the impact of treaty waivers of the excise tax on the domestic reinsuance industry.

5. Reporting by foreign controlled corporations

The act requires foreign-controlled foreign corporations doing business in the United States and foreign-controlled U.S. corporations to report transactions with all related persons, whether or not a corporation. This provision is effective for taxable years beginning after 1986.

6. Foreign investors in U.S. partnerships

The agreement requires that domestic and foreign partnerships engaged in a U.S. trade or business withhold on certain distributions to foreign partners. The act clarifies that the withholding requirement applies to all distributions to a foreign partner when 80 percent or more of a partnership's income is U.S. business income (with a rule that requires withholding only on the percentage of U.S. business income in cases of less U.S. business income), and coordinates this withholding provision with existing withholding provisions so as to avoid duplicative withholding. This provision is effective for taxable years beginning after 1986.

7. Income of foreign governments

The act provides that the tax exemption for foreign governments applies only to investment income. It provides that payments from a controlled entity that engages in U.S. trade or business are not investment income, so they are taxable. The act does not change the rules that apply to international organizations. This provision is effective on July 1, 1986.

8. Transfer prices for imports

Importers cannot claim a transfer price for income tax purposes that is higher than is consistent with the value they claim for customs purposes. This provision applies to transactions entered into after March 18, 1986.

9. Dual resident companies

Losses of a U.S. corporation that offset a foreign corporation's foreign tax cannot offset any income of any other corporation for U.S. tax purposes. This provision applies to taxable years beginning after 1986.

10. Definition of resident alien

In determining whether an alien individual is a U.S. resident for U.S. income tax purposes under the 1984 Act's substantial presence test, days in which a professional athlete is present in the United States competing in certain charitable sports events will not be counted. This provision applies to periods after the bill's date of enactment.

F. FOREIGN CURRENCY EXCHANGE GAIN OR LOSS

The tax treatment of exchange gain or loss, including character, source, and timing, is clarified. Generally, exchange gain or loss arises if the exchange rate fluctuates between the date an item is taken into account for tax purposes and the date it is paid. In general, the act provides that exchange gain or loss is ordinary in nature. To the extent provided by regulations, a special rule will require a taxpayer to recognize gain or loss currently with respect to an item that is "hedged" by an offsetting position (e.g., a foreign currency futures contract). All business entities that account for foreign operations in a foreign currency are generally required to use a profit and loss translation method. For purposes of the direct foreign tax credit and the indirect foreign tax credit, a foreign tax is generally calculated on the basis of the exchange rate in effect on the date paid (the Mauvais Ami rule).

These rules are effective for taxable years beginning after 1986.

G. TAX TREATMENT OF POSSESSIONS

1. U.S. Virgin Islands

The Virgin Islands will continue to use the mirror code. The Virgin Islands inhabitant rule is repealed for all open years (except as to Virgin Islands income) with a targeted exception. To be exempt from U.S. withholding tax, 65 percent of a Virgin Islands corporation's income must be effectively connected with a trade or business in a possession or in the United States. Antiabuse rules are provided.

2. Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands (CNMI), and American Samoa

After 1986, full authority will be granted to Guam and the CNMI to determine their own income tax laws (as American Samoa currently does). To avoid U.S. withholding tax, 65 percent of a possession corporation's income must be effectively connected with a trade or business in a possession or in the United States. Antiabuse rules are provided.

3. Effective date

The act's rules coordinating United States and possessions taxation generally apply to taxable years beginning after 1986, or as soon as the applicable possession enters into an implementation agreement with the United States in tax matters.

TITLE XIII. TAX-EXEMPT BONDS

A. TAX-EXEMPT BOND PROVISIONS

1. Bonds to finance general governmental operations

The act retains the tax-exemption for interest on State and local government bonds used to finance traditional governmental operations. These bonds may continue to be issued without regard to many of the limitations applicable to bonds for persons other than States and local governmental units.

Interest on bonds to provide conduit financing for persons other States and local governmental units (collectively referred to as "private activity bonds") is taxable unless a specific exception is provided in the Code. A bond generally is viewed as a private activity bond if—

> (1)(a) an amount equal to or exceeding 10 percent of the proceeds is to be used in a trade or business of a person or persons other than a State or local governmental unit and (b) direct or indirect payments equaling or exceeding 10 percent of the debt service on the bonds are made with respect to such trade or business use, or
> (2) an amount equal to or exceeding the lesser of five percent or $5 million of bond proceeds is to be used to make or finance loans to persons other than State or local governments.

(In the case of bonds to finance output facilities, private use and payments with respect to that use must total less than the lesser of 10 percent or $15 million per facility.)

In addition, the act provides that private use of governmental bond proceeds in excess of 5 percent must be related to a governmental facility also being financed with the bonds. The private use is treated as related only if the financing provided for the private use is proportional to the total financing provided by the issue for the related governmental facility.

2. Exceptions for certain private activity bonds

Present law includes several exceptions permitting tax-exemption for interest on bonds for private activities. These exceptions are for (a) bonds for section 501(c)(3) organizations; (b) industrial development bonds (IDBs); (c) student loan bonds issued in connection with certain Department of Education guarantees; (d) qualified mortgage bonds and qualified veterans' mortgage bonds; (e) certain bonds issued under non-Code statutes enacted before 1983; and (f) private loan bonds issued pursuant to certain specifically described State programs.

The act continues many of the exceptions of present-law permitting tax-exempt financing for persons other than States and local governmental units.[1] First, interest on qualified 501(c)(3) bonds remains tax-exempt. Second, interest on bonds to finance certain exempt facilities is tax-exempt: airports, docks and wharves, mass commuting facilities, certain facilities for the furnishing of water, sewage and solid waste disposal facilities, qualified residential rental projects,[2] local district heating and cooling facilities, facilities for the local furnishing of electricity or gas, and certain hazardous waste disposal facilities. Third, interest on qualified redevelopment bonds, small-issue bonds,[3] and student loan bonds (including supplemental student loan bonds) is tax-exempt. Finally, interest on qualified mortgage bonds[4] and qualified veterans' mortgage bonds is tax-exempt. (The act also retains the option for States and local governments to elect to exchange qualified mortgage bond authority and issue mortgage credit certificates, at an increased exchange rate of 25 percent.)

3. State volume limitation

Present law provides three separate State volume limitations for (a) IDBs and student loan bonds, (b) qualified mortgage bonds, and (c) qualified veterans' mortgage bonds. Certain types of IDBs and bonds for section 501(c) organizations are not subject to State volume limitations.

The act provides a single State volume limitation for exempt-facility bonds, small-issue bonds, qualified redevelopment bonds, student loan bonds, and qualified mortgage bonds. In addition, the private use portion (in excess of $15 million) of governmental bonds is subject to the new limitation unless specifically excluded from the cap. The new volume limitation for each State is equal to the greater of $75 per resident or $250 million per annum until December 31, 1987, after which date it is reduced to $50 per resident or $150 million per annum. There are no special set-asides under this volume limitation. In general, the new volume limitation is administered in a manner similar to the present-law volume limitations on IDBs and student loan bonds and on qualified mortgage bonds. Thus, a Federal allocation formula is provided, subject to being overridden by gubernatorial proclamation (effective for an interim period only) or by State legislation.

Qualified 501(c)(3) bonds and exempt-facility bonds for governmentally owned solid waste disposal facilities and for governmentally owned airports and docks and wharves are not subject to the new volume limitation. Qualified veterans' mortgage bonds remain subject to their present-law volume limitation.

4. Arbitrage and related restrictions

Interest on arbitrage bonds is taxable under present law. Arbitrage bonds are bonds more than a minor portion of the proceeds of which are invested in materially higher yielding, taxable obligations. IDBs and qualified mortgage bonds are subject to additional arbitrage restrictions that require rebate to the Federal Government of arbitrage profits on obligations unrelated to the purpose of the borrowing and the amount of bond proceeds that may be invested in such obligations is restricted.

The act makes several modifications to the arbitrage and related restrictions applicable to all tax-exempt bonds, including the following:

[1] The act continues the present-law exceptions for private activity bonds issued as part of the Texas Veterans' Land Bond Program and the Oregon Renewable Source Energy Program, and adds a new exception for a limited amount of bonds issued as part of the Iowa Industrial New Jobs Training Program.

[2] Bond-financed residential rental projects must satisfy new continuous compliance and annual certification requirements. Additionally, owners of such projects must elect to satisfy one of two low-income occupancy requirements: 40 percent of the residential rental units occupied by individuals having incomes of 60 percent or less of area median income, or 20 percent of such units occupied by individuals having incomes of 50 percent or less of area median income. All income determinations are made with family size adjustments.

[3] The sunset for small-issue bonds for manufacturing facilities is extended 1 additional year, through December 31, 1989. Additionally, issuance of these bonds for first-time farmers is treated as issuance for manufacturing. The present December 31, 1986, sunset is retained for small-issue bonds other than for manufacturing facilities.

[4] The sunset date for qualified mortgage bonds is extended 1 additional year, through December 31, 1988.

(1) Rebate requirements, similar to the present-law IDB rules, are extended to all tax-exempt bonds. (Mortgage revenue bonds are subject to the present-law qualified mortgage bond rules.) An exception is provided for bonds to finance operations of certain small general purpose governmental units, and a special safe-harbor rule is provided for use in determining the amount of the rebate on so-called tax- and revenue-anticipation notes.

(2) Yield on all tax-exempt bonds is determined under the arbitrage restrictions using the original issue discount rules of the Code (i.e., the State of Washington case is reversed).

(3) New temporary period restrictions are imposed on pooled financings and on advance refundings.

(4) The minor portion of bond proceeds which may be invested at unrestricted yield is limited to an amount equal to the lesser of 5 percent or $100,000. The amount of actual bond proceeds that may be used to fund a debt service reserve fund is limited to 10 percent unless the Treasury approves a greater amount for a specific issue. As under present law, amounts deposited in such reserve funds may be invested without regard to arbitrage yield restrictions (but are subject to the rebate requirement) up to the allowed 10 percent amount.

(5) Certain letter of credit fees (like bond insurance premiums) are treated as interest expense to the extent that the fees represent a charge for transfer of credit risk.

(6) The Treasury Department is authorized to waive loss of tax-exemption for certain late or erroneous rebate payments, if the error is not due to willful disregard of the rebate requirement.

(7) Restrictions are placed on investment of bond proceeds in deferred compensation arrangements and other investment type property.

Under the act, advance refundings are permitted for governmental and qualified 501(c)(3) bonds, subject to a limitation of two advance refundings per issue (one advance refunding in the case of bonds originally issued after 1985) and various other restrictions.

5. Changes in use of bond-financed facilities

The act provides that in addition to loss of tax-exemption on bond interest where provided under present law, certain amounts paid in connection with bond-financed property that ceases to be used in a use qualifying for tax-exempt financing may not be deducted for Federal income tax purposes. In general, the nondeductible amount is equal to the interest (or the equivalent thereof) paid on bond-financed loans.

6. Miscellaneous requirements

The act provides that, for most private activity bonds, at least 95 percent of the proceeds must be spent for the exempt purpose of the borrowing. In the case of Federally guaranteed student loan bonds, this amount is 90 percent.

The act generally limits the amount of costs of issuance that may be paid from private activity bond proceeds to two percent and further provides that amounts paid for costs of issuance are not treated as spent for the exempt purpose of the borrowing (i.e., are not counted in determining whether the 95 percent, etc. requirement, described above, is satisfied).

The public approval requirements that currently apply to IDBs are extended to all private activity bonds. Additionally, the restriction on maturity of IDBs is extended to qualified 501(c)(3) bonds, and qualified 501(c)(3) bonds (other than hospital bonds) are subject to a $150 million per institution limit on outstanding bonds. Certain bond-financed facilities are also required to be owned by or on behalf of a governmental unit (in the case of qualified 501(c)(3) bonds, a governmental unit or section 501(c)(3) organization).

The act extends to all tax-exempt bonds information reporting requirements similar to the requirements that presently apply to IDBs, student loan bonds, qualified 501(c)(3) bonds, and mortgage revenue bonds.

Under the act, the amount of depreciable farm property which may be financed with small-issue tax-exempt bonds is limited to $250,000 per person (including related persons).

7. Effective dates

The provisions of the act generally apply to all bonds issued after August 15, 1986. In the case of provisions and bonds covered under the Joint Statements on Effective Dates of March 14, 1986, and July 17, 1986, the act is effective for bonds issued on or after September 1, 1986 (3:00 p.m. E.D.T., July 17, 1986, in the case of application of the arbitrag rebate requirement to certain pooled financings.) Certain arbitrage an related restrictions apply to bonds issued after December 31, 1985 (September 25, 1985, in the case of so-called "pension bonds"). Transition exceptions are provided for certain amendments included in the act.

B. GENERAL STOCK OWNERSHIP CORPORATIONS (GSOC'S)

The act repeals the Code provisions relating to General Stock Ownership Corporations (GSOCs) as deadwood, effective January 1, 1984.

Title XIV. Trusts and Estates; Minor Children; Gift and Estate Taxes; Generation-Skipping Transfer Tax

A. INCOME TAXATION OF TRUSTS AND ESTATES

1. Tax rate schedule

The rate schedule applicable to the retained income of trusts and estate is compressed as compared with the rates applicable to individuals. Th first $5,000 of taxable income of trusts and estates is taxed at 15 percent with any excess taxed at 28 percent. The benefit of the 15-percent rate i phased out between $13,000 and $26,000 of taxable income.

2. Grantor trust rules

Under the act, the income of a trust generally is taxed to its grantor i the trust corpus will revert to the grantor or the grantor's spouse at any time. An exception is provided where the trust may revert only after th death of the income beneficiary of the trust who is a lineal descendant o the grantor.

This provision applies to transfers in trust made after March 1, 1986, with an exception for certain trusts created pursuant to a binding property settlement entered into before March 1, 1986.

3. Taxable years of trusts

The act requires that existing and newly created trusts, other than wholly charitable trusts, adopt a calendar year as their taxable year. This provision applies for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

4. Trusts and estates to make estimated payments of income tax

The act requires that new and existing estates after their second taxable year and trusts pay estimated tax in the same manner as individuals. Also, the act repeals the rules that permit estates to pay tax over four equal installments. This provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

B. UNEARNED INCOME OF CHILDREN UNDER AGE 14

Under the act, all of the unearned income of a child under age 14 in excess of $500 is taxed to the child at the top marginal rate of his or her parents. This rule applies to any taxable income of the child reduced by the $500 of standard deduction that the child may allocate to unearned income. Thus, the provision generally applies only to unearned income of the minor child in excess of $1,000.

This provision generally is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

C. GIFT AND ESTATE TAXES

1. Filing information for estate tax current use valuation elections

Where an executor of an estate of an individual dying before 1986 elected current use valuation on a timely filed estate tax return by providing substantially all the information elicited by the return form, the executor will have an additional 90 days, after being notified by the IRS, to supply any missing information. This provision is effective on enactment of the bill, with a special targeted transitional exception.

2. Gift and estate tax deductions for certain conservation easement donations

Deductions for contributions of certain interests in real property to charitable organizations, to the United States, or to a State or local governmental unit are allowed for Federal gift and estate tax purposes even if the contributions do not meet the requirement for deductibility for Federal income tax purposes that the contributions be for conservation purposes.

This provision is effective for contributions made after December 31, 1986. A targeted transition rule is provided for certain contributions to the Acadia National Park in Maine.

3. Special relief for the Estate of James H. W. Thompson

Special relief is provided for certain Thai artifacts that were indirectly contributed by James H. W. Thompson to a charitable organization for the benefit of the Thai people.

D. GENERATION-SKIPPING TRANSFER TAX

The act amends the present generation-skipping transfer tax to impose a flat-rate tax both on transfers involving a sharing in benefits by more than one generation and on direct transfers that skip generations. A $1 million per transferor specific exemption is provided, with transfers in excess of that amount being subject to tax at a rate equal to the maximum gift and estate tax rate. In addition, the act provides an additional exemption of $2 million per donee against the tax on direct skips to grandchildren, until January 1, 1990.

The provision is effective generally for testamentary transfers made after the date of enactment and for inter vivos transfers made after September 25, 1985.

TITLE XV. COMPLIANCE AND TAX ADMINISTRATION

A. PENALTIES

1. Penalty for failure to file information returns or statements

The act consolidates the present-law penalty for failure to file an information return with the IRS and the present-law penalty for failure to supply a copy of the information return to the taxpayer. The act also provides a new penalty for failure to include correct information on an information return. This applies to information returns the due date for which is after December 31, 1986.

2. Increase in penalty for failure to pay tax

The act increases the penalty for failure to pay taxes from one-half of 1 percent under present law to 1 percent after the IRS notifies the taxpayer that the IRS will levy upon the assets of the taxpayer. This applies to amounts assessed after December 31, 1986.

3. Negligence and fraud penalties

The act expands the scope of the negligence penalty by making it applicable to all taxes under the Code. The act also provides that failure to report on a tax return any amount reported on an information return is considered negligence in the absence of clear and convincing evidence to the contrary. The act modifies the fraud penalty by increasing the rate to 75 percent but applying the penalty only to the amount of the underpayment attributable to fraud. These provisions are effective for returns the due date of which is after December 31, 1986.

4. Penalty for substantial understatement of tax liability

The act increases the penalty for substantial understatement of tax liability from 10 to 20 percent of the amount of the underpayment of tax attributable to the understatement. This is effective for returns the due date of which is after December 31, 1986.

B. INTEREST PROVISIONS

1. Differential interest rate

The act provides that the Government pays interest to taxpayers at the Federal short-term rate plus 2 percentage points, and that taxpayers pay interest to the Government at the Federal short-term rate plus 3 percentage points. These rates are adjusted quarterly, and apply to interest for periods after December 31, 1986.

2. Interest on accumulated earnings tax

The act provides that interest is imposed on underpayments of the accumulated earnings tax from the due date of the tax return with respect to which that tax is imposed. This applies to returns the due date for which (determined without regard to extensions) is after December 31, 1985.

C. INFORMATION REPORTING PROVISIONS

1. Real estate transactions

The act provides that the person responsible for closing a real estate transaction must provide an information report on the transaction. This is effective beginning January 1, 1987.

2. Persons receiving Federal contracts

The act requires Federal executive agencies to provide information reports on contracts that they enter. Reporting is required beginning January 1, 1987.

3. Royalties

The act modifies current information reporting requirements for royalties, effective January 1, 1987.

4. Taxpayer identification numbers of dependents

The act requires that any taxpayer claiming a deduction for a dependent who is at least 5 years old must report the taxpayer identification number of that dependent on that tax return, effective for returns required to be filed after December 31, 1987. Special rules are provided for religious groups exempt from social security taxes.

5. Modification of separate mailing requirement

The act modifies the separate mailing requirement for information reports on interest, dividends, patronage dividends, and royalties, effective for those returns required to be filed after December 31, 1986.

6. Tax-exempt interest

The act requires that tax-exempt interest be shown on tax returns filed after December 31, 1987.

D. TAX SHELTERS

1. Tax shelter registration

The act conforms the tax shelter ratio computation (used to determine whether a tax shelter must register with the IRS) more closely to the new tax rate schedule.

2. Tax shelter penalties

The act increases the penalties for failure to register a tax shelter, for failure to report a tax shelter identification number, and for failure to maintain lists of tax shelter investors, effective on the date of enactment.

3. Tax shelter interest

The act provides that sham or fraudulent transactions are subject to the increased rate of interest on underpayments of tax attributable to tax-motivated transactions. The act does not include the Senate provision increasing the rate of this interest.

E. ESTIMATED TAX PAYMENTS

The act increases from 80 to 90 percent the proportion of the current year's tax liability that individual taxpayers must make as estimated tax payments in order to avoid the estimated tax penalty, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986. The act also requires that tax-exempt organizations subject to the unrelated business income tax and private foundations subject to the excise tax on their net investment income must make quarterly estimated payments of those taxes, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

F. TAX LITIGATION AND TAX COURT

1. Awards of attorney's fees in tax cases

The act extends permanently with several modifications the provision of present law authorizing awards of attorney's fees in tax cases. These modifications relate to the basis for such awards. The present-law burden of proof is unchanged.

2. Exhaustion of administrative remedies

The act provides that failure to exhaust administrative remedies is an additional basis for the Tax Court to impose a discretionary penalty.

3. Report to Congress on Tax Court inventory

The act provides that the Treasury and the Tax Court will report to Congress every 2 years on the Tax Court inventory.

4. Tax Court provisions

The act permits the Tax Court to impose a practice fee, clarifies that the Tax Court has jurisdiction over the penalty for failure to pay tax, clarifies that the Tax Court may obtain the assistance of U.S. Marshals, clarifies the pay and travel rules pertaining to Special Trial Judges, permits a judge to elect to practice law after retirement and receive retirement pay, allows interlocutory appeals to be certified to the Court of Appeals, and conforms the survivor's annuity provisions to those applicable to the District Court.

G. TAX ADMINISTRATION PROVISIONS

1. Suspend statute of limitations during prolonged dispute over third-party records

The act provides that, if a dispute between the IRS and a third-party recordkeeper is not resolved within 6 months, the statute of limitations is suspended until the issue is resolved.

2. Authority to rescind notice of deficiency

The act gives the IRS authority, if the taxpayer consents, to rescind a statutory notice of deficiency.

3. Authority to abate interest

The act gives the IRS the authority to abate interest attributable to error or delay by an IRS employee in performing a ministerial act.

4. Suspension of compounding when underlying interest is suspended

The act suspends the compounding of interest in circumstances in which the underlying interest on the deficiency is also suspended.

5. Additional exemption from levy

The act exempts from IRS levy military service disability benefits.

6. Rules applicable to forfeiture

The act conforms the rules in the Code applicable to forfeiture to the parallel Customs provisions.

7. Certain recordkeeping requirements

The act provides that IRS special agents are subject to the same income inclusion and recordkeeping rules that other law enforcement officers are with respect to use of an automobile.

8. Disclosure of return information to certain large cities

The act authorizes the Treasury to exchange tax return information with any city with a population exceeding 2 million that imposes an income or wage tax.

H. MODIFICATION OF WITHHOLDING SCHEDULES

The act requires employees to file revised withholding certificates by January 1, 1988. The act also instructs the Treasury Department to modify withholding schedules to better approximate actual tax liability under the act.

I. REPORT ON RETURN-FREE TAX SYSTEM

The act requires the Treasury Department to report to the Congress o the potential for implementing a return-free tax system for individual The report is due not later than 6 months after enactment.

Title XVI. Exempt and Nonprofit Organizations

A. EXCHANGES AND RENTALS OF MEMBERSHIP LISTS OF CERTAIN TAX-EXEMPT ORGANIZATIONS

The act provides an exception from the unrelated business income ta in the case of tax-exempt organizations eligible to receive tax-deductibl charitable contributions, for income from exchanges or rentals of donor o member lists with or to other such tax-exempt organizations, effective fo transactions occurring after the date of enactment.

B. DISTRIBUTION OF LOW-COST ARTICLES BY CHARITIES

The act provides an exception from the unrelated business income ta in the case of tax-exempt organizations eligible to receive tax-deductibl charitable contributions, for income from certain distributions of low-co articles incidental to soliciting charitable contributions, effective for distr butions occurring after the date of enactment.

C. EXPANSION OF EXCEPTION FROM UNRELATED BUSINESS INCOME TAX FOR QUALIFIED TRADE SHOWS

The present-law exception from the unrelated business income tax fo qualified trade show or convention activities of trade associations, labo unions, or agricultural organizations is expanded to cover (1) qualifie trade shows or conventions at which suppliers to the sponsoring organiza tion's members sell products or services, and (2) qualified trade show an convention activities of charitable organizations (sec. 501(c)(3)) and soci welfare organizations (sec. 501(c)(4)), effective for taxable years beginnin after the date of enactment.

D. TAX-EXEMPT STATUS FOR CERTAIN TITLE-HOLDING COMPANIES

The act adds a new category of section 501(c) tax-exempt organization consisting of title-holding companies that have up to 35 related or unrelat ed tax-exempt organizations as shareholders or beneficiaries, if certai conditions are met. This provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1986.

E. EXCEPTION TO MEMBERSHIP ORGANIZATION DEDUCTION RULES

Membership organizations engaged primarily in the gathering and distribution of news to their members for publication are permitted to deduct expenses relating to the furnishing of goods and services to members from income whether or not derived from members, effective on the date of enactment.

F. TAX-EXEMPT STATUS FOR TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER ORGANIZATION

Under the act, the Washington Research Foundation, an organization that transfers technology from universities and scientific research organizations to the private sector, is treated as a tax-exempt charitable organization, effective on the date of enactment.

Title XVII. Other Provisions

A. TARGETED JOBS TAX CREDIT

The act extends the targeted jobs credit for 3 additional years, i.e., for first-year wages paid to individuals who begin work for the employer before 1989. Under the act, the credit for first-year wages is reduced from 50 percent to 40 percent; wages paid in the second year of a targeted individual's employment are not eligible for the credit; and the credit is not available if the employee works less than 90 days (14 days in the case of qualified summer youth employees) or 120 hours (20 hours in the case of qualified summer youth employees). These modifications to the credit apply with respect to individuals who begin work for the employer after 1985.

B. COLLECTION OF DIESEL FUEL AND GASOLINE EXCISE TAXES

Diesel fuel tax.—Under the act, the diesel fuel excise tax for highway use may be imposed on the sale from a wholesaler to a retailer of the fuel (or by the manufacturer where the sale is direct to the retailer), at the election of a qualified retailer, effective for sales of diesel fuel for use in highway vehicles after the first calendar quarter beginning more than 60 days after the date of enactment of the bill.

Gasoline tax.—The present rules under which collection of the manufacturers excise tax may be deferred to the wholesale level are repealed, effective January 1, 1988. The Treasury is directed to study the incidence of evasion of the gasoline tax and to report to the Congress by December 31, 1986.

C. SOCIAL SECURITY AND FUTA PROVISIONS

1. Allow ministers to reelect social security coverage

The act provides for a one-time irrevocable election back into social security coverage (and the self-employment tax) for ministers who had previously elected out on religious grounds, effective for taxable years beginning on or after the date of enactment.

2. FUTA for certain Indian tribes

FUTA taxes assessed against certain Indian tribes for the period of time they are refused unemployment compensation coverage by the State are excused. This provision is effective with respect to services performed before, on, or after the date of enactment, and before January 1, 1988.

3. Treatment of certain technical personnel

Section 530 of the Revenue Act of 1978 does not apply to services provided pursuant to an arrangement between the taxpayer and another organization whereby the individual provided services as an engineer, designer, drafter, computer programmer, systems analyst, or other similarly skilled worker engaged in a similar line of work for such other organization, effective for services rendered after the date of enactment.

D. TAX CODE REFERENCE

The act enacts into law the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. That is, the act reenacts the provisions of the 1954 Code—as in effect on the date of enactment of the bill—together with amendments as made by the act. Under the act, no provision of the Internal Revenue title that was in effect on August 16, 1954 is to apply in any case where its application would be contrary to any treaty obligation of the United States in effect on the date of enactment of the 1954 Code.

E. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

1. Foster care payments

The present-law exclusion for certain foster care payments is extended to cover such payments for care of adults as well as children, and is modified to eliminate the requirement of detailed recordkeeping, effective for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1987.

2. Rules for spouses of Vietnam MIAs

The act reinstates and makes permanent certain expired provisions relating to Vietnam MIAs, effective for taxable years beginning after 1982.

3. Exempt certain reindeer income from tax

The act provides that income derived directly from the sale of reindeer or reindeer products as provided in the Reindeer Industry Act of 1937 is exempt from Federal income taxation. This provision applies as if originally included in the related provision of the 1937 Act.

4. Certain quality control studies for AFDC and Medicaid

The act provides revised deadlines for a study to be conducted by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) of quality control measures in connection with the administration of the Aid to Families with Dependent Children and Medicaid programs, and for publication by HHS of regulations relating to such quality control measures.

Title XVIII. Technical Corrections

This title contains technical, clerical, conforming, and clarifying amendments to provisions enacted by the Tax Reform Act of 1984, the Retirement Equity Act of 1984, and other recently enacted tax legislation, as well as similar amendments to nontax provisions of the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984.

H.R. 3918 (Mr. Rostenkowski); Public Law 99–181; app. Dec. 13, 1985.

H.R. 3918 includes the following extensions of expiring provisions:

1. Extends the previous cigarette excise tax rates of 16-cents-per-pack from Dec. 14, 1985, through Dec. 18, 1985.

2. Extends the trade adjustment assistance programs from Dec. 14, 1985, through Dec. 18, 1985.

3. Extends through Dec. 18, 1985, the authority for the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Account to borrow from the Railroad Retirement Account.

4. Medicare hospital payment rates are frozen through Dec. 18, 1985. Implementation of a new wage index would be deferred, and the proportions of hospital-specific and Federal DRG components in the prospective payment accounts would remain unchanged through Dec. 18, 1985. Medicare physician reimbursement amounts would remain unchanged through Dec. 18, 1985, and the amount that nonparticipating physicians may charge beneficiaries would remain frozen for this period.

On Dec. 12, 1985, the Committee on Ways and Means was discharged from consideration of H.R. 3918 and the bill passed both the House and the Senate without amendment.

The President signed H.R. 3918 into law on Dec. 13, 1985, as Public Law 99-181.

H.R. 3981 (Mr. Gibbons); Public Law 99–189; app. Dec. 18, 1985.

H.R. 3981 extends the previous cigarette excise tax rates of 16-cents-per-pack from Dec. 18, 1985, through Dec. 19, 1985. H.R. 3981 passed the House and the Senate on Dec. 18, 1985, without amendment.

The President signed H.R. 3981 into law on Dec. 18, 1985, as Public Law 99-189.

H.R. 3992 (Mr. Rostenkowski); pending before Rules Committee.

H.R. 3992, the Miscellaneous Tax Provisions Extensions Act of 1985, would have extended through July 31, 1986, numerous provisions of prior law which would otherwise have expired. For several of the extended provisions, the bill would have incorporated reforms that the House had previously approved in H.R. 3838, the Tax Reform Act of 1985.

The provisions which H.R. 3992 would have extended in their current-law version include: (1) educational assistance; (2) group legal services benefits; (3) attorneys' fees; (4) cigarette excise tax; (5) moratorium on 1976 act NOL carryover rules; (6) rules for spouses of Vietnam MIA's; (7) barriers to the handicapped; and (8) taxicab fuel tax exemption. (See H.R. 4006 description for an exlpanation of these provisions.)

Provisions which H.R. 3992 would have extended as modified by H.R. 3838 include: (1) incremental research tax credit; (2) targeted jobs tax credit; (3) moratorium on faculty housing regulations; and (5) energy credits. (See H.R. 3838 description for an explanation of these provisions.)

On Dec. 19, 1985 (after the House did not agree to consider H.R. 3992 under a unanimous consent request), the Rules Committee favorably reported H.Res. 350 to allow consideration of H.R. 3992. However, during the first session of the 99th Congress, neither H.Res. 350, nor H.R. 3992 were considered by the House.

H.R. 4006 (Mr. Rostenkowski); Public Law 99-201; app. Dec. 23, 1985.

H.R. 4006, the Fifth Emergency Extension Act of 1985-86, was referred jointly to the Committees on Ways and Means and Energy and Commerce. On Dec. 19, 1985, both committees were discharged from consideration of the bill and H.R. 4006 passed the House.

As passed by the House, H.R. 4006 would have extended until Mar. 15, 1986, numerous provisions of prior law which would otherwise have expired. The provisions covered by H.R. 4006 as passed by the House are as follows:

NON TAX ISSUES

1. Trade adjustment assistance

The Trade Act of 1974 provides trade adjustment assistance (TAA) for workers and firms certified as harmed by increased import competition. The authorization for the TAA programs terminated on Dec. 19, 1985. H.R. 4006 would reauthorize the existing TAA programs for workers and firms through Mar. 15, 1986.

2. Borrowing authority under the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act

The Railroad Unemployment Insurance Account can borrow from the Railroad Retirement Account if there are insufficient funds in the unemployment account to pay benefits to unemployed rail workers. The authority expired after Dec. 19, 1985. H.R. 4006 would extend the authority for the Railroad Unemployment Account to borrow from the Railroad Retirement Account through Mar. 15, 1986.

3. Medicare Hospital and Physician Payment Programs

Under H.R. 4006, medicare hospital payments would be frozen until Mar. 15, 1986. Implementation of a new wage index would be deferred and the proportions of hospital-specific and Federal DRG components in the prospective payment amounts would remain unchanged through Mar. 15, 1986. Medicare physician reimbursement amounts would remain unchanged through Mar. 15, 1986, and the amounts that nonparticipating physicians may charge beneficiaries would remain frozen for this period.

TAX ISSUES

1. Incremental research tax credit

A taxpayer may claim a 25 percent tax credit for the excess of (1) its qualified research expenditures for the taxable year incurred in carrying on a business over (2) the average amount of its yearly qualified research expenditures in the preceding 3 taxable years. Under prior law, the credit would not apply to expenses paid or incurred after Dec. 31, 1985. H.R. 4006 would extend the incremental research credit to apply to qualified research expenditures paid or incurred through Mar. 15, 1986.

2. Targeted jobs tax credit

An employer may claim a tax credit for a specified percentage of wages (up to a dollar cap) paid during the first and second years of employment of an individual in a targeted group, including certain economically disadvantaged or disabled individuals. Under prior law, the credit would not apply with respect to the target-group individuals who begin work for the employer after Dec. 31, 1985. H.R. 4006 would extend the targeted jobs tax credit for wages paid to targeted group individualas who begin work for an employer before Mar. 16, 1986.

3. Educational assistance

An exclusion from gross income is provided for up to $5,000 annually of employer-provided educational assistance pursuant to a qualified program. Under prior law, this exclusion would not apply to taxable years beginning after Dec. 31, 1985. H.R. 4006 would extend the exclusion for up to $5,000 annually of employee-provided educational assistance for Jan. 1, 1986 through Mar. 15, 1986.

4. Group legal services benefits

Prior law excludes from gross income employer contributions to qualified prepaid legal services plan, as well as the value of any leg services received by, or amounts paid as reimbursement for legal servic for, the employee or the employee's spouse or dependents. This exclusio and the related provision for tax-exempt status of a trust forming a part o a qualified legal services plan, would not apply for taxable years endin after Dec. 31, 1985. H.R. 4006 would extend the exclusion for benefit under a qualified prepaid legal services plan, and the related provision fo tax-exempt status of a trust forming part of the plan for the period Jan. 1986, through Mar. 15, 1986.

5. Attorneys' fees

Attorneys' fees up to $25,000 may be awarded in a Federal tax case to prevailing taxpayer if the taxpayer proves that the Government's positio was unreasonable. Under prior law, this provision expired with respect t court proceedings commenced after Dec. 31, 1985. H.R. 4006 woul extend the provision for awards of attorneys' fees in tax litigation fo proceedings commenced prior to Mar. 16, 1986.

6. Cigarette excise tax

Prior law imposes a cigarette excise tax of 16 cents per pack. This rat had been extended through Dec. 31, 1985. Therefore, the rate was scheduled to decrease to 8 cents per pack on Dec. 31, 1985. H.R. 4006 woul extend the tax rate of 16 cents per pack through Mar. 15, 1986.

7. Moratorium on 1976 act NOL carryover rules

Under a moratorium last extended in the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984, the amendments made by the Tax Reform Act of 1976 to code secs. 382 and 383, relating to the carryover of corporate net operating losses (NOLs) and other corporate tax attributes, were deferred until Jan. 1, 1986. H.R. 4006 would extend the moratorium on applicability of the 1976 Act NOL carryover rules, through Mar. 15, 1986.

8. Moratorium on sec. 861 research allocation rule

The Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 suspended until taxable years beginning after Aug. 1, 1985, the applicability of the rule in Treasury Regulation sec. 1.861-8 that requires a taxpayer with foreign-source income from products in a product area in which it does U.S. research to allocate part of its U.S. research expenses against foreign income. H.R. 4006 would extend the moratorium on the Treasury regulation, effective for taxable years beginning after Aug. 1, 1985, and would apply the moratorium through Mar. 15, 1986.

9. Rules for spouses of Vietnam MIA's

Certain tax relief provisions applicable with respect to Vietnam MIA's and their spouses expired after 1982. H.R. 4006 would retroactively reinstate these tax relief provisions through Mar. 15, 1986.

10. Moratorium on faculty housing regulations

The Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 prohibits the Treasury Department from issuing, prior to Jan. 1, 1986, any income tax regulations that would provide for inclusion in gross income of the excess of the fair market value of qualified campus lodging over the greater of (1) the operating costs paid in furnishing the lodging, or (2) the rent received. This moratorium on regulations applies only with respect to qualified campus lodging furnished after Dec. 31, 1983, and before Jan. 1, 1986. H.R. 4006 would continue the moratorium on Treasury regulations with respect to campus lodging furnished through July 31, 1986.

11. Barriers to the handicapped

Taxpayers may expense up to $35,000 annually of costs for removing architectural or transportation barriers to the handicapped or elderly. This provision does not apply to such costs incurred in taxable years beginning after Dec. 31, 1985. H.R. 4006 would extend the expensing provision for costs of removing barriers to the handicapped to such costs incurred through Mar. 15, 1986.

12. Energy credits

The residential and business energy tax credits expired on Dec. 31, 1985. H.R. 4006 would extend the previous residential solar energy tax credit through Mar. 15, 1986. The bill also would extend the previous business solar and geothermal energy tax credits through Mar. 15, 1986.

13. Taxicab fuel tax exemption

The 4-cents-per-gallon exemption from the excise taxes on gasoline and motor fuels for qualified taxicabs would be reinstated as of Oct. 1, 1985, for the period through Mar. 15, 1986.

On Dec. 19, 1985, the Senate amended and passed H.R. 4006. The Senate-passed version of H.R. 4006 would extend the following provisions through Mar. 14, 1986: (1) The 16-cents-per-pack cigarette excise tax rate; (2) the Trade Adjustment Assistance Program; (3) borrowing authority under the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act; (4) the Medicare physician payment provisions.

On Dec. 20, 1985, the House agreed to the Senate amendment with amendments. The House-passed version of H.R. 4006 would extend the following provisions through Mar. 14, 1986: (1) the 16-cents-per-pack cigarette excise tax rate, and (2) the Medicare hospital and physician payment provisions. The Senate agreed to the House amendments on Dec. 20, 1985.

The President signed H.R. 4006 into law on Dec. 23, 1985, as Public Law 99-201.

H.R. 4350 (Mr. Vento with cosponsors); Public Law 99–590; app. Oct. 30, 1986.

H.R. 4350, the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act, was referred solely to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs. H.R. 4350 was favorably reported from the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee on Mar. 20, 1986, and passed by the House on Apr. 8, 1986.

As passed by the House, H.R. 4350 included language providing that certain contributions of real property interests (e.g., the granting of conservation easements) may qualify for Federal income tax deductions regardless of restrictions on such deductions within the Internal Revenue Code. Chairman Rostenkowski, in a statement to the House on Apr. 8, 1986, expressed hope that the jurisdictional concerns of the Committee on Ways and Means regarding H.R. 4350 could be remedied as the bill proceeded legislatively, and stated his intent to pursue appropriate jurisdictional referral of similar future legislation.

In the Senate, H.R. 4350 was referred to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources. That committee was discharged and the bill passed the Senate amended on Sept. 12, 1986. As passed by the Senate, H.R. 4350 still contained the tax provision.

On Oct. 8, 1986, the House agreed to the Senate amendment with amendments, one of which deleted the tax provision. The Senate agreed to the House amendment with an amendment (unrelated to the tax provision) on Oct. 15, 1986. The House agreed to the Senate amendment on Oct. 16, 1986.

H.R. 4350 was signed into law by the President on Oct. 30, 1986, as Public Law 99-590.

H.R. 4515 (Mr. Whitten); Public Law 99–349; app. July 2, 1986.

H.R. 4515, making urgent supplemental appropriations for fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1986, was referred to the Appropriations Committee. The bill passed the House on May 8, 1986 with an amendment made in order by the Rules Committee, which would allow continued Medicare payment for capital-related cost basis until Oct. 1, 1987. The bill was reported to the Senate on May 15, 1986, and passed the Senate amended, on June 6, 1986. On June 19, 1986, the conference report was filed. The House agreed to the conference report on June 24, 1986 and the Senate on June 26, 1986.

The President signed H.R. 4515 into law on July 2, 1986, as Public Law 99-349.

H.R. 4750 (Mr. Rostenkowski with cosponsors); reported to House May 6, 1986. (See also H.R. 4800.)

H.R. 4750, the Comprehensive Trade Policy Reform Act of 1986, was reported to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on May 6, 1986. The bill is superseded by H.R. 4800. A summary of H.R. 4750 as reported follows.

H.R. 4750 contains three titles: Title I contains extensive amendments to U.S. trade laws and includes negotiating authority and objectives for a new round of trade negotiations; Title II includes over 60 miscellaneous trade and tariff issues covering duty suspensions, duty-free measures, classification changes and customs related nontariff matters. Title III provides for the implementation of the Nairobi Protocol to the Florence Agreement.

The Committee on Ways and Means reported H.R. 4750 to the House on May 6, 1986. The bill was sequentially referred until May 9, to the Committees on Energy and Commerce and the Judiciary for consideration of certain provisions under Title I within their jurisdictions.

The identical provisions of H.R. 4750 as reported by the Committee on Ways and Means were incorporated as Titles I, II, and VIII of H.R. 4800, the "Trade and International Economic Policy Reform Act of 1986." (See H.R. 4800 for further action.)

TITLE I—TRADE LAW AMENDMENTS

SUBTITLE A—ENFORCEMENT OF U.S. TRADE AGREEMENT RIGHTS AND RESPONSES TO FOREIGN TRADE PRACTICES

Chapter 1—Amendments to the Trade Act of 1974

References to the Trade Act of 1974

Provides that, unless otherwise specified, all references in chapter 1 are to the Trade Act of 1974.

Determinations requiring actions

Sec. 112 requires that in cases involving foreign violations of trade agreements or other "unjustifiable" practices, the President must retaliate in an amount equivalent in value to, and necessary to eliminate fully, the foreign burden or restriction (the form of retaliation would be at his discretion). The President is also required to report to Congress on each action. No retaliation would be required however, if:

(1) The GATT determines the practice is not a violation of U.S. rights or does not deny trade agreement benefits.

(2) The foreign government has agreed to eliminate or phase out the practice or has agreed to a satisfactory imminent solution of the burden or restriction of U.S. commerce.

(3) If neither of the above can be achieved, the foreign country has agreed to provide satisfactory full compensatory trade benefits.

(4) The President determines such action is not in the national economic interest, because economic interests would be more adversely affected if action were taken than if not, and he reports the reasons to the Congress.

This section also adds specific authority to remove or deny duty-free treatment under the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP) with respect to a country or on certain products as a sec. 301 action. Further, it amends the definition of "unreasonable" acts, policies, or practices actionable under sec. 301 to include:

(1) The denial of internationally recognized worker rights; and

(2) Toleration of cartels.

With respect to cases involving "unreasonable" or "discriminatory practices" which do not violate U.S. rights, the President would retain discretionary authority to retaliate.

Finally, sec. 112 requires the President to take into account the likely impact on agricultural exports of imposing sec. 301 import restrictions.

Export targeting

Sec. 113 provides a discipline for injurious export targeting. Sec. 301 would specifically apply to cases where imports or sales in the United States subject to export targeting cause, or threaten to cause, material injury to the domestic industry. The USTR is required to determine whether export targeting exists and the ITC must make an injury determination and report its finding to USTR, both within 6 months after the investigation is initiated.

Presidential action is mandatory in cases of injurious export targeting, but the President has discretion as to the form of action that must be taken to eliminate the policy or practice, and/or to fully offset the injurious effects of such targeting. Actions could include (1) retaliation in an amount equivalent in value and necessary to eliminate fully the burden or restriction; (2) agreements by the foreign country to solve the burden or restriction or to provide compensatory trade benefits, (3) administrative actions or proposed legislation to restore or improve the industry's international competitive position; and (4) a combination of these actions. Action must reflect, to the extent possible, the full benefit level of the targeting policy or practice over the period it has an effect.

Investigatory procedures

Sec. 114 adds investigation procedures relates to the obtaining and use of information from foreign countries. It also provides for consultations with affected domestic interests (firm, worker, consumer, exporter) prior to foreign consultations and dispute settlement and prior to recommendations on action, including consultations with industry and labor about action in injurious targeting cases.

Mandatory initiation of certain investigations by USTR

Sec. 115 requires USTR to self-initiate an investigation within 90 days after identifying in the annual trade barrier report a foreign act, policy, or practice which has a significant adverse impact on U.S. exports and which is a likely violation of U.S. rights, if (1) consultations with domestic interests affected determine that sec. 301 negotiations will likely result in expanded export opportunities for U.S. products; (2) U.S. exports would not suffer significant adverse effects because of displacement in export markets, retaliation, or mirror procedures; and (3) self-initiation is in the U.S. economic interest.

Recommendations for Presidential action by Trade Representative

Sec. 116 amends sec. 304 to transfer to USTR from the President the authority to make determinations of whether foreign practices meet sec. 301 criteria and requires that such determinations be made. The President would retain the authority to decide and implement actions, based on USTR recommendations.

This section also reduces and imposes time limits for action. It requires USTR determinations on whether an act, policy, or practice is actionable under sec. 301 and recommendations to the President on actions, if any, within a maximum of 9 months, or 11 months in cases of injurious export targeting. This time period may be extended up to 3 months if additional time is needed before foreign consultations to prepare the international case. Further, it requires the President to decide and implement any action within 30 days thereafter (with a possible 3-month extension if substantial progress is being made toward a satisfactory solution or the petitioner requests delay).

Modification and termination of actions

Sec. 117 would create a new sec. 307 of the Trade Act adding modification and termination, and compensation authority. It allows modification, or termination of sec. 301 retaliation if the GATT subsequently finds the foreign practice is not illegal, the practice is eliminated, or retaliation is ineffective based on a USTR biennial review and recommendation, after consultation with domestic interests. Sec. 175 of the Act amends sec. 123 of the Trade Act to authorize compensation to foreign countries if sec. 301 retaliation violates GATT.

Barriers to market access

Sec. 118 amends sec. 181(b)(1) of the Trade Act to require reports provided for therein on foreign trade barriers to be submitted to the Committee on Foreign Affairs as well as the Committee on Ways and Means and to require that such reports identify barriers that had a significant adverse impact on U.S. exports.

Mandatory action against foreign countries having excessive and unwarranted trade surpluses with the United States

Sec. 119 adds a new sec. 311 to the Trade Act, Mandatory Negotiations and Actions Regarding Foreign Countries Having Unwarranted Trade Surpluses with the United States. The provision requires an annual ITC determination as to whether any "major U.S. trading partner" maintains an "excessive trade surplus," as defined by the new section. The first determinations would be due 2 months after enactment.

This section requires a USTR determination, within 15 days after the ITC determinations, as to whether any "excessive surplus" country maintains a "pattern of unjustifiable, unreasonable, or discriminatory trade policies or practices that have a significant adverse effect on United Stat commerce and contribute to the excessive surplus of that country." Th determination would be based on findings and determinations from variety of sources.

If the USTR's determination is affirmative, the foreign country placed on a list of countries with "excessive and unwarranted bilater trade surpluses" and is subject to negotiations and actions aimed at achieving "surplus reduction goals". These goals would be as follows: for 1987—a 10 percent reduction below the 1985 surplus; for 1988—a 10 percen reduction below the 1987 surplus; for each subsequent year through 199 a further 10 percent reduction. Countries may be removed from the list any time if they no longer maintain excessive trade surpluses or a patter of unjustifiable, unreasonable, or discriminatory trade policies.

New sec. 311 further requires the USTR to negotiate within 2 month (with a possible 2-month extension) an agreement with the country concerned which would achieve the surplus reduction goals. If such negotiations are unsuccessful, Presidential action is required. The President ma select from a broad range of possible actions which he considers necessar or appropriate to achieve the surplus reduction goals. These actions ma include a broad range of trade measures, including suspension of trad agreements, quotas or tariffs, or negotiation of such agreements, includin orderly marketing agreements. Any such action is subject to the waiver described below.

Finally sec. 119 allows the President to reduce the surplus reductio goals for a country with balance of payments difficulties and to waive the use of actions if he determines they would cause substantial harm to the U.S. economy. Congress is given 90 days to override any such waivers.

Conforming amendments and effective date

Sec. 120 simply contains conforming amendments and the effectiv dates for the provisions in chapter 1.

Chapter 2—International Trade in Telecommunications Products and Services

Short title

Sec. 121 states that the short title is "Telecommunications Trade Act of 1986."

Findings and purposes

Sec. 122 sets forth a number of findings and purposes with respect to international trade in telecommunications products and services.

Negotiating objectives

Sec. 123 sets forth six primary and seven secondary negotiating objectives for the purposes of sec. 124.

Investigation of foreign telecommunications trade barriers

Sec. 124 requires a USTR investigation of foreign trade barriers to telecommunications exports and determination within 6 months as to whether the barriers deny fully competitive foreign market opportunities to U.S. firms. Petitions by interested parties and self-initiation also may prompt an investigation and final determination. The USTR may exclude countries if their market is not substantial. This section also requires the USTR to establish specific primary and secondary negotiating objectives which should be pursued in subsequent negotiations with foreign countries identified during the USTR's investigation. It also requires reports to Congress.

Action by the President in response to investigations by Trade Representativ

Sec. 125 requires the President to negotiate with countries identified under sec. 124 for the purpose of entering into agreements which achieve the objectives laid out by the USTR under sec. 124. If an agreement is not reached, the President is required to take certain countermeasures within a time certain (from 18 months to 3½ years, depending upon subsequent Presidential decisions and congressional action) in order to achieve the objectives. He is given a broad selection of options for such action.

Review of trade agreement implementation by Trade Representative

Sec. 126 provides that if, on the basis of annual reviews, the USTR determines that a country is not in compliance with its telecommunications agreement or otherwise denies fully competitive market opportunities under the agreement, the USTR must take action to offset the violation and restore the balance of concessions.

Consultations

Sec. 127 sets forth requirements for consultation by the President and the USTR with Congress, the private sector, and various departments and agencies.

General trade agreement authority

Sec. 128 provides the President with 3½ years negotiating authority subject to "fast-track" congressional implementation of agreements.

Compensation authority

Sec. 129 provides compensation authority in the event that retaliatory actions taken by the President or the USTR are found to be GATT-illegal.

Definition of telecommunications product

Sec. 130 defines telecommunications products in terms of tariff schedule (TSUS) numbers.

International obligations

Sec. 131 specifies that nothing in the Act shall be construed to require action inconsistent with U.S. international obligations.

SUBTITLE B—RELIEF FROM INJURY CAUSED BY IMPORT COMPETITION, SUBSIDIES, DUMPING, AND OTHER UNFAIR TRADE PRACTICES

Chapter 1—Relief From Injury by Import Competition

Import relief

Sec. 141 amends Chapter 1 of Title II of the Trade Act (commonly referred to as sec. 201) in a number of important respects. It transfers the ultimate decisionmaking authority under sec. 201 from the President to the USTR. It also provides for preparation of an industry adjustment plan by an adjustment advisory group. Upon the request of a petitioner, an industry adjustment advisory group, which is composed of representatives of labor, management, consumers, communities, and appropriate Federal Government officials is appointed by USTR to consider and submit an adjustment plan for the industry as a whole. Such plan should set forth an assessment of the problems facing the industry and a strategy for enhancing its long-term international competitiveness. The plan is to be submitted to the ITC within 120 days of the initiation of the investigation.

If a plan is submitted to the ITC, and the ITC finds serious injury, it is required to take the plan into account in determining the appropriate remedy for the injury. In determining whether to provide import relief, the USTR must take into account any adjustment plan submitted by the advisory group, and may condition the provision of import relief on compliance with such elements of the plan as the USTR deems appropriate.

The USTR is also authorized to obtain confidential information from firms and unions in the domestic industry to ascertain how they plan to implement the adjustment plan. The failure to submit a plan, or the failure to request the establishment of an advisory group, may not be a factor in any determination by ITC or USTR.

The amended version of sec. 201 also authorizes temporary emergency import relief for perishable products if the Secretary of Agriculture determines within 20 days that such relief is warranted, and such determination is not overridden by the USTR, and authorizes provisional import relief (suspension of liquidation and retroactivity of any relief granted by USTR) if critical circumstances exist.

Other provisions require (1) the ITC, in its report to USTR, to estimate the effect of the recommended relief on consumers and on domestic competition, (2) the USTR to consider, among other factors, the impact of import relief on U.S. agricultural exports in determining whether, and to what extent, to provide import relief, (3) the ITC to report annually, beginning the second year of import relief, on the efforts made by the domestic industry to adjust to import competition, and (4) that revenues collected from duties of auctioning of quotas to be deposited in an Adjustment Assistance Trust Fund, to be used for the trade adjustment assistance program.

Adjustment Assistance Trust Fund

Sec. 142 establishes an Adjustment Assistance Trust Fund, for revenues generated by import relief granted under sec. 201, and by auctioning of import licenses (as authorized under current law). Such revenues will be earmarked for use in the trade adjustment assistance program.

Expedited consideration of petitions for adjustment assistance

Sec. 143 provides that an affirmative injury determination by the ITC automatically triggers expedited consideration of petitions for trade adjustment assistance (whether or not USTR ultimately provides import relief) for workers and firms within the injured industry, for a period of 3 years after the ITC injury determination.

Market disruption

Sec. 144 amends sec. 406 of the Trade Act of 1974 in several respects to allow for consideration of dumping and subsidy practices with respect to products from nonmarket economy countries. It replaces the requirement that imports be increasing "rapidly" with the requirement (currently in sec. 201) that imports be increasing (either absolutely or relative to domestic production). It lowers the causation test from "significant cause of material injury" to "important cause of material injury." In determining market disruption, the ITC is required to consider a number of factors, including the volume of imports, the effect of imports on U.S. producers (all factors currently used in determining material injury) as well as evidence of disruptive pricing practices, or other efforts to unfairly manage trade patterns. It requires the ITC to cumulate imports from two or more nonmarket economies subject to investigation where appropriate. Finally, it authorizes a variable tariff remedy, based on a comparison of average domestic producer prices and average import prices.

Chapter 2—Amendments to the Countervailing and Antidumping Duty Laws

Reference

All references in this chapter unless otherwise specified, are to the Tariff Act of 1930.

Processed agricultural products

Sec. 152 provides special factors for the ITC to consider in cases involving imports of processed agricultural products. In defining the domestic industry, ITC would consider whether the processed agricultural product is produced from a raw agricultural product through a single continuous line of production, and whether there is a substantial coincidence of economic interest between the raw product producers and the processed product producers. If the investigation relates to imports of both a raw product and a processed product, then ITC shall consider the likely diversionary effect of duties imposed on one product but not the other.

Definition of domestic subsidy

Sec. 153 clarifies the list of actionable domestic subsidies to cover the provision of capital, loans, loan guarantees, goods or services at preferential rates or on terms inconsistent with commercial consideration.

Material injury and threat of material injury

Sec. 154 makes several changes in sec. 771(7) to the material injury and threat of material injury standards. First of all it requires the ITC, in determining material injury and (to the extent practicable) threat of material injury, to cumulate the impact of imports from two or more countries, if such imports were subject to either countervailing duty or antidumping investigations within the past 12 months.

Further, it provides additional factors for the ITC to consider in determining whether there is a threat of material injury by reason of dumped or subsidized imports: (a) foreign export targeting, (b) diversion of exports to the U.S. market, and (c) repeated dumping in world markets, as evidenced by antidumping findings in other GATT countries. Finally, it clarifies the material injury standard as it applies to fungible goods so that price leadership, price declines in other markets, the fact that producers also import or the fact that producers are profitable cannot be the sole basis for a negative determination.

Resource input subsidies

Sec. 155 amends the definition of subsidy in sec. 771(5) of the Tariff Act of 1930 by explicitly including "resource input subsidies" among the list of government programs subject to countervailing duties. The bill would clearly establish that a subsidy exists when a government, acting through a controlled or regulated entity, sells an input product or sells or grants the right to remove or extract an input product to domestic industries at a price that is below market value for such input or removal right. The subsidy would only exist if the resource component constitutes a significant portion of the total production costs of the final manufactured product and, for input products, if the controlled domestic price of such input product is not freely available to U.S. producers for export to the United States. The provision would authorize a countervailing duty against the final manufactured product, but only if imports of such product cause or threaten to cause material injury to U.S. producers of the like product.

The subsidy would be measured by the difference between the domestic price for such resource input product or removal right and the fair market value of such product or removal right and the fair market value would be the price that, in the absence of government regulation or control, a willing buyer would pay a willing seller for that product from that country in an arms-length transaction. To assist the administering authority in calculating the fair market value of input products and removal rights, the legislation provides nonexhaustive lists of factors to be taken into account. Finally, in calculating the domestic price and fair market value of an input product, costs incidental to transportation and handling are excluded.

Diversionary dumping

Sec. 156 adds a diversionary dumping provision to the antidumping law, which requires the Department of Commerce, if it determines that diversionary dumping is occurring, to take into account, in determining the foreign market value of the merchandise under investigation, an amount equal to the benefit bestowed on the foreign merchandise from such diversionary dumping. The provision covers any foreign material or component that is dumped into a third country market and then incorporated into a product which is imported into the United States. For diversionary dumping to occur, the material or component must have been the subject of a previous antidumping investigation and either be currently subject to an antidumping duty order or be subject to a termination or suspension agreement. As under present law, this provision would require a finding that the merchandise being imported into the United States—which contains the dumped components—is causing or threatening material injury to a domestic industry.

Downstream monitoring

Sec. 157 provides new procedures to monitor the diversionary impact of significant antidumping and countervailing duties on component products on imports of downstream products. Commerce would determine which downstream products are appropriate to be monitored, and ITC would monitor levels of trade in these products and provide quarterly reports.

Private remedy for injury resulting from dumping

Sec. 158 provides injured parties with the right to bring suit in the Court of International Trade for damages for the economic loss sustained by reason of the importation and sale at less than fair value of merchandise which has been the subject of a final dumping order.

Miscellaneous amendments

Sec. 159 contains several miscellaneous amendments to Title VII relates to antidumping and countervailing duties. Included are provisions which (1) prohibit any U.S. Government purchases of dumped or subsidized merchandise from being exempt from antidumping or countervailing duties; (2) amend procedures for disclosure of confidential information under administrative protective order; (3) prohibit antidumping and countervailing duties paid on imported merchandise from being eligible for refund under drawback provisions; and (4) require submissions from parties involved in an antidumping or countervailing duty proceeding to be certified as to their accuracy.

Chapter 3—Intellectual Property Rights

Congressional findings and purposes

Sec. 161 sets forth a number of findings and purposes with respect to intellectual property rights.

Protection under the Tariff Act of 1930

Sec. 162 makes a number of changes to improve the effectiveness of intellectual property protection under sec. 337. Most importantly it eliminates the injury requirement in intellectual property rights cases (the domestic industry requirement is retained with an expanded definition). It also shortens the time period for issuance of temporary exclusion orders to 90 days after initiation (an extension of 60 days is permitted for more complicated cases) and clarifies that cease and desist orders may be issued "in addition to or in lieu" of exclusion orders and increases the penalty for violations of such orders to "$100,000 or the domestic value of the articles."

It also provides for the Commission to use default procedures against persons who have been served with notice of proceedings and fail to appear to answer a complaint in cases where the petitioner seeks relief solely affecting that person.

In cases where a party, who has previously found to have been in violation, petitions the Commission, the burden of proof that he is no longer in violation is on the petitioner and relief may be granted only on the basis of new evidence or on other grounds permissible under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Other changes include providing procedures for treating confidential information submitted in sec. 337 cases; explicitly authorizing the Commission to issue consent orders as the basis of settlement agreements and allowing the Commission to prescribe sanctions for abuse of discovery and abuse of process in sec. 337 cases.

Foreign market access regarding intellectual property

Sec. 163 creates a mechanism to provide fair and equitable access to foreign markets for products protected by U.S. intellectual property rights whereby the USTR is required to (1) identify "priority foreign countries" that deny fair and equitable market access to such products; (2) negotiate improved market access with such countries and, if unsuccessful within 2 years; (3) take such action as he deems appropriate.

Negotiating objectives with respect to intellectual property rights

Sec. 164 sets forth principal negotiating objectives for trade agreements to improve foreign protection and enforcement of intellectual property rights.

SUBTITLE C—TRADE NEGOTIATING OBJECTIVES AND AUTHORITY

Reference to Trade Act of 1974

Sec. 171 provides that unless otherwise specified, all references are to the Trade Act of 1974.

Overall and principal trade negotiating objectives of the United States

Sec. 172 sets forth both overall and specific U.S. objectives for trade negotiations. It establishes three overall objectives—fair and open trade, reciprocity, and GATT reform. It also establishes a number of specific negotiating objectives relates to matters such as—

(a) dispute settlements;

(b) subsidy rules, including agriculture, resources, upstream inputs, third country export displacement, persistent use of subsidies;

(c) internationally recognized worker rights;

(d) dumping rules and procedures, including dumped inputs, expedited procedures, third country market dumping, repetitive dumping;

(e) LDC graduation;

(f) services;

(g) investment;

(h) agriculture;

(i) MTN code expansion and improvements;

(j) import safeguards;

(k) countertrade/and offset requirements;

(l) specific barriers; and

(m) faster implementation and prompter balance of payment action by countries with excessive current account surpluses; and greater trade-monetary policy and institutional coordination.

The section directs that such objectives are to be achieved through multilateral agreements when feasible, but bilateral or other agreements should be negotiated where more effective or appropriate or if multilateral agreements are not feasible.

Extension of trade agreement authority

Sec. 173 extends existing nontariff negotiating authority under sec. 102, subject to "fast-track" congressional approval and implementation and extends the President's proclamation authority for tariff agreements under sec. 101. The President may not proclaim duty reductions exceeding 60 percent unless the duty is 5 percent or below or duty increases exceeding 20 percent ad valorem or 50 percent above column 2 rates. Prenegotiation hearing and advisory procedures and staging requirements apply. Any duty modifications on import-sensitive articles ineligible for GSP must be submitted to Congress for approval under the "fast-track" procedure. t 1

Nontariff and tariff authorities are extended for 1 year (until Jan. 3, 1989). However, if the USTR submits a report to the Committees on Ways and Means and Finance at least 60 days prior to expiration (i.e., by Nov. 3, 1988) certifying that sufficient progress has been made to justify continuation which is likely to achieve the negotiating objectives, the authorities are automatically extended for 2 more years, until Jan. 3, 1991.

Agreements regarding nontariff barriers to, and other distortions of trade

Sec. 174 makes several changes in sec. 102. It links the availability of the "fast-track" procedure for implementing nontariff barrier agreements to Presidential action to request an international monetary conference. It requires a Presidential determination that an agreement achieves the overall and specific negotiating objectives set forth in the bill and a statement explaining what objectives it does or does not achieve. It further requires consultations with Congress and private sector reports on the achievement of objectives.

The section requires the President to recommend application of agreement benefits solely to signatory countries assuming obligations (i.e., conditional MFN) if appropriate and consistent with the agreement.

The section also requires the Commissioner of Customs to promulgate rules and regulations for any bilateral trade agreements to prevent transshipments of products subject to quantitative import restrictions.

Compensation authority

Sec. 175 adds compensation authority, if required by international obligations, for sec. 301 actions, import restrictions imposed by legislation, or tariff reclassification.

Tariff agreements with Canada

Sec. 176 grants the President 5-year authority to enter into and to proclaim tariff agreements with Canada reducing or eliminating duties on a specific list of tariff items.

Time for submission of certain reports

Sec. 177 amends sec. 135(e) of the Trade Act to require that reports from the advisory committees must address the extent to which the negotiating objectives have been achieved and to require submission of such reports on the date of submission of the draft implementing bill.

Negotiating objectives regarding high technology access

Sec. 178 amends sec. 104A of the Trade Act to provide specific negotiating objectives to the President concerning access for high-technology products.

SUBTITLE D—FUNCTIONS OF THE UNITED STATES TRADE REPRESENTATIVE

Trade policy functions

Sec. 181 amends sec. 141 of the Trade Act to strengthen the role of the U.S. Trade Representative. It specifies that the USTR has primary responsibility for developing and coordinating implementation of international trade policy, international trade negotiations, and trade policy guidance, and is principal trade spokesman; USTR must consult with and be advised by the interagency trade organization. It also specifies the agency membership of the statutory interagency trade organization chaired by USTR to assist the President and to advise the USTR.

Fair Trade Advocates Branch

Sec. 182 establishes a Fair Trade Advocates Branch in the USTR to assist small business and any industry which would suffer reprisals or other serious adverse economic impact by pursuing its own case under sec. 337 or the countervailing duty or antidumping laws. USTR would assist in preparing cases, act as an advocate in proceedings, and pursue appeals.

Trade policy agenda

Sec. 183 requires USTR to submit an annual statement to the Committees on Ways and Means and Finance setting forth trade policy objectives and priorities, and actions and legislation to achieve them. USTR is required to consult with the Committees on objectives and their status.

SUBTITLE E—MISCELLANEOUS TRADE LAW PROVISIONS

Imports affecting national security

Sec. 191 imposes a 3-month time limit for national security investigations by the Secretary of Commerce, with up to a 3-month extension possible in extraordinarily complicated cases. It imposes a 30-day time limit, applicable to pending as well as prospective cases, for the President to decide whether to restrict imports that threaten the national security; he must proclaim action within 15 days.

TITLE III—IMPLEMENTATION OF NAIROBI PROTOCOL

Title III contains a provision, H.R. 2885, to implement the Nairobi Protocol to the Florence Agreement on the Importation of Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Materials, and for other purposes.

H.R. 4800 (Mr. Wright with cosponsors); passed House May 22, 1986. (See also H.R. 4750.)

H.R. 4800, the "Trade and International Economic Policy Reform Act of 1986," is an omnibus trade bill which consolidates legislation considered by six different committees in the House of Representatives.

Title I. Trade Law Amendments (Committee on Ways and Means);

Title II. International Trade in Telecommunications Products and Services (Committees on Ways and Means and Energy and Commerce);

Title III. Export Enhancement (Committee on Foreign Affairs);

Title IV. Banking Committee Provisions (Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs);

Title V. Education and Training for American Competitiveness (Committee on Education and Labor);

Title VI. Agricultural Trade (Committee on Agriculture);

Title VII. Foreign Corrupt Practices, Adjustment Plan Review, and Textile Import Restrictions (Committees on Energy and Commerce, Foreign Affairs, and Ways and Means); Title VIII. Tariff and Customs Provisions (Committee on Ways and Means).

Titles I, II, and VIII incorporated the provisions of H.R. 4750, as reported by the Committee on Ways and Means on May 6, 1986. (See summary description of H.R. 4750.)

H.R. 4800 passed the House on May 22, 1986. Technical corrections in the engrossment of H.R. 4800 were made by H.Res. 460, adopted by the House on May 22, 1986.

As of adjournment of the 99th Congress, H.R. 4800 was pending in the Senate Finance Committee.

H.R. 4868 (Mr. Gray of Pennsylvania with cosponsors); Public Law 99–440; app. Oct. 2, 1986.

H.R. 4868, the "Anti-Apartheid Act of 1986," was jointly referred to the Committees on Foreign Affairs, Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs, Ways and Means, and Public Works and Transportation. The purpose of the bill is to apply economic sanctions on the Government of South Africa as positive incentives for political negotiations leading to the peaceful dismantlment of apartheid.

As amended and reported by the Committee on Foreign Affairs on June 13, 1986, H.R. 4868 included a prohibition on any new investment or new loans or technology for new energy sources, a ban on computer exports and disinvestment from the computer industry after 1 year, and a prohibition on landing rights of South African aircraft. The bill as amended also included bans on U.S. importation of coal, uranium ore and oxide, and steel from South Africa and prohibited U.S. exploration, extraction, processing, or importation of natural resources in Namibia.

On June 16, 1986, the Committee on Ways and Means reported H.R. 4868 to the House with an amendment. The amendment defined and incorporated the same prohibitions on imports of coal, uranium ore and oxide, and steel from South Africa and imports of natural resources from Namibia as amendments to the headnotes of the Tariff Schedules of the United States (TSUS), to be effective 15 days after enactment of the Act.

The House passed H.R. 4868 on June 18, 1986, amended in the form of a substitute, which included a prohibition on U.S. imports of all articles from South Africa except strategic minerals.

The bill passed the Senate amended on August 15. The Senate amendment included a prohibition on U.S. imports from South Africa of agricultural commodities and food, iron and steel, military articles, and articles exported by parastatal organizations upon date of enactment; uranium ore and oxide, coal, and textiles 90 days after date of enactment; and transferred the sugar import quota for South Africa to the Philippines. Other provisions relating to import sanctions included authority for the President to limit imports of third countries which take commercial advantage of any U.S. sanction; a Presidential report to the Congress within 90 days after date of enactment on U.S. dependency on imports of strategic and critical materials from South Africa and a program to reduce any such dependency; a ban on importation of gold coins from South Africa and the USSR; and a requirement that the President recommend additional measures annually if significant progress has not been made. The Senate amendment also terminated immediately the bilateral tax convention and protocol of Dec. 13, 1946.

The House agreed to the Senate amendment on Sept. 12, 1986. A veto message was received from the President on September 26. On September 29, the House overrode the veto; the Senate overrode the veto on October 2, whereupon H.R. 4868, as amended, became Public Law 99–440.

On Oct. 17, 1986, the House and Senate passed H.J. Res. 756, to make technical corrections in the Act.

H.R. 5050 (Mr. Jones with cosponsors); passed House July 22, 1986.

H.R. 5050, the Social Security Administrative and Investment Reform Act, was reported to the House on July 16, 1986, and passed the House on July 22, 1986. A summary of H.R. 5050 as passed the House follows:

TITLE I. ESTABLISHMENT OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Title I of H.R. 5050 would establish the Social Security Administration as an independent agency, governed by a three-member bipartisan Social Security Board. Board members would serve staggered 6-year terms, and would be responsible for setting broad administrative, regulatory, and legislative policy. Board members would be nominated by the President, and approved by the Senate, with not more than two members of the same political party. The Board would appoint a Commissioner of Social Security to a 5-year term to act as day-to-day administrator for the agency. Title I also provides the new agency with demonstration authority to independently manage certain personnel, computer, and capital resources.

TITLE II. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS AND RULES OF CONSTRUCTION

Title II conforms the Social Security Act to this legislation, and specifies that Titles I and II would generally take effect 1 year after enactment.

TITLE III. PROHIBIT THE DISINVESTMENT OF THE OASDI TRUST FUNDS

Title III would generally limit the flexibility of the Secretary of the Treasury in using the OASDI trust funds to circumvent the debt ceiling, and would assure that long term trust fund assets are only used to finance benefit payments in times of internal financing shortfalls. These provisions would take effect Aug. 15, 1986.

Specifically, the legislation would:

State that invested assets may only be redeemed to make payments authorized by the Act. Assets may not be redeemed if the normalized tax transfer (NTT) has been delayed due to debt ceiling constraints. Thus, if the NTT could not be conducted, benefits could either not be paid, or would have to be financed out of available cash, if any existed. Disinvestment could not be used as a means of generating new borrowing authority, and social security could not be used to circumvent the debt limit.

Specify that, in the event that the NTT has not been fully invested due to the debt ceiling, new Treasury obligations must be issued first to the trust funds to make up the NTT shortfall, prior to any other new issuance, including rolling over maturing securities.

State that although the Managing Trustee is not personally liable as a fiduciary of the trust funds, he should faithfully execute the duties imposed upon him by the Social Security Act.

Provide the Social Security Board created by Title I with authority to establish in regulations the investment policy of the trust funds.

Require the Managing Trustee to report on a monthly basis to the OASDI Board of Trustees on the operation and status of the trust funds; to meet on a semi-annual basis; and to report to the Congress not less than 15 days prior to the date on which the Treasury expects the debt ceiling constraints will preclude the full investment of the NTT.

Eliminate the normalized tax transfer mechanism, effective June 30, 1990.

TITLE IV. ADDITIONAL MATTERS

Title IV contains three miscellaneous provisions: (1) the suspension of benefits to deported Nazi war criminals; (2) the provision of interim benefits to disability claimants who have received a favorable decision by an administrative law judge, but whose claims have been delayed by more than 90 days by the Appeals Council; and (3) the termination of the government representative project.

As of adjournment of the 99th Congress, H.R. 5050 was pending on the Senate Calendar.

H.R. 5300 (Mr. Gray); Public Law 99–509; app. Oct. 21, 1986.

H.R. 5300, the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986, passed the House on Sept. 24, 1986, and the Senate passed it amended, on Sept. 25, 1986. Both the House and Senate agreed to a conference on Sept. 25, 1986. The conference report was filed in the House and was passed by both the House and Senate on Oct. 17, 1986.

The President signed H.R. 5300 into law on Oct. 21, 1986, as Public Law 99–509. A summary of the act follows:

MEDICARE PROVISIONS, INCOME SECURITY AND REVENUE PROVISIONS

I. MEDICARE AND ACCESS TO HEALTH CARE PROVISIONS

1. Inpatient Hospital Deductible

Limits the inpatient part A hospital deductible to $520 for calendar year 1987. For each succeeding calendar year the deductible would change by the same percentage change that applies to the medicare hospital prospective payment rates (adjusted for real case mix).

2. Rate of Increase

Increases the fiscal year 1987 payment rates for PPS and PPS-exemp hospitals by 1.15 percent and increases the fiscal year 1988 payment rate by the market basket minus 2 percent. The Secretary would be required t recalibrate the DRG relative weights annually. The Secretary must provide a report with recommendations on the fiscal year 1988 update factor for PPS and PPS-exempt hospitals by Apr. 1, 1987, and each March 1 thereafter.

Effective Oct. 1, 1986, a separate urban and separate rural set-aside factor for outliers would be established.

Effective Oct. 1, 1987, the methodology for computing the urban and rural averages would be revised to reflect the operating cost per discharge for the average patient as opposed to the average hospital.

Hospitals designated as regional referral centers as of the date of enactment would be permitted to continue their designation for 3 additional years. Criteria for eligibility for regional referral center status would be established by law.

3. Payments for Capital-Related Costs

Payment amounts for capital-related payments for PPS hospitals would be reduced by 3.5 percent for portions of cost reporting periods in fiscal year 1987, 7 percent for fiscal year 1988, and 10 percent for fiscal year 1989. Sole community hospitals would be exempt from payment reductions, and regulations, if provided, for a period of 3 years. The act clarifies that the Secretary may incorporate capital, on a "budget neutral" basis, into the prospective payment system effective Oct. 1, 1987.

4. Coverage of Hospitals in Puerto Rico in the PPS

Hospitals located in Puerto Rico will be included in PPS, effective with discharges occurring on or after Oct. 1, 1987. Payment amounts would be based on 75 percent of Puerto Rico adjusted standardized amount and 25 percent of the national adjusted standardized amount. Requires the Secretary to calculate an average standardized amount and 25 percent of the national adjusted standardized amount for urban and rural hospitals. The Secretary would be required to restandardize the national PPS rates to take into account Puerto Rico's inclusion. With some adjustments applied, payments for indirect medical education costs, outliers, and disproportionate share payments will be made to a similar extent that they apply to other PPS hospitals.

5. Improving Quality of Care With Respect to Part A Services

The Secretary would be required to submit, no later than 2 years after enactment, a legislative proposal to improve the classification and payment system under PPS to better account for severity of illness and case complexity.

Hospitals would be required to provide, upon admission, a notice of hospital discharge rights. Would require hospitals, as a condition of medicare participation, to have a discharge planning program. Requires the Secretary to conduct a study of standards of quality used for the conditions of medicare participation for hospitals. The Secretary would be required to conduct a study to determine if a payment should be made for administratively necessary days.

Favorable presumption of waiver of liability rules would be extended for hospices through Nov. 1, 1988. The favorable presumption of waiver of liability will be extended to cover homebound and intermittent care denials for home health services.

Requires the Secretary to develop a uniform needs assessment instrument that evaluates functional capacity to be used in evaluating the need for post-hospital care services.

Extends the requirement for PPS annual reports through 1989. Would require the Secretary to include information on quality of post-hospital care in the annual reports.

The Secretary will be required to conduct a demonstration program concerning prior authorization for medicare skilled nursing home health services.

6. Technical Amendments and Miscellaneous Provisions Relating to Part A

a. Temporary Waiver of Inpatient Limitations for the Connecticut Hospice, Inc.—Connecticut Hospice, Inc. would receive a 2 year waiver of the inpatient day requirement provided that the proportion of the inpatient days does not exceed 50 percent.

b. Massachusetts Medicare Repayment—Prohibits the Secretary from recouping payments to Massachusetts hospitals on or after the date of enactment and before Jan. 1, 1988.

7. Payments to Large Rural Hospitals Serving a Disproportionate Share of Low-Income Patients

Allows the Secretary, effective with discharges occurring on or after Oct. 1, 1986, to establish a separate threshold percentage of low-income patients required for rural hospitals with 500 or more beds to qualify for disproportionate share payments.

Payment to disproportionate share hospitals would be continued for 1 additional year in a budget neutral fashion.

8. Periodic Interim Payments and Prompt Payment of Claims

Periodic Interim Payments (PIP) would be eliminated for all PPS hospitals with exceptions. Hospitals with a disproportionate share payment add-on of 5.1 percent or more and rural hospitals with less than 100 beds that qualify for, and receive PIP payments on June 30, 1987 (under regulations in effect on Oct. 1, 1986), would be eligible to continue to receive PIP. PIP would also be retained for PPS-exempt hospitals, hospitals participating in State reimbursement systems, and certain cost-based providers (i.e., skilled nursing facilities and home health agencies). PIP would be made available to hospice providers.

Ninety-five percent of "clean" claims submitted for part A services would be required to be paid within 30 calendar days in fiscal year 1987, 26 days in fiscal year 1988, 25 days in fiscal year 1989, and 24 days in fiscal year 1990 and in subsequent years. PIP would not be eliminated for hospitals receiving such payments until the intermediary has met the prompt payment standard for 3 consecutive months. PIP would be reinstated for providers that meet the standards that were in place as of Oct. 1, 1986, if the intermediary failed to meet prompt payment standards for 3 consecutive months.

Ninety-five percent of "clean" claims submitted for part B services would be required to be paid within 30 calendar days in fiscal year 1987, 26 days in fiscal year 1988, 25 days in fiscal year 1989, and 24 days in fiscal year 1990 and in subsequent years. "Clean" claims submitted by participating physicians would be required to be paid within 19 days in Fiscal year 1988, 18 days in fiscal year 1989, and 17 days in fiscal year 1990 and in subsequent years.

9. Health Maintenance Organization Amendments

Eliminates the "two for one rule" for current nonrisk HMO medicare enrollees for months beginning April, 1987.

Requires HMOs and CMPs to provide enrollees with an explanation of enrollees' rights.

Restricts new waivers of 50 percent medicare and medicaid enrollment requirements to HMOs in service areas where the population of medicare and medicaid beneficiaries is greater than 50 percent and to HMOs that are publicly owned and operated. Would provide new sanctions for noncompliance with the 50 percent medicare and medicaid enrollment requirement, and for noncompliance with enrollment goals for currently waivered HMOs.

Requires that HMOs pay claims submitted by physicians, suppliers and providers not under contract with the organization, within 30 calendar days of receipt in fiscal year 1987, within 26 days in fiscal year 1988, within 25 days in fiscal year 1989, and within 24 days in fiscal year 1990 and in subsequent years.

Requires that HMOs and CMPs supply, on request of the Secretary, information as to the ownership of subcontractors, and of significant business transactions between organizations and wholely owned subcontractors.

Provides that HMOs that fail substantially to provide medically necessary items and services would be subject to a penalty not to exceed $10,000 for each failure.

Requires the Secretary to provide for a study of methods by which the AAPCC and the ACR could be refined, and to submit legislative recommendations no later than Jan. 1, 1988.

Allows medicare beneficiaries to disenroll from an HMO or CMP at a local Social Security Office.

Provides that amounts withheld in a benefit stabilization fund during the 1986 contract year be withdrawn by the organization to the extent that payments to the organization had been reduced under the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985.

10. Provisions Relating to Improvement of Quality of Care

Allows provider representation of beneficiaries on appeals, but would prohibit provider representation with respect to certain issues unless the provider has waived any rights for payment from the beneficiary for services involved in the appeal. Would prohibit provider representing the beneficiary from imposing any financial liability on the beneficiary in connection with representation.

Provides beneficiaries with the right to appeal payment denials for home health services that do not meet the "intermittent or home bound" criteria.

Prohibits a hospital from making incentive payments to a physician as an inducement to reduce services to beneficiaries, effective with payments occurring 6 months after enactment. Prohibits HMOs and CMPs from making such payments to a physician effective Apr. 1, 1989. Requires the Secretary to study and report on incentive plans offered to physicians by HMOs and CMPs no later than Jan. 1, 1988.

Requires the Secretary to arrange for a study to serve as the basis for establishing a strategy for reviewing and assuring quality of care under medicare.

11. Technical Amendments and Miscellaneous Provisions Relating to Parts A and B

a. Treatment of Group Purchasing Organizations—Permits the payment of administrative fees to group purchasing organizations by a vendor of the purchasing agent if the agent has an appropriate written contract and full disclosure of the payment is made to each provider.

b. Competitive Contracting Authority—Extends the authority of the Secretary to enter into competitively bid contracts with intermediaries and carriers to replace poor performing contractors for an additional 3 years and clarifies language to include fixed-price contracts.

c. Moratorium on HCFA Regulations—The Secretary would be prohibited from issuing any regulations or notices regarding hospitals or physicians before Sept. 1, 1987, which would achieve medicare savings of more than $50 million in fiscal year 1988.

The Secretary would be prohibited from issuing final regulations that change the methodology for computing the amount of payment for capital-related costs for inpatient hospital services under part A before Sept. 1, 1987.

The Act would also require the Secretary to allow 60 days for public comment on proposed regulations and notices, except for limited circumstances when such comment periods are not possible due to statutorily imposed deadlines for Secretarial action.

12. Direct Costs of Graduate Medical Education

Provides that time spent in a non-hospital outpatient setting would be counted for medicare reimbursement purposes if the hospital incurs all or substantially all of the costs of residency training in the ambulatory setting.

13. Cost Limits for Home Health Agencies

Requires that limits for home health agency costs be applied on an aggregate basis for all home health services, rather than on a discipline-specific basis, effective with cost-reporting periods beginning on or after July 1, 1986.

14. Establishment of Research Program

Prohibits individuals who have been convicted of a Federal crime from relitigating the essential elements of the criminal offense in a subsequent civil proceeding to bar the individual from the medicare or medicaid program, or to impose civil monetary penalties. The official conducting such a hearing would have the authority to sanction a person for failing to comply with an order or procedure, failing to defend an action, or other interfering misconduct.

16. Hospital Protocols for Organ Procurement and Standards for Organ Procurement Agencies

Requires, effective July 1, 1987, that no hospital may participate in medicare or medicaid unless the hospital has established protocols for encouraging organ and tissue donation. Would prohibit payment, effective Jan. 1, 1988, under medicare and medicaid with respect to costs of procuring organs, by an organ procurement organization that does not meet the national organ transplant network standards.

17. Medicare as Secondary Payer, Coverage Requirements of Certain Other Payers

Medicare would be the secondary payer for disabled beneficiaries (except ESRD beneficiaries) who elect to be covered by employer-based health insurance as a current employee (or family member of such employee) of an employer with 100 or more employees. This provision would expire on Oct. 1, 1991. Would require the Secretary to study the impact of this provision.

18. Coverage of Services of Nurse Anesthetists

Extends current payment provisions for the services of hospital-employed CRNAs for cost reporting periods beginning before Oct. 1, 1988.

Authorizes direct reimbursement for anesthesia services and related care furnished by a registered nurse anesthetist for which he/she is legally authorized to perform in the State. These payments would be made equal to the lower of 80 percent of actual charges or 80 percent of a fee schedule established by the Secretary. This provision is to be budget neutral. CRNAs would be required to accept assignment for all medicare services. The fee schedule would apply to services provided after Oct. 1, 1988. Special limits on the actual charges of nonparticipating physicians for CRNA services and medical direction would apply.

19. Payments for Physicians' Services

Provides that all physicians would receive a 3.2 percent increase in their prevailing charges effective Jan. 1, 1987. In 1988 and in future years, prevailing charges would be increased by the percentage increase in the MEI. The Secretary would be prohibited from revising the cumulative MEI on a retrospective basis. The current differential in the prevailing charges of participating and nonparticipating physicians would be made permanent.

Requires the Secretary to conduct a study of the MEI to ensure that the index reflects economic changes in an appropriate and equitable manner. The Secretary would be precluded from changing the methodology used to determine the MEI until completion of the study.

Includes a limitation on the actual charges of non-participating physicians, such that over a 4-year period, the actual charges of nonparticipating physicians would be capped by an amount equal to the maximum allowable actual charge (MAAC), calculated for each physician in relation to the prevailing charge. The limitation on actual charges would expire on Dec. 31, 1990, or 1 year after the submission by the Secretary to the Congress of the required report on relative value scales, whichever occurs earlier.

20. Inherent Reasonableness; Payments for Cataract Surgery

Authorizes the Secretary, under the inherent reasonableness authority, to establish payment levels for a customary, or prevailing charge for the service. Criteria and procedures for adjusting payments are specified. The Secretary would be required to review payments under this section for 10 of the most costly procedures covered under part B. If an adjustment is made on the basis of the inherent reasonableness authority that results in a payment reduction, a special limit would be applied to the actual charges of nonparticipating charges for that service.

Specifies that the prevailing charges for participating and nonparticipating physicians performing cataract surgery would be cut by 10 percent, effective Jan. 1, 1987. An additional 2 percent reduction would be made effective Jan. 1, 1988. In no case would the reduced allowable charge be lower than 75 percent of the national average prevailing charge. The Secretary would be required to publish, in final form, a proposed notice that would reduce payment for cataract surgery anesthesia.

Nonparticipating physicians performing cataract surgery services and cataract surgery anesthesia would be required to reduce their actual charges for these services effective Jan. 1, 1987.

21. End Stage Renal Disease Program

The Secretary is required to reduce the composite rate payments fo dialysis services by $1 for services furnished on or after Oct. 1, 1986. Th Secretary would be prohibited from revising the composite rates for years. An application for a payment rate exception for sole facilitie located in isolated rural areas would be deemed approved unless th Secretary had disapproved the application within 60 working days.

Provides that immunosuppressive drugs furnished to a transplant patien within 1 year of a transplant would be covered under part B of medicare.

The Secretary is required to establish no fewer than 17 ESRD networ areas. Funding for the networks will be provided by reducing the pe treatment composite rate to facilities by $0.50 per treatment. The Secre tary is required to designate the network areas not later than May 1, 1987 and establish them by July 1, 1987. New networks would be establishe using competitive bidding procedures under specified guidelines. The ex isting network organizations would remain in operation until 30 days afte the new network organizations begin operations. A national end stage renal disease registry is to be established.

The Secretary is required to establish standards and conditions of participation for safe and effective dialyzer reuse and reprocessing by medicare certified ESRD facilities to be effective Oct. 1, 1987.

22. Technical Amendments and Miscellaneous Provisions Relating to Part B

a. Physician Payment Review Commission—Expands the membership of the Physician Payment Review Commission by 2 members. At least one of the members would represent a rural area.

b. Effective Date on Voluntary Disenrollment from Medicare—Modifies the effective date of disenrollment from medicare when a beneficiary files a notice to disenroll to the close of the calendar quarter in which the notice was filed.

c. Study of Prospective Payment of Radiology, Anesthesia and Patholog Services to Hospitals Inpatient Services—Requires the Secretary to study and report by July 1, 1987, concerning the implementation of a part B prospective payment system for radiology, anesthesia and pathology services furnished to hospital inpatients.

23. Vision Care

Allows payment under medicare for vision care services performed by optometrists, if the services are among those already covered by medicare when furnished by a physician, and if the optometrist is authorized by State law to provide the services, effective for services furnished on or after Apr. 1, 1987.

24. Occupational Therapy Service

Extends part B coverage of occupational therapy services to services provided in a skilled nursing facility (when part A coverage has been exhausted) in a clinic, rehabilitation agency, or public health agency, or by others in arrangements with such entities.

Extends part B coverage to occupational therapy services furnished by an independently practicing therapist in a therapist's office or in a beneficiary's home. Reimbursement would be provided on the basis of 80 percent of reasonable charges, with no more than $500 in incurred expenses eligible for coverage in a calendar year.

These provisions are effective for occupational therapy services furnished on or after July 1, 1987.

25. Coverage of Services of a Physician Assistant

Authorizes coverage of the services of physicians' assistants furnished under the supervision of a physician in a hospital, skilled nursing facility (SNF), intermediate care facility (ICF), or as an assistant at surgery. Physician assistant services would be reimbursed subject to a prevailing charge screen equal to 85 percent of the prevailing charge for comparable physician services performed by nonspecialists when such services are performed in a skilled nursing facility or intermediate care facility. The prevailing charge screen would be equal to 75 percent of the nonspecialist physicians prevailing charge level when such service is performed in a hospital, and 65 percent of the reasonable charge for a physician when acting as an assistant at surgery. Physician assistants would be required to accept assignment on all claims. This provision is effective with services furnished on or after Jan. 1, 1987.

The Secretary is required to report to Congress by Apr. 1, 1988, concerning appropriate adjustments to payments for physician assistant services.

26. Payment for Clinical Diagnostic Laboratory Tests

Eliminates the 2 percent differential between hospital outpatient labs and independent labs (except in the case of qualified clinical labs which operate 24 hours per day), effective Jan. 1, 1987. The Jan. 1, 1988, sunset provision on fee schedules for such laboratory services would be eliminated. The Secretary would be required to report to Congress, not later than Apr. 1, 1988, on the advisability, and feasibility of, and methodology for, establishing a national fee schedule for clinical diagnostic laboratory tests. Implementation of the national fee schedule would be postponed for 2 years, until Jan. 1, 1990.

Authorizes the Secretary to establish a fee to cover, in certain situations, transportation and personnel expenses for trained personnel to travel to the location to collect the sample, effective Jan. 1, 1987.

The moratorium on the competitive bidding demonstration project would be extended until Jan. 1, 1988.

27. Payment for Parenteral and Enteral Nutrition

The Secretary is permitted to apply lowest charge level limitations to parenteral and enteral nutrition supplies. The provision is effective for parenteral nutrients Oct. 1, 1987, and for all other services and supplies on Jan. 1, 1987. The Secretary is prohibited from using "inherent reasonableness" in establishing the lowest charge level.

28. Changing Medicare Appeal Rights

Provides that beneficiaries may obtain an administrative law judge hearing if the amount in controversy is $500 or more and judicial review if the amount in controversy is over $1,000. National coverage determinations could not be overturned solely on the grounds that they were not issued in accordance with the notice and comment procedures in the Administrative Procedure Act, as amended. The court could, however, review coverage determinations to determine whether the result was arrived at in an arbitrary manner.

Regulations and policy instructions issued prior to Oct. 1, 1979, could not be declared invalid. In the case of policies which are invalidated by the court, the Secretary could not be required to reopen and reprocess claims previously resolved, except with respect to the litigants. The Secretary could be required to implement a new policy prospectively.

29. Alzheimer's Disease Demonstration Projects

Requires the Secretary to conduct up to 10 demonstration projects to determine the effectiveness, cost and impact of providing comprehensive services to medicare beneficiaries who have Alzheimer's disease or related disorders. Total expenditures cannot exceed $40 million over 3 years.

30. Ambulatory Surgery

Effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after Oct. 1, 1987, a new payment methodology would apply for facility services provided by hospital outpatient departments (OPDs) in connection with ambulatory surgery procedures. Payment would be based on a blend of the amount that would be paid to a freestanding ambulatory surgery center (ASC) for the same service. During the first cost reporting year the blend would be 75 percent cost and 25 percent ASC rate; during the second cost year and subsequently, the blend would be 50 percent cost and 50 percent ASC rate. A 20 percent coinsurance would apply to services provided by hospital OPDs and ASCs in connection with ambulatory surgery. The Secretary would be required to submit a final report concerning development of a prospective payment methodology for ambulatory surgery services by Apr. 1, 1989.

31. Peer Review Organizations

Procedures for appeal of hospital denials of continued inpatient stay are modified to ensure that a beneficiary who makes an appeal is not liable for continued stay until noon on the day after receiving notice of the PRO's decision. PRO review of early readmission cases would be expanded. The requirement that PROs review services provided by HMOs and CMPs would be delayed from January 1 to Apr. 1, 1987. In up to 25 States containing up to 50 percent of the medicare beneficiaries enrolled in HMOs and CMPs, the Secretary could provide for a State-by-State competition for review of HMO and CMP services. The current PRO in those States could compete for these contracts as could other entities provided that such entities satisfy requirements contained in secs. 1152 and 1153(b) of the Social Security Act. In the remaining 25 States, review must be conducted by the PROs for those States. A consumer representative would be required on each PRO governing board. PROs would be required to review beneficiary complaints concerning quality. PROs would be required to share certain confidential information with State licensure agencies and with national accreditation bodies.

32. Continuation Coverage for Retirees in Cases of Bankruptcies

Beginning on or after July 1, 1986, any retiree and dependents who lose their employer-based health insurance coverage because their employer filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy would be entitled to remain in the employer health insurance plan if the retiree pays up to 102 percent of the applicable premium. The retiree, the widow of the retiree, and the spouse and dependent children of the retiree may remain in the health plan until the death of the retiree. Upon the death of the retiree the surviving spouse and the dependent children may remain in the group health plan for up to 3 years.

II. INCOME SECURITY PROVISIONS

1. Elimination of 3-Percent Trigger for Cost-of-Living Increases

Eliminates the requirement that the increase in the CPI must reach 3 percent before a COLA is provided to social security beneficiaries. The provision guarantees a COLA increase will be provided in the January 1987 social security benefit checks. This provision has the effect of eliminating the trigger for several other automatic adjustments that increase only if a social security COLA is provided (e.g., the FICA wage base, the medicare part B premium, and SSI, railroad retirement, and Veterans' pension COLAs).

2. Targeting the Use of the Income and Eligibility Verification System

Clarifies that the system is to be targeted to those uses which are likely to be most productive by adding that no State shall be required to use information obtained through the system to verify the eligibility of all recipients.

3. Annual Calculation of Federal Percentage of AFDC Expenditures

For fiscal year 1987 only, restores the biennial calculation of the Federal percentage for States that lost funds in the shift to an annual calculation.

4. Retroactive Modification of Child Support Arrearages

Requires that State laws provide that child support payments be reduced to judgment on the date that they are due and that States grant full faith and credit to such judgments. Prohibits the retroactive modification of child support awards. Allows prospective modification only from the date that notice is given to the obligee or obligor, as appropriate, that a petition for modification has been filed.

III. REVENUE PROVISIONS

1. Deposits of Social Security Contributions by State and Local Government Employers

Removes from State governments the intermediary role of collecting social security taxes from local governments, and relieves State governments from liability for verifying and depositing such taxes.

Places State and local government employers under the same schedule for frequency of deposits as applies under present law to private-sector employers (and to deposits of Federal income taxes withheld by State and local government employers). State and local governments are subject to the same interest charge and penalties for late deposits as apply to private-sector employers.

Effective for payments of social security taxes with respect to wages paid after Dec. 31, 1986.

2. Telephone Excise Tax

Requires the Treasury Department (in consultation with Commerce Department and Federal Communications Commission) to study the effects of an exemption from communications excise tax for private telecommunications systems and other exemptions from the telephone excise tax and to report to the Congress by June 30, 1987.

3. Accelerated Collection of Certain Excise Taxes

The excise taxes on (a) domestically produced and bulk imported distilled spirits, (b) bottled imported distilled spirits, (c) beer and wine, and (d) tobacco products are due 14 days after the semimonthly period when the taxable event occurs (14 days after entry into the customs territory of the United States in the case of certain imported products). If the regular payment date falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, payment is due on the last preceding business day.

As under present law, the taxable event generally is removal from a bonded factory, distillery, winery, or brewery in the case of domestically produced taxable products and certain bulk imported products (i.e., distilled spirits). As Stated above, the taxable event for other imported products is entry into the customs territory of the United States. A further exception is provided in the case of an entry pursuant to which taxable products are transferred directly to a customs' bonded warehouse (CBW). (A foreign trade zone is treated as a CBW for this purpose.) In such a case, the taxable event is removal from the first such CBW into which the products are placed upon entry into the United States. Finally, for taxable products brought into the United States from Puerto Rico, tax is due 14 days after the products are brought into the United States.

Effective for products removed in semimonthly periods ending on or after Dec. 31, 1986, and to products entered into the customs territory (including entry into a CBW) of the United States (or otherwise brought into the United States) after Dec. 15, 1986.

Special rules are provided consolidating payments for the semimonthly periods ending on Dec. 15, 1986, and Dec. 31, 1986, in the case of distilled spirits and tobacco products that now receive more than 15 days after removal for payment of tax.

4. Increases in Certain Tax Penalties

a. Penalty for failure to deposit taxes.—The penalty for failure to comply with periodic deposit requirements is increased from 5 percent to 10 percent of the amount of any underdeposit. This provision is effective with respect to penalties assessed after the date of enactment.

b. Penalty for substantial underStatement of tax liability.—The addition to tax for a substantial underStatement of tax liability is increased to 25 percent, effective for returns the due date of which is after the date of enactment.

5. Tax Treatment of Conrail Public Sale

The sale of Conrail's stock will be treated as an asset sale. Conrail will be treated as a new corporation that purchased the assets after the public sale. Thus, the aggregate basis for Conrail's assets will be adjusted to reflect the stock purchase price (plus liabilities and other relevant items). However, accounts receivable and materials and supplies will be treated as cash equivalents. Similarly, no NOL or other carryovers from periods before the public sale will be available for use in postsale periods.

In addition, no amount will be included in the gross income of Conrail by reason of the cancellation of any obligation or perferred stock of Conrail. Also, any post-closing payments for back wages must be capitalized. Finally, certain ESOP provisions are waived.

6. Denial of Tax Benefits With Respect to Activities in Certain Foreign Countries

Denies a foreign tax credit for taxes paid on income attributable to activities of the taxpayer conducted in a foreign country (1) that has been designated by the Secretary of State (pursuant to sec. 6(j) of the Export Administration Act) as a country that repeatedly provides support for acts of international terrorism, (2) with which the United States does not have diplomatic relations, or (3) the government of which the United States does not recognize (with certain exceptions). Income from one of these countries is subject to a separate foreign tax credit limitation, so that taxes from other countries cannot offset the U.S. tax on that income. Provides regulatory authority for look-through rules to trace income (and taxes) from one of these countries through various entities.

Currently taxes U.S. shareholders of a controlled foreign corporatio on the corporation's income attributable to activities conducted in a fo eign country described in the preceding paragraph. Provides regulator authority for look-through rules to trace income from one of these cou tries through various entities.

Effective for activities that occur and taxes imposed on income earne after 1986.

7. Older Americans Pension Benefits

Benefit accruals or continued allocations to an employee's accou under either a defined benefit plan or a defined contribution plan may no be reduced or discounted on account of the attainment of a specified ag Other miscellaneous modifications are included.

8. Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund and Petroleum Tax

Establishes in the U.S. Treasury the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund. Th Oil Spill Fund is financed by a new excise tax of 1.3 cents per barrel o crude oil and imported petroleum products. Only effective if authorizin legislation is enacted by Sept. 1, 1987.

IV. OTHER PROVISIONS

1. Customs User Fees

An ad valorem user fee is applied to all formal entries of merchandis imported for consumption, including warehouse withdrawals for consump tion. These fees would be in addition to the processing fee required unde present law. The provision specifically excludes applicability of such use fees to articles classifiable in Schedule 8 of the Tariff Schedules or to products of the least developed developing countries (LDDC's), of eligi ble countries under the Caribbean Basin Initiative (CBI), or of U.S. insula possessions.

From Dec. 1, 1986, through the end of fiscal year 1987, a user fee o 0.22 percent ad valorem would be applied, based on the appraised custom value of the imported merchandise. Beginning with fiscal year 1988 and continuing through fiscal year 1989, the fee would be 0.17 percent ad valorem. For fiscal year 1988 to 1989, a special formula is provided which would allow reduction of the fee so that the amount of money collecte would continue to closely approximate the amount appropriated for Customs' commercial operations in order to be consistent with the international obligations of the United States. At the end of fiscal year 1989, all customs user fees, including those under present law, would cease to exist.

In the case of small airports and other facilities where the cost of customs services is already borne by the users of such facilities, the Secretary of the Treasury would be authorized to impose a lower user fee than would be applicable otherwise.

The Customs Service would collect these fees through usual entry procedures, employing its existing standard consumption entry form (CF 7501). No new recordkeeping or data collection burdens would be imposed on the public.

The proceeds of these fees would be deposited in a dedicated account within the general fund of the Treasury. Subject to authorization and appropriation, the funds would be available to the Customs Service to cover that agency's cost of commercial services rendered. The provision includes an authorization of appropriations for the U.S. Customs Service for fiscal year 1987 of $1,001,180,000 to serve as a measure of limitations applicable to such fees under existing international trade agreements.

2. Temporary Increase in Public Debt Limit

The amount available for the debt limit through May 15, 1987, is $2,300 billion. The increase of $189 billion would expire on May 15, 1987, and the debt limit will revert to its permanent level of $2,111 billion.

3. Restoration of Lost Interest to Certain Trust Funds

Provides for the restoration to certain Federal trust funds of lost interest and obligations due to any noninvestments, redemptions, or disinvestments that occurred as a result of the failure to extend the debt limit by Sept. 30, 1986. This provision places those trust funds that experienced any disruption in normal investment and redemption procedures due to debt ceiling constraints in the same position they would have been in, had H.J. Res. 668, as passed by the House of Representatives on June 26, 1986, been enacted into law on Sept. 30, 1986.

H.R. 5395 (Mr. Rostenkowski); Public Law 99-384; app. Aug. 21, 1986.

H.R. 5395, to increase the statutory limit on the public debt, as reported to the House on Aug. 13, 1986, would have increased the permanent public debt limit from $2,078.7 billion to $2,152.0 billion. The bill passed the House on Aug. 14, 1986. As passed by the Senate on Aug. 15, 1986, the limit was amended to $2,111.0 billion and an amendment dealing with the budget process was adopted. On that same date, the House agreed to the revised limit but disagreed to the amendment relating to the budget process. The Senate receded from its budget process amendment on the same date.

H.R. 5395 was signed into law by the President on Aug. 21, 1986, as Public Law 99-384.

H.R. 5410 (Mr. Rostenkowski with cosponsors); reported to House Aug. 15, 1986. (See P.L. 99-570 (H.R. 5484).)

H.R. 5410, the International Drug Traffic Enforcement Act, was reported without amendment to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on Aug. 15, 1986. As reported the bill contains three titles: Title I contains amendments to the Tariff Act of 1930, which strengthen Customs' enforcement capability to detect and apprehend smugglers and to interdict narcotics. It increases civil and criminal penalties for violations of Customs drug laws. Title I also extends the Customs Forfeiture Fund, increases the ceiling, and expands the list of expenses which can be paid for out of the fund.

Title II authorizes appropriations for the U.S. Customs Service at a level to maintain current operations and provides an additional authorization dedicated to enhancing the drug interdiction program. Title II also includes miscellaneous provisions to extend the reporting requirement to vessels involved in transshipment on the high seas, to clarify reporting requirements for recreational vessels, to amend requirements and penalties relating to assistance for customs officers, to prohibit possession of controlled substances on U.S. aircraft within 12 miles of the United States, and to set increased penalties for possession of controlled substances.

Title III, the Narcotics Control Trade Act, requires the President to determine whether any country is an uncooperative drug source nation based on certain criteria. This title also requires the President to take meaningful action by denying trade benefits or imposing additional tariffs for any country so determined.

H.R. 5410 in substance was incorporated into H.R. 5484, which became Public Law 99-570.

H.R. 5484 (Mr. Wright with cosponsors); Public Law 99-570; app. Oct. 27, 1986.

H.R. 5484, the Omnibus Drug Act of 1986, passed the House on Sept. 11, 1986. It passed the Senate with amendments on Sept. 30, 1986. On Oct. 8, 1986, the House agreed to the Senate amendments with an amendment (H.R. 5664). The Senate agreed to the House amendment with an amendment on Oct. 14, 1986. On Oct. 17, 1986, the House passed an amendment in the form of H.R. 5729, and on the same day, the Senate agreed to the House amendment.

The provisions in the final version of H.R. 5729, as enacted, are with minor exceptions, substantially identical to those in H.R. 5410, and 5484. One exception is the provision in the act which provided for greater outreach efforts on the part of the AFDC and SSI programs to assure that benefits are made available to eligible homeless persons.

The President signed H.R. 5484 into law on Oct. 27, 1986, as Public Law 99-570.

For a description of the Ways and Means Committee provisions, see the summary of H.R. 5410.

H.R. 5595 (Mr. Rostenkowski); Public Law 99-643; app. Nov. 10, 1986.

H.R. 5595, the SSI Improvements Amendments Act of 1986, was reported to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on Sept. 25, 1986, and passed the House on Sept. 30, 1986. H.R. 5595 passed the Senate on Oct. 8, 1986 with amendments. (Text of S. 2209.) On Oct. 15, 1986, the House agreed to the Senate amendment with amendments. On Oct. 16, 1986 the House agreed to the Senate amendment to the title (the Employment Opportunities for Disabled Americans Act) with a further amendment. On Oct. 18, 1986, the Senate agreed to the House amendments and the President signed the bill into law on Nov. 10, 1986, as Public Law 99-643.

A summary of the act follows:

1. Sec. 1619 of the Supplemental Security Income Program Was Made Permanent.—Sec. 1619 provides for the continuation of eligibility for cash benefits and/or Medicaid for disabled SSI recipients who are able to work in spite of the continuation of their impairments.

2. Repeal of SSI-Trial Work Period and Extended Period of Eligibility Provisions.—The current law's provision for a 9-month trial work period and 15-month extended period of eligibility is repealed effective July 1, 1987.

3. Reinstatement to SSI or Sec. 1619 Status if in a 12-Month "Suspended Eligibility status".—Provides that an individual who becomes ineligible for SSI or for assistance under sec. 1619 can be reinstated without a new determination of disability if such reinstatement is within 12 months of leaving SSI or sec. 1619 status. Effective July 1, 1987.

4. Movement From Sec. 1619 (b) Medicaid Only Status to Cash Benefit Status.—An individual who has been eligible for Medicaid only under sec. 1619(b) will be eligible to move to cash benefit status under SSI or sec. 1619(a) without a new determination of disability. Effective July 1, 1987.

5. Medical Condition Reviews.—A review to determine that an individual continues to have the disabling impairment will be required within 12 months of becoming eligible under sec. 1619. Individuals with higher earnings, i.e., above the SSI earned income disregard breakeven point will be required to have a medical review related to medical improvement when they move to cash benefit status and when reinstated from the suspended eligibility status. Effective July 1, 1987.

6. Required Continuation of Medicaid for Certain SSI Recipients Who Lose SSI Eligibility.—The act will require States to continue Medicaid coverage for those individuals who lose their eligibility for SSI when their income increases because they become newly eligible for social security benefits as an adult disabled child or because of an increase in their benefits as an adult disabled child.

The act requires States who have chosen not to provide Medicaid for all SSI recipients to continue Medicaid coverage for those SSI recipients who were eligible for Medicaid under a State's more restrictive criteria beginning with the time the individual becomes eligible under sec. 1619. Effective July 1, 1987.

7. Payment of Benefits Due Deceased Recipients.—The act provides for payment of benefits on behalf of a deceased SSI recipient to an ineligible spouse of a deceased recipient and to the parent of a disabled or blind child who has died. The old law provided for such payments only in the case of a spouse who was eligible for SSI. Effective May, 1986.

8. Treatment of Certain Couples in Medical Institutions.—Provides that a State would not be required to apply the SSI rule that considers members of a couple sharing a room in a medical institution as 2 eligible SSI individuals instead of a SSI couple if such a rule would disadvantage either member of a couple in determining eligibility under other State programs under the Social Security Act.

H.R. 5679 (Mr. Rostenkowski) Public Law 99-595; app. Oct. 31, 1986.

H.R. 5679, provides for a 5 year extension of the current exclusion from Federal unemployment tax of wages paid to certain alien farmworkers. It was introduced and considered Oct. 9, 1986, and passed the House on Oct. 10, 1986. The Senate Finance Committee was discharged from consideration and the bill passed the Senate on Oct. 18, 1986.

H.R. 5679 was signed into law by the President on Oct. 31, 1986, as Public Law 99-595.

H.R. 5686 (Mr. Rostenkowski with cosponsors); passed House Oct. 14, 1986 (See H.R. 4800 for related action).

H.R. 5686, a bill relating to certain tariff and customs matters passed the House Oct. 14, 1986. As passed by the House, the bill provides for a number of revisions to the Tariff Schedules of the United States (TSUS).

These provisions include continuation of existing duty suspensions, reduction and suspension of duty on items not produced in the United States, reclassifications, and other minor customs and tariff matters.

The majority of these issues were also included in Title VIII of H.R. 4800, which passed the House on May 22, 1986.

Title I—Tariff Provisions

Sec. 101 applies to all other sections of this title. It states that whenever an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or repeal of, a schedule, item, headnote, or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to a schedule, item, headnote, or other provision of the Tariff Schedules of the United States (19 U.S.C. 1202).

SUBTITLE A—PERMANENT CHANGES IN TARIFF TREATMENT

Sec. 111 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 823 relating to the tariff treatment of certain casein.

Sec. 112 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 812 relating to the tariff classification of salted and dried plums.

Sec. 113 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 813 establishing equal and equitable classification and duty rates of certain imported citrus products.

Sec. 114 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 814 making permanent the free rate of customs duty on imported hatters' fur.

Sec. 115 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 815 clarifying the duty treatment of certain types of plywood.

Sec. 116 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 4122 relating to the tariff classification of certain work gloves.

Sec. 117 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 816 amending schedule 3.

Sec. 118 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 818 relating to the tariff classifications of certain silicone resins and materials.

Sec. 119 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 819 to change the tariff treatment with respect to naphtha and motor fuel blending stocks.

Sec. 120 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 4547 relating to the tariff classification of slabs of iron or steel.

Sec. 121 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 820 regarding the classification of television apparatus and parts thereof.

Secs. 122 and 176 contain provisions originally introduced as H.R. 4533 relating to the tariff classification of extracorporeal shock wave lithotripters.

Sec. 123 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 821 providing for rates of duty on imported speedometers used on exercise equipment consistent with those on bicycle speedometers.

Sec. 124 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 822 eliminating the special marking requirements for imported watches and clocks and components thereof.

SUBTITLE B—TEMPORARY CHANGES IN TARIFF TREATMENT

Sec. 131 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 831 continuing the existing suspension of duties on color couplers and coupler intermediates used in the manufacture of photographic sensitized material.

Sec. 132 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 832 suspending the duty on P-sulfobenzoic acid, potassium salt.

Sec. 133 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 833 suspending the duty on 2,2'-oxamido bis-[ethyl 3-(3,5-ditert-butyl-4-hydroxyphenyl)propionate].

Sec. 134 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 834 suspending temporarily the duty on dicyclohexylbenzothiazolesulfenamide.

Sec. 135 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 835 suspending temporarily the duty on 2,4 Dichloro-5-sulfamoyl benzoic acid (also known as lasamid).

Sec. 136 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 836 suspending temporarily the duty on derivatives of N-[4-(2-hydroxy-3-phenoxypropoxy)phenyl]acetamide.

Sec. 137 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 837 providing for the temporary suspension of the duty on mixtures of 1,2-dimethy 1-3,5-diphenylpryazolium methyl sulphate (difenzoquat methyl sulfate).

Sec. 138 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 838 extending duty-free treatment for dicofol after the existing duty reduction fo that chemical expires on Sept. 30, 1985.

Sec. 139 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 839 relatin to the customs treatment of certain wearing apparel produced in th insular possessions of the United States.

Sec. 140 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 840 providing for the temporary suspension of the duty on 3,7-Bis(dimethylamino)-phenazathionium cloride (methylene blue) to be used as a process stabilizer in the manufacture of organic chemicals.

Sec. 141 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 841 suspending the duty on 3,5 dinitro-o-toluamide.

Sec. 142 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 842 suspending the duty on secondary butyl chloride.

Sec. 143 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 843 providing for the temporary suspension of the duty on nonbenzenoid vinyl acetate-vinyl chloride-ethylene terpolymer, containing by weight less than 50 percent derivatives of vinyl acetate.

Sec. 144 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 844 suspending temporarily the duty on tungsten ore.

Sec. 145 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 845 suspending temporarily the duty on certain stuffed toy figures.

Sec. 146 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 847 permitting free entry into the United States of the personal effects, equipment, and other related articles of foreign participants, officials, and other accredited members of delegations involved in the games of the Tenth Pan American Games to be held in Indianapolis, Indiana, in 1987.

Sec. 147 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 849 suspending the duty on spinning, twisting, doubling, and other machines specially designed for wool.

Sec. 148 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 850 suspending the duty on certain bicycle parts and to continue until that date the present treatment of bicycle component parts within foreign trade zones.

Sec. 149 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 851 suspending the duty on 1-(3-Sulfopropyl) pyridinium hydroxide.

Sec. 150 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 852 suspending temporarily the duty on d-6-Methoxy-a-methyl-2-naphthaleneacetic acid and its sodium salt.

Sec. 151 contains provisions included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 853 providing for the temporary suspension of the duty on mixtures of 2,4,-dinitro-6-octyl phenyl crotonate, 2,6-dinitro-4-octyl phenyl crotonate and mitrooctyl phenols (dinocap), and on mixtures of dinocap with application adjuvants; providing for the temporary suspension of the duty on mixtures of 1,1-bis(4-chlorophenyl)-2,2,2-trichloro- ethanol (dicofol) and application adjuvants; and providing for the temporary suspension of the duty on mixtures of mancozeb, dinocap, stabilizer and application adjuvants.

Sec. 152 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 854 providing for the temporary suspension of the duty on cross-linked polyvinylbenzyltrimethylammonium chloride (cholestyramine resin USP).

Sec. 153 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 855 providing for the temporary suspension of the duty on 3-amino-3-methyl-1-butyne.

Sec. 154 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 856 providing for the temporary suspension of the duty on mixtures of maneb, zineb, mancozeb, metiram, stabilizer, and application adjuvants.

Sec. 155 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 857 regarding nicotine resins.

Sec. 156 contains provisions included in H.R. 4800 as secs. 858 and 859(11) regarding temporary duty-free treatment of hosiery knitting needles and double-headed latch needles.

Sec. 157 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 4875 providing a temporary suspension of the duty on silk yarn.

Sec. 158 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 4549 suspending temporarily the duty on 3-Ethylamino-p-cresol.

Sec. 159 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 4651 suspending temporarily the duty on 4-chloro-2,5-dimethoxy aniline (also known as chlor amino base).

Secs. 160, 162, 165, 166, 168, 171 contain provisions originally introduced as H.R. 4599 suspending temporarily the duty on certain chemicals.

Sec. 161 contains a provision roiginally introduced as H.R. 4644 suspending temporarily the duty on 3-nitro phenyl-4-beta-hydroxy sulfone (also known as nitro sulfon B).

Sec. 163 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 4404 suspending temporarily the duty on 1-(4-(1,1-dimethyl-ethyl)phenyl)-4-(hydroxydiphenylmethyl-1-piperidinyl)-1-butanone.

Sec. 164 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 5057 providing for the temporary suspension of duty on fluazifop-p-butyl.

Sec. 167 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 4219 providing for a temporary suspension of duty on sethoxydim.

Sec. 169 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 5421 suspending temporarily the duty on certain mixtures of cross-linked sodium polyacrylate polymers.

Sec. 170 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 5034 providing for temporary duty-free treatment for cyclosporine.

Sec. 172 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 3925 lowering temporarily the rate of duty on glass inners designed for vacuum flasks.

Sec. 173 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 3797 providing temporarily for a lower rate of duty for certain offset printing presses of the sheet-fed type weighing 3,500 pounds or more.

Sec. 174 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 5198 relating to the duties on jacquard cards.

Sec. 175 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 4532 suspending temporarily the duty on certain parts of indirect process electrostatic copying machines.

Secs. 176 and 122 contain provisions originally introduced as H.R. 4533 relating to the tariff classification of extracorporeal shock wave lithotripters.

Sec. 177 contains extensions of certain existing suspensions as enumerated in subsections below:

(1) Contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(1) providing duty-free entry for certain mixtures of hot red peppers and salt.

(2) Contains a provisionn included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(2) making duty-free the rate of customs duty on fresh cantaloupes imported at certain times, and for other purposes.

(3) Contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(3) extending the existing temporary duty-free treatment for certain wools finer than 46s.

(4) Contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(4) extending the existing duty-free treatment of certain needlecraft display models, and for other purposes.

(5) Contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(5) extending the existing suspension of duty on triphenyl phosphate.

(6) Contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 5063 providing for the continuance of the suspension of any duty on menthol feedstocks.

(7) Contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 5001 extending the existing suspension of duty on isometric mixtures of ethylbiphenyl.

(8) Contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(6) extending the existing suspension of duty on sulfapyridine.

(9) Contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(7) extending the suspension of import duties on synthetic rutile.

(10) Contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(8) extending temporary suspension of duties on certain clock radios.

(11) Contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(9) extending the existing temporary duty-free treatment of machines designed for heat-set, stretch texturing of continuous man-made fibers.

(12) Contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(10) extending the existing temporary duty-free treatment of hosiery knitting machines.

(13) Contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 4579 providing for the temporary suspension of duty on small toys.

(14) Contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(12) extending the existing suspension of duty on stuffed dolls, certain toy figures, and the skins thereof.

(15) Contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 859(14) extending the existing suspension of duty on crude feathers and down.

SUBTITLE C—EFFECTIVE DATES

Sec. 181 provides for the effective dates of the provisions of subtitles A and B.

TITLE II—CUSTOMS PROVISIONS

Sec. 201 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 861 rendering watches eligible for preferential treatment.

Sec. 202 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 862 relating to the marking of containers of imported mushrooms.

Sec. 203 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 865 regarding customs bond cancellation standards.

Sec. 204 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 866 providing for the duty-free entry of certain structures and parts for use in the W.M. Keck Observatory Project, Mauna Kea, Hawaii.

Sec. 205 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 867 for the relief of Rukert Marine Corporation of Baltimore, Maryland.

Sec. 206 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 868 providing for waiver of the requirement that proof of actual use be furnished within 3 years after the date an article is entered, and for reliquidation of certain entries of tubular tin products.

Sec. 207 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 3506 improving the enforcement of the restrictions against imported pornography.

Sec. 208 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 5074 extending the effective period of the International Coffee Agreement Act of 1980 until Oct. 1, 1989.

Sec. 209 contains a provision originally introduced as H.R. 4563 relating to the application of the drawback provisions of the Tariff Act of 1930 to certain importations of raw cane sugar.

Sec. 210 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 142 making a number of changes to improve the effectiveness of intellectual property protection under sec. 337. Most importantly it eliminates the injury requirement in intellectual property rights cases (the domestic industry requirement is retained with an expanded definition). It also shortens the time period for issuance of temporary exclusion orders to 90 days after initiation and clarifies that cease and desist orders may be issued "in addition to or in lieu" of exclusion orders and increases the penalty for violations of such orders to "$100,000 or the domestic value of the articles."

It also provides for the International Trade Commission to use default procedures against persons who have been served with notice of proceedings and fail to appear to answer a complaint in cases where the petitioner seeks relief solely affecting that person.

In cases where a party, who has previously been found to have been in violation, petitions the Commission, the burden of proof that he is no longer in violation is on the petitioner and relief may be granted only on the basis of new evidence or on other grounds permissible under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Other changes include providing procedures for treating confidential information submitted in sec. 337 cases; explicitly authorizing the Commission to issue consent orders as the basis of settlement agreements and allowing the Commission to prescribe sanctions for abuse of discovery and abuse of process in sec. 337 cases.

Sec. 211 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 156 granting the President 5-year authority to enter into and to proclaim tariff agreements with Canada reducing or eliminating duties on a specific list of tariff items.

Sec. 212 contains a provision included in H.R. 4800 as sec. 863 relating to user fees for customs services at certain small airports.

TITLE III—IMPLEMENTATION OF NAIROBI PROTOCOL

Title III contains provisions included in H.R. 4800 as Subtitle B of Title VIII implementing the Nairobi Protocol to the Florence Agreement on the Importation of Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Materials.

As of adjournment of the 99th Congress, H.R. 5686 was pending on the Senate Calendar.

H.J. Res. 187 (Mr. Fascell with cosponsors); Public Law 99–239; app. Jan. 14, 1986.

H.J. Res. 187 is legislation to approve the Compact of Free Association (Compact) between the United States and the governments of the Marshall Islands and the Federated States of Micronesia (Freely Associated States).

The executive branch request to approve the Compact was transmitted to the 98th Congress on Mar. 30, 1984. H.J. Res. 620, which encompassed the proposals, was referred jointly to the Interior and Insular Affairs, and Foreign Affairs Committees. The resolution expired (after hearings) at the end of the 98th Congress.

On Feb. 20, 1985, the executive branch resubmitted draft legislation to approve the Compact, which was introduced by request on May 9, 1985, as H.J. Res. 187. The legislation was referred to the Interior and Insular Affairs and Foreign Affairs Committees.

The Foreign Affairs Committee reported the Compact legislation with amendments to the House on July 1, 1985. The Interior and Insular Affairs Committee reported it on July 15, 1985.

On July 15, 1985, H.J. Res. 187 was sequentially referred to the Ways and Means Committee through July 19, 1985, for consideration of the tax and trade aspects of the Compact. On July 19, 1985, referral to the Ways and Means Committee was extended through July 22, 1985.

Bill as proposed

As proposed, the Compact includes several provisions relating to taxation and trade:

Sec. 251 would establish the U.S. dollar as the currency of the Freely Associated States.

Sec. 252 would provide that the Freely Associated States may tax U.S. persons on income earned in, properly located in, or products consumed in the Freely Associated States. The source of income and the location of property would be determined under the U.S. Internal Revenue Code.

Sec. 253 would exempt citizens of the Freely Associated States who are domiciled there from U.S. tax on noneffectively connected income and also would exempt them from U.S. estate, gift, and generation-skipping transfer taxes.

Sec. 254 would provide that the Freely Associated States may tax income that residents of those States receive from sources outside the States, provided that such tax is equivalent to the tax imposed on income from sources within those States. In addition, sec. 254 would provide that a resident of the Freely Associated States would be entirely exempt from U.S. tax on any income that is taxed by the Freely Associated States. The section specifies that for this purpose any person physically present in the Freely Associated States for 183 days during a taxable year will be considered a resident.

Sec. 255 would provide that the provisions of the code that applied to possessions as of Jan. 1, 1980, would be applied to the Freely Associated States, unless manifestly inconsistent with the intent of the Compact. These special rules include the investment tax credit, exemption from U.S. tax for income earned on qualified obligations of a possession, accelerated depreciation, charitable contribution deductions, the possessions credit, and code sec. 957(c) regarding U.S. shareholders of certain possessions organizations. Sec. 255 would provide that if those rules are changed after Jan. 1, 1980, they would remain in effect for 2 years, during which an agreement to provide "substantively equivalent" benefits must be negotiated between the United States and the Freely Associated States.

Sec. 242 would extend tariff treatment to the Freely Associated States which is identical to that currently provided to U.S. insular possessions through the application of general headnote 3(a) of the Tariff Schedules of the United States.

Committee amendment

On July 18, 1985, the Committee on Ways and Means reported H.J. Res. 187, with an amendment, to the House.

Sec. 253 would provide that an exemption from U.S. tax on passive income would be overriden with respect to any recipient of such income. The portion of sec. 253 which provides an exemption from U.S. estate, gift, and generation skipping transfer taxes would be overridden wit respect to U.S. citizens and residents.

The portion of sec. 254 which exempts any resident of the States fro U.S. tax would be overridden. In addition, U.S. taxpayers working in th Freely Associated States would not be permitted to exclude their earning from gross income pursuant to code sec. 911.

Sec. 255 was amended to allow the investment incentives applicable t the possessions to apply, as they may be amended from time to time, t the Freely Associated States. These incentives would cease to apply o Jan. 1, 1987, unless the United States and the Freely Associated State have entered into an agreement to exchange tax information. If the incentives are reduced in the future, appropriations to the Freely Associate States would be authorized.

The committee amendment made clear that tariff treatment unde present law, including beneficiary country status of the Freely Associate States under the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP), would continue to apply to their products.

Substitution of H.J. Res. 355

The rule adopted by the House for consideration of H.J. Res. 187 allowed 2 amendments to be offered to the originally introduced resolution. First, a substitute would be offered by Chairman Rostenkowski, amendable only by a second substitute to be offered by Interior Committee Chairman Udall. The first substitute (embodied in H.J. Res. 343) included the recommendations of all the committees including Ways and Means Committee tax and trade amendments. The Udall amendment (embodied in H.J. Res. 344) allowed tax and trade incentives as approved by the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

When H.J. Res. 187 was considered by the House, unanimous consent was granted to substitute H.J.Res. 355 in lieu of H.J. Res. 343.

H.J. Res. 355, as approved by the House, continued present tariff treatment for the Freely Associated States except that it would increase incentives for economic development beyond GSP by permitting up to 15 percent of U.S. materials to be counted toward the minimum 35 percent local content required for duty-free treatment, and added canned tuna to the exclusions from GSP under present law as it applies to the Freely Associated States.

H.J. Res. 355 would treat the Freely Associated States as if they were possessions for purposes of the possessions tax credit under code sec. 936. If the credit were amended, it would continue for 1 year for these States. The Secretary of the Treasury would be required to negotiate substantially equivalent benefits with the islands which would become effective when enacted. The matter could be submitted by the islands to arbitration under the Compact if not resolved within the 1-year delay. No other possession tax benefit would be extended to the Freely Associated States.

The resolution includes the Ways and Means Committee amendments to secs. 253 and 254, except that American individuals working in the Freely Associated States would be allowed the foreign earned income exclusion under code sec. 911.

The House agreed to H.J. Res. 355 as a substitute for H.J. Res. 187, and passed H.J. Res. 187, as amended, on July 25, 1985.

The Senate amendment to H.J.Res. 187 passed on November 14, provided duty-free treatment for the duration of the Compact to imports from the Freely Associated States, subject to the same GSP limitations and local content requirements in the House-passed version. The Senate amendment excluded only textiles and apparel; watches, clocks, and other timing apparatus; footwear and other leather products; and buttons from such duty-free treatment.

In the tax area, the Senate deleted a 1-year delay for any change in the possessions tax credit. Under the Senate amendment, the Treasury Secretary is made a member of the arbitration panel which can make a determination of whether the replacement benefits are substantially equivalent to the credit. Also, the Freely Associated States would be treated as part of the North American area for purposes of the deductibility of business convention expenses.

The Senate amendments also incorporated the proposed Compact of Free Association with Palau within H.J. Res. 187. The tax benefits promised to Palau would be limited in the same way as those given under the Compact of the Freely Associated States.

The House amendment to the Senate amendment to H.J. Res. 187, as passed by the House on December 11, and by the Senate on December 13, contained the Senate trade provision amended to limit duty-free treatment on annual imports of canned tuna in water from Micronesia, the Marshall Islands, and Palau to a maximum of 10 percent of U.S. consumption. It accepted the Senate tax provision without amendment.

The resolution was signed into law by the President on Jan. 14, 1986, as Public Law 99-239.

H.J.Res. 372; Public Law 99-177; app. Dec. 12, 1985.

H.J. Res. 372 provides that the permanent public debt limit is increased to $2,078,700 million effective on or after Oct. 1, 1985.

H.J.Res. 372 was engrossed and deemed to have passed the House on Aug. 1, 1985, pursuant to passage of S. Con.Res. 32, the Budget for the United States Government for fiscal years 1986, 1987, and 1988.

H.J. Res. 372 was reported to the Senate on Sept. 26, 1985, and passed the Senate amended on Oct. 10, 1985 (Gramm-Rudman-Hollings). On Nov. 1, 1985, the conference report was filed. The House and Senate agreed to the conference report on Dec. 11, 1985. The President signed H.J. Res. 372 into law on Dec. 12, 1985, as Public Law 99-177.

A summary of the act follows:

The act provides that the permanent public debt limit is increased to $2,078.7 billion effective on or after Oct. 1, 1985.

An automatic deficit reduction procedure would be established for fiscal years 1986 through 1991, when the deficit would reach zero. The deficit targets for each year would be as follows:

Fiscal year:	Billions
1986	$171.9
1987	144
1988	108
1989	72
1991	0

In the event that the deficit is anticipated to exceed the required levels for any fiscal year, the automatic procedure would be used to achieve across-the-board reductions in the Federal budget.

1. Trigger mechanism

The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) would submit a report to the General Accounting Office (GAO). This report would estimate the deficit for the fiscal year and the amount by which the deficit exceeds the level specified above. In the event that the automatic deficit reduction procedure (known as sequestration) is required, both the CBO/OMB and GAO reports would identify the specific budget authority and all other factors (COLA amounts, outlay reductions in the case of direct spending programs, direct loan obligations, etc.) to be sequestered.

The CBO/OMB report would contain all of the information needed to prepare the Presidential order, and, in essence, would constitute a draft order. GAO would review the report provided by CBO and OMB and, with due regard for these findings, would prepare a report to the President.

If any part of these reporting procedures is declared invalid, fallback procedures, using a temporary joint committee on deficit reduction, would apply.

2. Sequestration amounts and timetable

As noted above, the maximum deficit amount for fiscal year 1986 would be $171.9 billion. In January a "snapshot" would be taken of the fiscal year 1986 deficit amounts by OMB and CBO. New economic forecasts would be used. The amount to be sequestered for fiscal year 1986 would be determined by subtracting $171.9 billion from the adjusted deficit amount and multiplying the result by $\frac{7}{12}$, with the further stipulation that the maximum sequestration would be $20 billion on an annual basis. For this fiscal year only, sequestration would begin on March 1. The maximum sequestration for fiscal year 1986 is still $11.7 billion. Therefore, the $\frac{7}{12}$ fraction is the number of months remaining in fiscal year 1986 divided by 12. In fiscal year 1986 and 1991, sequestration would occur if the deficit exceeded the target by any amount.

In fiscal years 1987-90, sequestration would occur only if the deficit exceeded the target amount by at least $10 billion.

The accelerated timetable for fiscal year 1986 would be as follows:

January 10—The "snapshot" of the deficit for fiscal year 1986 is taken.

January 15—OMB and CBO report to GAO.

January 20—GAO issues the report to the President, based on the findings of CBO and OMB.

January 21—Congress convenes.

February 1—The Presidential order is issued based on the GAO report.

February 5—The President submits his fiscal year 1987 budget.

March 1—The order takes effect.

Any cost of living allowance (COLA) first paid after the enactment date of this act would be deferred beginning January 1 under this plan. If it is later determined that a sequester order will not take effect, the COLA's would be restored retroactive to January 1.

The timetable for 1987 and beyond would be as follows:

August 15—The "snapshot" of the deficit is taken.

August 20—OMB and CBO report to GAO.

August 25—GAO issues the report to the President, based on the findings of OMB and CBO.

September 1—The Presidential order is issued based on the GAO report.

October 1—The order takes effect.

October 5—OMB and CBO issue a revised report to reflect final congressional action.

October 10—GAO issues a revised report to the President.

October 15—The final order, based on the revised report, is effective.

November 15—GAO Compliance report issued.

Under this timetable, the month of September would be set aside for a congressional response to the sequestration order.

3. Presidential order

The amount to be sequestered is split 50-50 between defense and non-defense to achieve the deficit reduction specified in the GAO report. The non-defense category would consist of the automatic spending increase programs, all non-defense controllable expenditures and half of the Federal retirement COLA's. The defense category would consist of all of the budget function 050 and the remaining half of the Federal retirement COLA's.

The Presidential order must strictly adhere to the determinations set forth in the GAO report and must be consistent with that report. For discretionary programs, new budget authority would be reduced on a proportional basis to achieve the required outlay reductions.

4. Treatment of programs

Interest on the national debt, and the Social Security program would be exempt from sequestration. Two Veterans programs: Veterans Compensation and Veterans Pensions and six low-income programs would also be exempt: Medicaid, AFDC, WIC, SSI, Food Stamps, Child Nutrition.

Special rules would apply for: foster care and adoption assistance, unemployment compensation, child support enforcement, guaranteed student loans, and the Commodity Credit Corporation. A number of technical exemptions are also made.

A special procedure (known as category Ia) would also apply for the following health programs: Medicare, Veterans Health, Indian Health, Community Health and Migrant Health. These programs would be subject to a sequestration cut of 1 percent in fiscal year 1986 and 2 percent in fiscal year 1987 and thereafter. The reduction would be calculated after including any scheduled increases. If no increases are scheduled, there would be a reduction below the current level.

The reductions in the remaining non-defense programs must be sufficient to achieve 50 percent of the total sequestration amount.

5. Congressional response

In the Senate, a procedure would be established to allow the Senate Budget Committee to affirm, in whole or in part, the sequestration order and provide for a congressional response using a reconciliation-type process involving both instructions to committees. The Senate Budget Committee would have the authority to include in a reconciliation bill pursuant to those procedures actual legislative language fulfilling the instruction to a committee which completely fails to comply.

6. Economic conditions

Special procedures would be established to allow the Congress to suspend certain provisions of the act in the event of a recession. This recession escape clause would be triggered, by a CBO notification to the Congress under either of the following circumstances: (a) CBO or OMB forecast or estimate that real economic growth will be less than zero in any two consecutive quarters during the six quarter period beginning in the quarter prior to the CBO notice; or (b) Department of Commerce reports that actual real economic growth for any two consecutive quarters is less than 1 percent.

If either of these circumstances exist, the Majority Leader of each House would be required to introduce a joint resolution suspending the relevant provisions of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 for the remainder of the fiscal year and for the following fiscal year.

The act specifies the content of the joint resolution and provides that the resolution be referred to the respective Budget Committees. Within 5 days, the Budget Committees must report the resolution without amendment to the respective Houses or be discharged. The resolution would be considered under expedited procedure in both chambers and would not be subject to amendment.

7. Constitutional issues

Both the House amendment language pertaining to nonseverability and the Senate amendment language pertaining to severability would be deleted.

Expedited judicial review would be provided for Members of Congress seeking anticipatory review of the reporting procedure and the constitutionality of the act, or questioning Presidential compliance with sequestration procedures. Also, the legislation provides expedited review for Members of Congress and adversely affected citizens challenging the constitutionality of the act upon the issuance of a sequestration order.

If the President employs a claimed constitutional prerogative not to comply with sequestration procedures, the entire order would be null and void upon a Supreme Court finding that the President's action was valid.

The legislation would also provide for a fallback procedure in the event that any part of the OMB/CBO/GAO reporting procedure is found unconstitutional. Under these circumstances, the OMB/CBO report would be transmitted to a temporary joint committee on deficit reduction, composed of the members of the House and Senate Budget Committees. The joint committee would report a joint resolution which could then trigger sequestration if enacted. Expedited consideration in both Houses would be provided.

8. Budget Act procedures and changes in rules of the House and Senate

The legislation adopts many of the congressional budget reforms proposed in the 98th Congress by the Task Force on the Budget Process, the Committee on Rules, which is commonly called "the Beilenson Task Force" in reference to its Chairman. Specifically the legislation provides for an accelerated congressional and executive branch timetable, expands the application of the Budget Act to cover credit authority, includes off-budget programs in the congressional and executive budgets, and streamlines the congressional budget process by providing for an annual budget resolution and by removing unnecessary obstacles to the consideration of authorization and appropriation bills.

The proposed congressional budget timetable is as follows:

"On or before"	Action to be completed
First Monday after January 3*.	President submits his budget.
February 15	CBO submits report to Budget Committee.
February 25	Committees submit views and estimates to Budget Committee.
April 1	Senate Budget Committee reports concurrent resolution on the budget.
April 15	Congress completes action on concurrent resolution on the budget.
May 15	Annual appropriation bills may be considered in the House.
June 10	House Appropriations Committee repo last annual appropriation bill.
June 30	House completes action on reconciliati legislation.
October 1	Fiscal year begins.

*February 5 for fiscal year 1987

H.J. Res. 626 (Mr. Seiberling with cosponsors); Public Law 99-658; app. Nov. 14, 1986.

H.J. Res. 626 is legislation to approve the Compact of Free Associati (Compact) between the United States and the Government of Palau, o of the four governments comprising the Trust Territory of the Paci Islands. The Compact sets the terms for termination of the leadership f Palau and would govern relationships between the Government of th Republic of Palau and the United States in the post-trusteeship perio

The executive branch request to approve the Compact was transmitte to the Congress on Apr. 9, 1986. H.J. Res. 626, which incorporated th proposals, was introduced by request on May 6, 1986, and referred jointl to the Committees on Interior and Insular Affairs and Foreign Affair

The Committee on Foreign Affairs reported H.J. Res. 626 to the Hou on June 26, 1986, with an amendment. H.J. Res. 626, as amended, w sequentially referred until Sept. 17, 1986, to the Committee on Ways an Means for consideration of the tax and trade provisions of the propose Compact. On Sept. 17, 1986, the Committee on Ways and Means reporte H.J. Res. 626, as amended, to the House without amendment.

H.J. Res 626 passed the House on Sept. 29, 1986. The legislation passe the Senate amended on Oct. 6, 1986. The House agreed to the Senat amendment on Oct. 16, 1986. The Senate amendment did not pertain t the tax and trade provisions.

The resolution was signed into law by the President on Nov. 14, 198 as Public Law 99-658.

Tax provisions

The Government of Palau may tax income of U.S. persons derive from sources within its jurisdiction as well as property situated there transfers of such property by gift or death, and products consumed there A citizen of Palau, domiciled there who is a nonresident and not a citize of the United States will be exempt from U.S. estate, gift, and generation skipping transfer taxes.

The Government of Palau is given the authority to impose tax upo income derived by a resident of Palau from sources outside Palau in th same way that it imposes tax on domestic income. If Palau imposes such tax on its residents, they may be relieved from U.S. tax to which they would otherwise be subjected.

Palau will be treated as a possession of the United States for purpose of Internal Revenue Code sec. 936 (possessions tax credit). If the sec. 93 benefits are reduced while the compact is in effect a system is provided t develop substantially equivalent benefits for Palau. Palau will be treated a part of the North American area for purposes of business conventio deductibility.

Trade provisions

Article IV (secs. 241-243) of the Compact contain provisions identica to the trade provisions of the Compact of Free Association between the United States and the Governments of the Marshall Islands and the Federated States of Micronesia (Public Law 99-239). Under Article IV of the Compact, all articles of Palau except certain specific product exclusion and imports of canned tuna above certain levels would enter duty-free, subject to the rules-of-origin, including limits as presently apply under secs. 503(b) and 504(c) of the Trade Act of 1974 for duty-free treatment under the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP). Unlike GSP, however, up to 15 percent of any U.S. materials may be counted toward the minimum 35 percent local content requirement.

All products would be eligible for duty-free treatment except for the following exclusions: Watches, clocks, and timing apparatus; buttons; textile and apparel articles subject to textile agreements; and footwear, handbags, luggage, flat goods, work gloves, and leather wearing apparel not eligible for GSP as of Apr. 1, 1984.

Imports of canned tuna packed in water would be subject to a duty-free quota limiting duty-free entry of imports from the Federated States of Micronesia, the Marshall Islands, and Palau combined during any calendar year to a maximum 10 percent of U.S. consumption during the preceding calendar year.

Articles imported from Palau exempt from duty-free treatment under secs. 241-243 would be subject to column 1 rates of duty and all U.S. articles imported into Palau would receive most-favored-nation treatment.

H.J. Res. 668; passed Senate amended on Aug. 9, 1986. (See also Public Law 99-384 (H.R. 5395) and Public Law 99-509 (H.R. 5300).)

H.J. Res. 668 provides for an increase in the permanent public debt limit from $2,078.7 billion to $2,322.8 billion, effective on the date of enactment. H.J. Res. 668 was engrossed and deemed to have passed the House on June 26, 1986, pursuant to passage of S.Con.Res. 120, the Budget for the United States Government for fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989.

H.J. Res. 668 was reported to the Senate on July 18, 1986, and passed with amendments on Aug. 9, 1986. The Senate requested a conference but no conferees were appointed.

Sec. 8201 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 (Public Law 99-509 (H.R. 5300)) increased the public debt limit from $2,111 billion to $2,300 billion beginning on the date of enactment and ending on May 15, 1987. Secs. 8202 and 8203 of the act directed the Secretary of the Treasury to pay interest payment shortfalls to certain trust funds and to issue certain obligations to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund. (See also H.R. 5395.)

H.Con.Res. 107 (Mr. Rostenkowski with cosponsors); passed House Apr. 2, 1985.

H.Con.Res. 107, expressing the sense of the Congress that the President take all appropriate and feasible action to (1) develop a plan for reducing the overall trade deficit and (2) secure the elimination of unfair restrictions by Japan on imports, was reported to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on Apr. 2, 1985, and passed the House on the same day.

The resolution, which is nonbinding, contains findings with respect to the size of the overall U.S. trade deficit and the need for concerted action by both the Congress and the President to address its underlying causes, including the overvalued dollar. It also contains findings directly relating to bilateral trade problems with Japan which cite the lack of equitable market access of U.S. goods on the Japanese market and indicate that negotiations to remove such restrictions have thus far been unsuccessful. The resolution calls on the President to make a determination within 45 days as to whether Japan has made concessions to provide fair and equitable access and if that determination is negative to take prompt action under existing trade laws to restrict Japan's access to the U.S. market.

As of adjournment of the 99th Congress, H.Con.Res. 107 was pending on the Senate calendar.

H.Con.Res. 395 (Mr. Rostenkowski); House disagreed to Senate amendments Oct. 18, 1986.

H.Con.Res. 395, a bill to correct technical errors in the enrollment of the bill H.R. 3838, passed the House on Sept. 25, 1986, and the Senate with amendments, on Oct. 16, 1986. On Oct. 17, 1986, the House agreed to the Senate amendments, with amendments. The Senate agreed to the House amendments with amendments on Oct. 17, 1986. The House disagreed to the Senate amendments on Oct. 18, 1986. The Senate adjourned sine die before it could receive the papers from the House regarding the last disagreement.

H.Res. 283 (Mr. Rostenkowski); passed House Oct. 1, 1985.

On Sept. 26, 1985, the Senate passed S. 1712, legislation which would extend the 16-cents-per-pack cigarette excise tax rate for 45 days, through Nov. 14, 1985. (The House passed H.R. 3452, which included a similar extension on Sept. 30, 1985.

On Oct. 1, 1985, Mr. Rostenkowski sent to the Speaker's desk H.Res. 283, a privileged resolution. The resolution states that S. 1712 is a revenue measure which contravenes Clause 1, sec. 7, of article 1 of the Constitution of the United States and is an infringement of the privileges of the House. H.Res. 283 was agreed to in the House on Oct. 1, 1985, therefore returning S. 1712 to the Senate.

H.Res. 475 (Mr. Crane with cosponsors); House voted to table motion to discharge Committee on Ways and Means July 29, 1986.

H.Res. 475, disapproving the President's recommendation to extend certain waiver authority under the Trade Act of 1974 with respect to Romania, was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. On July 29, 1986, a motion was offered in the House to discharge the Committee on Ways and Means from consideration of H.Res. 475, a motion made in order under Title IV of the Trade Act of 1984. On July 29, 1986, the House agreed to a motion to table the motion to discharge.

H.Res. 475, which is nonbinding, would disapprove the President's recommendation to extend certain waiver authority under the Trade Act of 1974, whereby the President extended most-favored-nation trading status to Romania.

As of the adjournment of the 99th Congress, H.Res. 475 was pending in the Committee on Ways and Means.

H.Res. 562 (Mr. Rostenkowski); returning S. 638 to the Senate.

H.Res. 562, introduced on Sept. 25, 1986, provided that S. 638, legislation passed by the Senate to provide for the sale of Conrail to the Norfolk Southern Railroad, was unconstitutional under article 1, sec. 7 of the Constitution of the United States. S. 638 contained numerous provisions relating to the tax treatment of the sale of Conrail.

The House passed H.Res. 562 on Sept. 25, 1986, returning S. 638 to the Senate.

H.Res. 567 (Mr. Rostenkowski with cosponsors); passed House Sept. 30, 1986.

H.Res. 567, relating to the tariff on chocolate, was reported to the House by the Committee on Ways and Means on Sept. 29, 1986. On Sept. 30, 1986, the House passed H.Res. 567.

H.Res. 567 calls upon the President to use all appropriate powers of his office to secure from Japan a reduction in that country's tariff on chocolate to a level equal to that of the United States by April 1987. The U.S. tariff on chocolate and chocolate confectionery is 5 to 7 percent ad valorem, compared to a Japanese tariff of 20 percent ad valorem.

As of adjournment of the 99th Congress, H.Res. 567 was pending on the Senate Calendar.

S. 720 (Mr. Mitchell of Maine with cosponsor); Public Law 99-420; app. Sept. 25, 1986. (See summary of H.R. 3838.)

S. 720, legislation to establish a permanent boundary for the Acadia National Park in Maine, was reported from the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources on Nov. 22, 1985. S. 720 passed the Senate on Dec. 3, 1985. As passed by the Senate, S. 720 included language providing that contributions of conservation easements for the Acadia National Park may qualify for Federal income tax deductions regardless of restrictions on such deductions within the Internal Revenue Code.

S. 720 was referred solely to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs. The Interior Committee favorably reported S. 720 on May 5, 1986. The bill passed the House on May 5, 1986. Because of jurisdictional concerns expressed by the Committee on Ways and Means, as passed by the House, the bill did not include any special provisions regarding the tax consequences of transfers of easements on this land.

The Senate rejected this amendment on July 24, 1986. The House again disagreed to the Senate provision on July 24, 1986. The Senate receded from its amendment on Sept. 11, 1986.

The bill was signed into law by the President on Sept. 25, 1986, as Public Law 99-420.

A targeted amendment allowing certain specific contributions to the Acadia National Park to qualify for charitable contribution deductions was included in Public Law 99-514 (H.R. 3838).

S. 1200 (Mr. Simpson); Public Law 99-603; app. Nov. 6, 1986.

S. 1200, the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, was reported to the Senate on Aug. 28, 1985, by the Senate Judiciary Committee. The bill passed the Senate on Sept. 19, 1985.

On Oct. 9, 1986, S. 1200 passed the House in lieu of H.R. 3810, the Immigration Control and Legislation Amendments Act of 1985. On Oct. 10, 1986, the House requested a conference with the Senate, and on that same date the Senate agreed to a conference. On Oct. 14, 1986, the conference report was filed. The House agreed to the conference report on Oct. 15, 1986, and the Senate agreed to the conference report on Oct. 17, 1986.

The President signed the bill into law on Nov. 6, 1986, as Public Law 99-603.

The Committee on Ways and Means provisions included in Public Law 99-603 are as follows:

1. Social security number verification

The act requires the Social Security Administration, in conjunction with the Attorney General and the Department of Labor, to conduct a study of the feasibility, costs and privacy implications of establishing a social security number validation system to help carry out the purposes of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

2. Legalization of illegal aliens and eligibility for certain public assistance programs

The act makes clarifying and technical changes in order to make clear that the disqualification of newly legalized aliens applies to the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program and not to other public assistance programs.

3. Verification of immigration status of aliens applying for public assistance benefits

The act requires States and other agencies administering public assistance programs to establish an automated system of verifying the alien status of individuals applying for aid. The act allows the respective Secretaries with administrative responsibilities over the programs to waive the requirement that a verification system be established if the Secretary finds that such a program would not be cost effective or that an alternative system is in place which is as timely and effective. In addition, the Supplemental Security Income program would not be subject to the verification system requirement.

The act disqualifies the special agricultural workers who are granted permanent resident status under the act from receipt of AFDC in the same manner that the aliens being granted amnesty under the act are disqualified from such benefits.

S. 1620 (Mr. Durenberger with cosponsor); passed Senate Oct. 8, 1986.

S. 1620, the National Council on Access to Health Care Act, was reported to the Senate by the Government Affairs Committee on Sept. 25, 1986. It passed the Senate on Oct. 8, 1986, and was referred to the Committees on Ways and Means and Energy and Commerce on Oct. 18, 1986, where it was pending at the adjournment of the 99th Congress.

S. 1712 (Mr. Dole with cosponsors); passed Senate Sept. 26, 1985. (House returned papers to the Senate on Oct. 1, 1985.)

S. 1712 passed the Senate on Sept. 26, 1985. As passed by the Senate, S. 1712 would extend the 16-cents-per-pack Federal excise tax rate for 45 days, from Oct. 1, 1985, until Nov. 15, 1985.

On Oct. 1, 1985, the House passed H.Res. 283, which returned S. 1712 to the Senate because it was the opinion of the House that S. 1712 contravened Article I, sec. 7, clause 1 of the Constitution and was an infringement of the privileges of the House because it was a revenue measure originating in the Senate.

S. 1728 (Mr. Nichols and Mr. Boren); Public Law 99-221; app. De 26, 1985.

S. 1728, a bill to authorize the Cherokee Nation of Oklahoma to lea lands held in trust for up to 99 years, was reported to the Senate by th Committee on Indian Affairs on Nov. 19, 1985, and passed the Senate o Dec. 3, 1985.

In the House, S. 1728 was referred to the Interior and Insular Affair Post Office and Civil Service, and Ways and Means Committees on De 9, 1985. The committees were discharged from further consideration o Dec. 17, 1985, and the bill passed the House on that date.

Sec. 3, of the bill as it passed the House, amends the Social Securit Act and the Internal Revenue Code to allow Federal employees wh leave Federal service and temporarily work with a tribal organization t retain their exemption from social security coverage upon return to Fede al service. This provision assures that Federal employees do not lose the status under the civil service retirement system as a result of work for tribal organization, and parallels the treatment provided to Federal em ployees who temporarily perform military or reserve duty.

S. 1728 was signed into law by the President on Dec. 26, 1985, Public Law 99-221.

S.Con.Res. 129; passed Senate Apr. 17, 1986.

S.Con.Res. 129 expresses the sense of the Congress that the Administra tion should continue to firmly oppose trade-restricting actions by th European Community (EC) on certain agricultural products into Spai and Portugal as a result of EC enlargement, and should impose trad restrictions on imports from the EC to restore the balance of trad agreement concessions if the EC does not rescind its actions or provid prompt and complete trade compensation.

The Senate passed S.Con.Res. 129 on Apr. 17, 1986. The resolution wa referred to the Committee on Ways and Means on Apr. 21, 1986.

As of adjournment of the 99th Congress, the resolution was pending i the Committee on Ways and Means.
